Spies Broke Game Squad, Officer Tells Police Probe

Hazen Was Offered Bribe to Transfer Lieut. Little, House Inquiry Reveals

The House Subcommittee Investigating the Metropolitan Police Force unexpectedly ended its hearing late yesterday after a climactic session heard recommendation of a special "strong-arm squad" to smash vice in the Capital.

At the same session, ending 11 days of spectacular testimony, Lieut. George M. Little told how intradepartment spying had broken up his crack gambling squad two years ago.

In earlier developments:

Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen revealed he had indirectly been offered a $10,000 bribe to transfer Little from the gambling unit.

Capt. Ira C. Keck said he intended relieving Lieut. George Darnall from his command of the homicide squad and admitted the detective bureau squad members were "75 per cent misplaced."

The subcommittee revealed intended revision of the Civil Service law to permit promotion of men independently of the Civil Service ratings.

Hearings Please Schulte

Representative William T. Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana, the chairman, said last night a report on the committee's findings would be published as soon as possible."

The Representative hailed the hearings as "very, very successful." "It will do a lot of good. We are going to make some very interesting and beneficial recommendations." He added, "and we are going to have a model police force here."

Detective Sergt. Joseph Shimon, now a special investigator for the district attorney, agreed with committeemen a strong arm squad was needed here after testifying to the previous effectiveness of a similar unit before it was suddenly ordered to "change its tactics."

Methods Outlined

Shimon outlined methods of the Pick Up squad which he formerly commanded. These, he said, included wholesale raids on "dives and joints" and round-ups of troublemakers and vagrants. These methods had been "very effective" he stated.

The squad had been forced to curtail its clean-up program and "fold up" after an order issued by Maj. Ernest W. Brown, Shimon said.

Chairman Schulte then demanded: "Do you feel such a strong arm squad is needed in the situation facing Washington now?"

Shimon responded: "Yes, but I wouldn't call it a strong arm squad, but a roving squad of good effective men to clean things up."

The chairman then declared: "Why shouldn't we re-create this roving squad . . . and keep the undesirable elements on the move? No responsible citizen would complain, only the people with ulterior motives."

Lieut. Little's revelations regarding the "Gestapo" came after he testified his gambling squad—which he called "a fine squad of efficient men who were not afraid to hold up their right hands and testify in court"—had been broken up suddenly "for some unknown reason."

Telephone Tapped

Pressed by Schulte about the "unknown reason," Little told this story:

"One of my sergeants came to me one day and he was furious. I asked him what the matter was and he said someone was tapping his telephone and he knew who it was. I told him that was a broad accusation and asked him if he was sure he knew who was doing the wire tapping."

"He said it was some member of

'Third Degree' Mural Evokes Protest of Bishop Freeman

MURAL CRITICIZED—A section of the police mural described by Bishop Freeman as "an interpretation of the Gestapo"

A Municipal Center Building mural depicting police at work is "fitting as an interpretation of the Gestapo," the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Episcopal Bishop of Washington, charged yesterday.

"It is such a wretched interpretation and so brutish in character that I am wondering if something cannot be done about it," he said in a letter to Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen.

Hazen replied that much of the criticism of the mural had arisen from familiarity with only "a very small part of the composition."

This "small part" shows police beating prisoners in the "third degree."

However, said Hazen, the mural also depicts many scenes in which police are doing good deeds—guiding lost children, shepherding boys' club members, directing traffic and standing guard on picket lines.

Quoting Waylande Gregory, the ceramic sculptor of the work, Hazen added:

"It seems to me that they (the police) should be pleased to be depicted in one scene in such a way as to prove that they know how to deal with violence as well as gentleness."

Municipal Architect Nathan C. Wyeth suggested that "all those who are really interested in this mural should go to see it before passing

Norris, 80, Shares Birthday Honors With Nebraskan, 100

Two Nebraskans got together on their birthdays last night, Senator George W. Norris on his eightieth and Albert Milton Lathrop on his 100th.

"Like a child going to see his father," as he put it, Senator Norris went to Lathorp's home at 1321 Euclid Street Northwest and greeted his fellow Nebraskan with: "Well, are you getting tired?"

"Oh, no," was the reply. Then the octogenarian sat down on the sofa beside the centenarian and put his arm around his shoulders.

"I'm awful glad to see you," said the Nebraska Independent. "You lived in Nebraska about 50 years, didn't you?"

"Fifty-four years," said the other birthday celebrant. And so they talked about Nebraska and the people there and the climate.

"You know that's a duty climate," remarked Lathrop, who lost his sight 20 years ago. "It was the foundation for my blindness."

"Yes," agrede the Senator, "there's lots of dust."

Mrs. Norris joined her husband in extending good wishes to Lathrop, and Nebraska's junior Senator,

R. F. Camalier Named Adviser To Senate District Committee

Native Capitalite To Serve as Expert On Municipal Affairs

Renah F. Camalier, native Washingtonian and secretary to President Roosevelt when the Chief Executive was Assistant Secretary of the Navy, yesterday was named by Chairman McCarran of the Senate District Committee, to a $6,000-a-year post of "municipal attorney for the committee."

The position was created several weeks ago when the Senate, bowing to McCarran's request that he be provided with a municipal expert before he would accept the committee chairmanship, voted money for the salary.

Cent Milk Plan Works Well In Other Cities' Schools

By Gerald G. Gross
Post Staff Writer

A year's experience has proved the feasibility of school milk programs to the Surplus Marketing Administration which, accordingly, is planning to make them bigger and better in 1941-42.

Yesterday there was issued a resume of achievement, showing how well one-cent milk has worked out in New York, Chicago, Boston and other cities.

The report offers further justification for establishment of a penny project in Washington where, notwithstanding combined efforts of the municipal government, WPA and the Parent-Teachers' Association, there are still many needy children who drink no milk in school. Their number unquestionably runs into the thousands, according to those best qualified to deliver an estimate.

In Chicago schools, consumption of half pints increased from 18,000 to 104,000. A 550 per cent increase was noted in New York City. These gains have not only benefited producers, by widening their markets, but proved to be a form of health

Perfectly Legal

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt yesterday declared that it is perfectly legal for American workmen and materials to be used in building bases for Great Britain anywhere in the world.

He thus added strength to reports here and in London that the United States is helping in construction of a base in northern Ireland.

The Chief Executive declared at a press conference, however, that whatever work is being done on bases in Scotland or northern Ireland was either a straight purchase arrangement between Great Britain and American firms or else was under the terms of the lease-lend law.

Statement From London

Mr. Roosevelt was questioned closely on reports of American construction of a base in Ulster following statesments in Congress Thursday by Senators Taft and Danaher, both Republicans, that the United States was building installations for the British.

Before the President's press conference, the reports had been given added currency by a British foreign office statement in London that American technicians and laborers "are engaged in connection with certain works that are proceeding in Northern Ireland."

The London statement stressed the point that the men were employes of the British government, and both London and Mr. Roosevelt emphasized that the employes were exercising a perfectly legal

Russia Masses 8 Million Men To Meet New Nazi Drive; Already Begun, Berlin Says

Red Army Too Big To Be Destroyed Quickly, German Public Is Told

By the United Press

Berlin (Saturday), July 12. German armies driving on Moscow were reported last night to have crossed the Dnepr River, but newspapers today warned the German people that the Russian army "naturally is large enough to postpone a decision for a while."

The Morganpost said that the Russians "presently are engaged in organizing new, heavy resistance" along the Stalin line—which seemed to indicate that the Nazi spearheads have not yet decisively broken through this line of fixed fortifications.

The crossing of the broad Dnepr on the central front 350 miles southwest of Moscow, reported by the official D. N. B. agency, but still unconfirmed by the high command, was said to have followed the smashing by aerial bombings of two main Soviet railroads vital to military movements.

The high command, in its communique from Adolf Hitler's field headquarters, merely told of continued progress and repeated its announcement of the final mop-up of the Bialystok-Minsk pocket.

Deny Drive Is Stalled

Answering reports abroad that the German offensive had been stalled, a German military spokesman indicated to foreign correspondents tonight that the drive is "steadily accelerating" and that new German successes will be announced soon.

[A report in London stated that a mighty new German offensive aimed at Moscow, Leningrad and Kiev was under way. The apparent halt in the German offensive was ascribed to "a rest period."]

The spokesmen attached significance to "the high command's careful choosing of its words," citing Tuesday's statement that the Russian drive was proceeding "according to plan," Wednesday's that it was "progressing successfully" and yesterday that it was "advancing irresistibly."

The D. N. B. agency today reported that the Red army's losses in dead, wounded and prisoners has now reached 1,000,000 men and that "the gigantic total of prisoners on the Eastern Front is growing hourly."

German propaganda company reporters said the Dnepr was crossed just above its junction with the Drut near Rogachev, 35 miles east of Bobruisk, 115 miles southeast of Minsk and 190 miles north of Kiev.

German tank units followed patrols across both the Dnepr and the Drut, it was stated.

Command Revamped

By the Associated Press

Moscow (Saturday), July 12. The Red Army, now fighting under the active command of Russia's three topmost military men, claimed today it had stalled the German offensive all along the line for the second successive day.

Defense Commissar Semeon K. Timoshenko, who took personal command of the vital central sector defending Moscow, was reported rushing new preparations in anticipation of a renewed German onslaught as soon as Nazis worn out by three weeks of unceasing battle can be replaced by reserves.

During this delay, described as the longest the armies of Adolf Hitler ever have had in the course of a blitzkrieg, the Soviet information bureau charged that the Germans were fortifying the Bulgarian border facing Turkey and had designs on the Turkish-controlled straits of the Bosporus.

Children Leave Moscow

In anticipation of further German blows, children, aged persons and unemployed women were being removed from Moscow.

Marshal Klementi Vorshilov, former defense commissar, was kiven command of the Russian right wing, defending the Leningrad front, and Vice Commissar Semon Budyenny was placed in charge of the vital Ugrainian defenses to the south.

Budyenny, a celebrated cavalryman, was a hero of the civil war, while Vorshilov, as chief of the cabinet defense council, has been Premier Joseph Salin's righthand military man for years.

The Soviet communique issued today said succinctly, "no significant changes took place on the front" during Friday, and passed on to a long enumeration of minor clashes and of defense activities on the home front and sabotage behind the German lines.

Open Limited Offensive

[A Moscow radio announcement said the German offensive had come to a standstill and that Russian troops had started an offensive at certain points.]

The unusually brief communique stated that the Soviet air force had destroyed German motorized and mechanized units in concentrated attacks and had bombed Ploesti, in Rumania's oil fields.

During Wednesday and Thursday the Red air force destroyed 179 enemy planes, it was stated.

The Red army was reported strengthening its positions at Ostrov, Polotsk, Lepel, Borisov, Bobruisk

R.A.F. Wrecks Dive Bombers On Nazi Fields

Nine German Fighters Downed as British Blast at Continent

By the Associated Press

London, July 11.—Several German dive bombers were destroyed on the ground and nine Nazi fighters were shot down today in two hard daylight smashed at German railway and shipyard facilities in northern France, the R. A. F. announced tonight.

Four British fighters were acknowledged missing from this continuation of the gigantic day and night aerial offensive which the British started three weeks ago.

Presence of German dive bombers on fields in France was not explained.

Another German plane, a lone bomber, was shot down off Scotland this evening.

Primary objectives of the day's raids were the shipyards of Le Trait on the Seine River near Rouen, and the railway yards at Hazebrouck.

German raiders attacked a British convoy off the northeast British coast. Several explosions were heard at sea and the sound of both Nazi and British aircraft.

British sources hailed this continuing offensive as the greatest in history. Indicative of its scope, the raid on the German Rhineland area around Cologne and on Ostend, Calais and Boulogne on the Channel coast ran the total of R. A. F. attacks up to about 140 since Russia and Germany went to war June 22.

For example, Cologne, where large fires were set Thursday, has been raided 13 times in three weeks; Duesseldorf 11 times, and Bremen 9.

Not counting today, the British placed their own losses since June 22 at 202 planes—87 fighters and 115 bombers—all over German and occupied territory.

Vichy Leaves Truce in Syria To Chief There

Rejects British Terms; To Let Dentz Decide When to End War

By the Associated Press

Vichy, July 11.—Vichy rejected British armistice terms tonight and indicated that the war would continue in the Levant as long as Gen. Henri Dentz feels like fighting.

Gen. Dentz, commander of Vichy forces in the league-mandated lands, however, virtually was authorized to strike his own bargain with the British and the De Gaullists when he deems it finally necessary to end the unequal struggle.

It was reported possible that new efforts, involving the United States, might be made soon to reach a peace. The news agency Telemondial, referring to the desire of both the United States and the Holy See for peace in Syria, said that "it is not impossible that new efforts will be made with a view toward stopping the hostilities."

Military reports said the British were met everywhere "by the obstinate resistance of our troops, which at certain points successfully made counterattacks and sudden charges."

[A dispatch from Ankara quoted from British sources a report that German air transports had landed Vichy reinforcements at Aleppo, northern Syria, to help prolong the struggle.]

The armistice proposals, said the French, "seemed to have been edited precisely to prevent all possibility of eventual agreement on the points in question."

British demands included complete surrender of arms and warships, and other provisions which Vichy held would amount to recognition of the De Gaullist movement.

Draftees Soon May Be Back On Your Hands, Wives Warned

Post Puzzle Editor:

Dear Puz: I have some cheering news for the girls whose husbands have been drafted and who are worried about things.

It is my impression the service is not so hot about married men as it was when the selective draft went into effect.

This is because the service wants younger men with no ties and because the married men are applying with increasing frequency for discharges. Putting these requests through clutters up the Army bookkeeping and some of the military leaders are fed up with it.

The recent instructions of Gen. Lewis B. Hershey to state directors indicate that draft boards are to be much more lenient with pleas for deferment from married men than they were originally.

This is not to say that officers in the National Guard, and specialists in important jobs, are to be considered for discharge because they are married. But most of them are paid enough to make ends meet.

I am sure that a good many of the young women who are protesting their husbands' Army service are going to have the lads back on their hands again shortly.

And then they will probably write you asking if there isn't some way to get them back into the Army and out of their hair.

What a chump you are to go into this matter in the first place.

More Suggestions

Substance of two others of the numerous suggestions received yesterday:

E. G. M., 2009 Franklin Street Northeast.—How about drafting some of the men left behind to be a source of comfort to the girls that were left behind? After all, there must be any number of interesting men over 35. And then, of course, for the very young sweethearts, we have the boys not quite 21.

S. S., 3223 Northampon Court, Chevy Chase, D. C.—It's the Icelandic men who have the headache. They've had one for the past year. They had no chance at all with Canadian and British men on the island, and plenty of money to spend. What chance do they have against the cream of American youth? The only solution is for the Icelandic men and the American girls to form a union of equal exchange. Take it from me, girls, the Icelandic men are not so bad. I married one.

Vichy Strengthens Dakar Fearing U. S. Seizure of Base

By the Associated Press

Vichy, July 11.—Informed sources reported tonight that the Vichy French, uneasy at possible extension of United States control over Atlantic outposts, have repaired the damaged 35,000-ton battleship Richelieu and made her ready with other warships to bolster the strategic West African base of Kakar.

(Three cruisers also are at Dakar, with several destroyers.)

Land fortifications also have been strengthened.

The measures were said to have coincided with continuous reinforcement by the Portuguese of their Azores garrison.

French colonial authorities said flatly that they did not like the looks of possible further implications of the United States occupation of Iceland. They expressed conviction that American control of other Atlantic outposts would be a "big political mistake for the moment."

WHAT ABOUT THE WASHINGTON POLICE?

A policeman's lot, as the firm of Gilbert & Sullivan once remarked, is not a happy one. Never is it less happy than when three unsolved, front-page murders bring an official investigation down on the force. Robert DeVore does a little investigating of his own, points out some of the reasons why Washington's cops are not too happy, examines the sins with which the police force is charged, discovers that there's something to be said on the policemen's side, too. Before you pop off t-o-o much about what's wrong with our police, you might read this Sunday Post article.

All of this seemed of only casual interest a week ago; now, with American Marines in Iceland, it's highly appropriate for Sunday's Post to bring you a National Geographic map and article of this important, new outpost.

Knox Denies Navy Has Shot Or Convoyed

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Secretary of the Navy Knox yesterday denied "categorically" before the Senate Naval Affairs Committee that United States naval vessels have engaged in hostilities with German raiders or convoyed British ships.

Members of the committee, who asked that their names not be quoted, said Knox emphatically denied these charges during questioning of the Secretary and Admiral Stark, Chief of Naval Operations.

Some of the members said Knox, while denying combat, confirmed that a United States destroyer picking up survivors from a sunken British ship dropped depth bombs to warn away an approaching submarine.

Feared a Torpedo

Knox was understood to have said the destroyer's detecting device indicated approach of a submarine out of range of a depth bomb and the charge was dropped as a warning by officers who feared a torpedo.

Members were enjoined to strict secrecy on the executive proceedings, but Chairman Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, said the committee would make public next week a report on the hearing which would "clear up a lot of questions."

Knox and Stark were called to testify on the Wheeler resolution asking investigation of published reports that an attack was made on a German submarine by an American destroyer and that American naval vessels have convoyed British merchantmen in the Atlantic.

Order to Shoot Is Denied

For three hours Knox and Stark were questioned by a committee representing both isolationist and interventionist elements in the Senate.

Under fire from noninterventionists for his June 30 Boston speech urging action by the Navy to keep clear the Atlantic sea lanes, Knox denied there has been any "shooting" or that orders to "shoot" had been given the Navy, members said.

He is understood to have explained in detail the operation of the Atlantic patrol and the disposition of naval units but to have pledged members to secrecy on the positions of ships.

He stressed, it was said, the need to speed lend-lease supplies to Britain while Germany has her hands full with Russia and made it plain that the Navy intends to keep lanes open to Iceland for American and all friendly shipping.

Under questioning, he denied there was any contradiction in this and his antiwar testimony when his name came before the Senate for confirmation. He said he still wanted to keep the country out of war and believed the present defense strategy would best serve that purpose.

Other Testimony

Other statements attributed to the Secretary in addition to his denial of attacks or convoying by the Navy:

That no American merchantmen other than the Robin Moor have been sunk by the Axis.

That several American ships have been stopped by the Germans en route to African ports and their papers examind, but the vessels were allowed to proceed.

That a naval air base is being constructed in Northern Ireland by American contractors and workmen with lend-lease materials, but the base is being built for the British and is not intended for American use.

Knox discussed at length defense strategy in the occupation of Iceland. Some committee members expressed belief that the British should be asked to withdraw their troops as rapidly as possible from Iceland, so the United States would not be in the position of jointly occupying the island.

Lucas Expresses View

This view was said to have been expressed by Senator Lucas (Democrat), of Illinois, a consistent Administration supporter.

Senator Johnson (Republican), of California, led isolationist questioning on the Secretary's Boston speech, which brought from Knox restatement of his desire to keep out of the conflict.

Senators attending the session included Chairman Walsh, Senators Lucas, Bone, of Washington; Byrd, of Virginia; Russell, of Georgia; Tydings, of Maryland (Democrats), and Johnson, Brewster, of Maine, and Davis, of Pennsylvania (Republicans).

Walsh indicated his report on the hearing, expected to be made public Tuesday, would first be submitted to members of the committee for their individual approval and to Knox and Stark for elimination of a secret military nature.

Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, earlier charged that plans for pooling the United States and British fleets in the Atlantic "for some time" have been under discussion by officals of the two countries. Wheeler claimed to have reliable information that the Atlantic patrol would work in the North Atlantic while the British fleet protected the English Channel and the South Atlantic.

Wheeler called Prime Minister Churchill's call in the British Parliament for cooperation of the British and American navies a "trial balloon."

COURT NOW FILLED—President Roosevelt congratulates Robert Jackson, who was sworn in yesterday at the White House as Associate Justice of the Supreme Court. Present were Mary Jackson (left), the new jurist's daughter, and Mrs. Jackson. The Supreme bench is now filled with nine members for the first time in several months. It will be possible at the fall term to settle a half-dozen cases which encountered a 4-4 split court when there were but eight members

18 Axis Ships Formally Seized; Funds Asked to Build 566

President Roosevelt, in two decisive steps toward winning the Battle of the Atlantic, ordered 18 Axis vessels forfeited to the United States last night and called for an almost doubled program of merchant ship construction, in asking Congress for $3,323,000,000 more for the Navy and Maritime Commission.

At the President's direction, United States officials took over formally one German and 17 Italian vessels that had been under Coast Guard custody since discovery of sabtotage aboard them four months ago.

The additional funds were being asked now, Mr. Roosevelt said, because the United States defense program is ahead of schedule on practically every item, especially output of warships and merchant vessels.

Declining to predict what new taxes might be required to foot the bill, Mr. Roosevelt asked Congress for an additional $1,698,000,000 in cash and authorizations for the Maritime Commission, enough to build 566 ships, the commission said.

Now Has $1,715,000,000

The new request would be in addition to the $1,715,000,000 construction program that the commission already has under way.

The commission said that $1,246,650,000 of the money would pay for the 566 ships of various sizes, all of which would be completed in 1942 and 1943.

The Maritime Commission's present program calls for 705 vessels, of which 95 have been completed.

Of the remainder of the Maritime funds, $350,000,000 would be used for the requisition, purchase and repair of existing ships, either foreign or domestic, and the remainder for construction of 48 additional shipways and reconditioning yards.

The British government smoothed the way for seizure of the Axis ships yesterday by announcing that it has waived "the exercise of belligerent rights" concerning the Italian and German ships in American ports that have been requisitioned by the United States, so that they will not be seized. When they are repaired, the Maritime Commission will assign them either to private American operators or transfer some of them to British registry. A similar exemption was granted earlier for seized Danish ships.

The Maritime Commission said the newly asked funds would enable production of two merchant ships a day in 1942 and 1943, making a reality of President Roosevelt's promise of a "bridge of ships" to carry war supplies to the British Isles.

Aim at Two a Day

Production of ships when peak output is reached, some authorities said, would be great enough to match and even exceed the rate of German ship sinkings.

The President also asked Congress for $1,625,000,000 for the Navy.

The request included an item of $400,000,000 for maintenance and repair of defense installations on Government or private-owned merchant ships, but the President denied at a press conference that this money would be used to arm merchant ships. (The Neutrality Act forbids arming of merchant ships.)

The rest of the Navy request would be allocated as follows: Ordnance and ordnance stores, $249,000,000; pay, subsistence, clothing and medical care, $300,000,000; naval public works such as housing, $300,000,000; aviation, $90,000,000; Marine Corps, $90,000,000; repairs, $160,000,000.

The President declared that the enlarged scope of the Government's defense policy was not the cause for the increased requests for funds. That did not have a blessed thing to do with it, he said.

Mr. Roosevelt explained that the real reason was that the defense program, especially shipbuilding, was so far ahead of schedule that it was necessary to ask now for the money to continue the program rather than to wait until next January.

Asked if higher taxes would be necessary, the President passed off the question by saying that the Administration doesn't ask for a new tax bill every time it requests supplementary funds, that tax legislation is usually asked for only once a year.

The funds for naval repairs would provide for protecting some ships against magnetic mines, he said, indicating that merchant vessels and warships may be sent into war areas where the waters are mined.

The President's Day

By International News Service

COMMANDER IN CHIEF: An accute case of frustration broke out at 10:40 yesterday morning as the White House correspondents found themselves outsmarted,—outflanked and outwitted by the Old Master at his best. The President was bland, benign and quick on the trigger. The 100-odd newsharks primed for a spectacular story on the Irish bases—got only rows of figures already sent up to Congress.

Mr. Roosevelt's cigarette holder was stuck in his smile at the usual jaunty angle. His red plaid necktie gleamed in the smoke wreathing his handsome head, and the President was unequivocally Commander in Chief. One awkwardly put question regarding Ireland bases managed to struggle upward from the fog—and was neatly, precisely batted back by the President. Correspondents are still wondering what hit them.

UNLISTED: Into the White House Executive offices came George Backer, publisher of the New York Post. Watchers were aware of Backer but before they could pin him, Backer had slipped in and out again.

DONOVAN IN: Officially in at 11:04 was "Wild Bill" Donovan as coordinator of intelligence.

TRIALS AND TRIBULATIONS: The Red Cross' Norman Davis came to see the President, presumably to talk about the trials and tribulations of the Red Cross nurses who have been getting sunk en route to England—and bareheaded Vice President Henry Wallace rolled up in a long black limousine for lunch and talk of the trials and tribulations of being Vice President with a changeable, shifting Congress.

CABINET HOLD UP: The Presidential Cabinet filed into the Executive Office Cabinet room promptly at 2 p. m. for a session with the Chief which lasted for well over two hours. This held up the induction ceremonies of Supreme Court Justice Robert Jackson, formerly Attorney General . . . who was making his last appearance as a Cabinet member.

OLDEST, YOUNGEST: Before a gathering of some 65 New Deal wheelmen, Attorney Jackson took his oath of office with one hand on the first chapter of Deuteronomy, verses 16 and 17. A pleased and proud President told the assembly that the occasion was doubly pleasing to him because it marked the eightieth birthday of one of his oldest friends, Senator George Court Justice of one of his youngest friends, Bob Jackson. Senator Norris' elderly blue eyes twinkled. Harry Hopkins, Tommy Corcoran, Lowell Mellett, Justices Byrnes and Douglas and many other first-water Administrationists were there. Watching with interest also was Edgar Hoover.

Ulster Gives U. S. Laborers Big Welcome

Belfast, Northern Ireland, July 11.—United States technicians and laborers are in loyalist Northern Ireland, building what officials merely term "certain works."

Authorities in Belfast and London allowed the cabling of this much information today, along with the statement that the technicians and workers are direct employes of the British government.

Hence it may now be told that these men are the idols of Ulster, although it cannot be stated how long they have been here.

(It recently was announced that a New York contracting company, Merritt, Chapman and Scott, had been eployed by the British government to do construction work in the British Isles. British officials said then that it was a purely business deal between a private company and the British government.)

They Spend Freely

Belfast's bands are blaring "The Star Spangled Banner." The Americans reciprocate by spending money freely, sometimes handing out pound notes for tips under the impression that they are the equivalent of dollar bills (the pound is pegged at about $4).

They celebrated the Fourth of July with a mass excursion to neutral Dublin, capital of Eirie.

The meager official statements about these men were isued here and in London today after London afternoon papers had splashed on their front pages stories that a naval air base is being constructed by 400 American technicians. The papers datelined these stories "New York."

The London foreign office statement began, however, with the statement that reports of the establishment of an American air base in Northern Ireland "are not borne out by information available in London."

Won't Give Details

It went on: "Some technicians and laborers from the United States are engaged in connection with certain works that are proceeding in Northern Ireland. All these, however, are direct employes of the British government. They had entered into employment in exercise of their perfectly legal right to accept such occupation, and it is equally open to any other United States citizens who may desire to aid the British cause and to engage themselves to Britain."

A United States Embassy spokesman adde da little more, but not much, when he said: "There are American technicians engaged in work both in Great Britain and northern Ireland." He would not give details, nor would British officials.

Some persons mentioned the presence in Ulster of United States-built Catalina (Consolidated) flying boats, which were bought by Britain. Belfast officials generally declined to discuss the subject, although Finance Minister John Milne Barbour did say: "There is not the slightest doubt but that America would have an enthusiastic welcome in what Herbert Morrison (British home secretary) called a few days ago 'this ferociously loyal part of the British Isles.'" right in accepting such jobs.

Roosevelt Backs Ulster Base Work

Commenting later on Mr. Roosevelt's statements, Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, said he had been advised "by one of the men who went to Ireland to build a base" that the man was an employe of the Navy Department and "was not just an ordinary workman making a contract with the British government."

"In effect," Wheeler told reporters, "he was a member of the armed forces. He was ill, and did not want to go, but he was given no choice. While ostensibly he was to be attached to the American Embassy in London, he really was assigned to help build a base in Northern Ireland."

The foreign office was said to have added that reports of establishment of an American air base in Ulster "are not borne out by information available in London."

Asked about this, Mr. Roosevelt first asserted that any work being done there was either a purchase arrangement or a lend-lease operation.

Silent on Willkie Remarks

He said that he would not be surprised if, for instance, American steel were used in 50 British bases in such widely separated sites as North Ireland, Scotland and South Africa, and many other places.

He refused to comment, however, on a statement by Wendell L. Willkie shortly after a luncheon conference with the President in which the 1940 Republican Presidential candidate favored establishment of American bases in Northern Ireland and Scotland.

The President said that he had no doubt there were a great many American workingmen on jobs all over the world. And that, he said firmly, is perfectly legal.

Nazis Release 21 Ambulance Drivers to U. S.

By the Associated Press

After 86 days' captivity on a German raider at sea and in German-occupied France, 21 American ambulance drivers were released by the Germans today and will return to the United States on board the S. S. West Point on August 1.

All were en route to Africa to serve as ambulance drivers with the Free French forces, when their vessel, the Egyptian steamer Zamzam, was torpedoed and sunk in mid-Atlantic by a German raider on April 17.

Sumner Welles, Acting Secretary of State, announced that arrangements had been made for their release and repatriation after extended negotiations with the German government.

Welles added that negotiations were still in progress for release of two other Americans who were seriously wounded when the submarine shelled the Zamzam before it sank. They are Francis J. Vicovari, of New York City, coleader of the British-American ambulance group, and Ned Laughinghouse, a Wilson, N. C., tobacco man. They were taken aboard a German ship and, so far as is known, are still in a hospital on a German warship or raider. Other American passengers were released by the Germans after being landed in German-occupied France.

It was understood that during the German-American negotiations for the release of the drivers the entire question of the status of Americans in Germany, Italy and Nazi-occupied Europe and of Axis nationals in this country was reviewed. There were indications that an amicable arrangement had been reached, involving a virtual swap of certain nationals.

The United States had served implied warnings on Germany and Italy that unless Americans in the Axis and Axis-dominated countries were permitted to depart no Axis nationals here would be allowed to leave.

The ambulance drivers are to be transported to Lisbon where they will join with American consular officials, employes and their families who have been ordered out of Germany, Italy and Nazi-conquered countries. All are to sail on the West Point, formerly the liner America, on July 25, and are due in New York on August 1.

When the West Point sails from New York on July 15 it will carry an estimated 500 German and Italian consular officials and employes, employes of the Nazi and Fascist official organizations, and their families, who have been ordered to leave the United States by President Roosevelt. In addition the West Point is expected to carry several other Axis nationals given permission to leave.

The ambulance drivers to be returned are:

George Butcher, Chula Vista, Calif.; Michael Clark, New York, N. Y.; Ray Colcord, jr., Tulsa, Okla.; James W. Crudgington, Carmel, Calif.; William A. Davidson, Worchester, Mass.; Henry Emsheimer, New York, N. Y.; Philip N. Faversham, Concord, Mass.; George C. Finneran, Rye, N. Y.; Thomas O. Greenough, Staunton, Va.; Raymond Haviland, St. Louis, Mo.; Frederick W. Hoeing, Rochester, N. Y.; Arthur T. Jeffress, California; Donald King, Chevy Chase, Md.; Arthur Krida, jr., South Kent, Conn.; John Morris, New York, N. Y.; Arthur Mueller, Butte, Mont.; Robert Lewis Redgate, Rye, N. Y.; John W. Ryan, Newton, Mass.; James W. Stewart, Oneonta, N. Y.; George O. Ticheoner, East Orange, N. J.; William A. Wydenbruck-Loe, New York, N. Y.

attacks, was said to have heaped havoc upon Russian communications and rear line centers.

The Moscow-Leningrad and the Zitomir-Kiev railroads were said to have been broken at several points, thus disrupting vital Soviet troop and supply movements.

A heavy bombardment by German planes of 31 Russian munitions trains, most of which were wrecked or derailed, near Smolensk, and "destructive" raids on enemy mechanized columns that destroyed 375 trucks also were claimed by D. N. B.

On the far northern front the Luftwaffe was said to be carrying out heavy attacks against Soviet defenses, troops and shipping, and D. N. B. reported several Russian artillery pieces destroyed on Fishers Peninsula near Murmansk.

A Soviet merchant ship of 1,500 tons was sunk in Motowski Bay, south of the Fishers Peninsula, it was added, and a ship of 4,000 tons was so badly damaged that "its loss must be reckoned."

A German torpedo boat, raiding Soviet waters in the Baltic, sank a Soviet freighter of 3,500 tons, loaded with provisions and war materials, the official agency said.

Finns Report Small Gains

Helsinki, July 11 (AP).—The Finnish army, reporting further advances into Russian territory, stated today that the Russians were carrying out Joseph Stalin's scorched-earth policy and attempting to destroy all dwellings as they withdrew.

Despite these attempts, the Finnish military communique stated, several villages have fallen to the Finns undamaged.

Husband Calls Her 'Draft Bride'

Scion of a wealthy St. Louis family, Marshall made the statement in a deposition filed in a divorce suit against his wife, whom he married in Las Vegas last October. "She said I ought to get out of the draft that way," Marshall's deposition stated. "I thought getting married without sufficient funds was worse than being drafted"

U. S. Armada Biggest Iceland Had Ever Seen

By the Associated Press

Reykjavik, Iceland, July 11.—Icelanders and the British garrison which has been here since May, 1940, caught their breaths today and agreed unanimously that they had witnessed history in the making—the arrival four days ago of United States forces.

On July 5 rumors first went around Reykjavik that the Americans were coming. The rumors drew no response for two days.

Then, at 5 p. m. on July 7, a mighty convoy of warships, transports and planes appeared on the horizon. It was the largest body of ships this ancient island ever had seen, and crowds quickly collected along shore to stare and comment.

Americans with beaming faces crowded the ships' rails to shout cheerfully down at the watchers ashore.

Excitement ran through the British and they eagerly waited for a glimpse of the American equipment.

Monday night, however, the Americans remained on their ships.

On Tuesday morning, a British general with a guard of honor and a military band greeted the American general as he came ashore.

Debarkation started at once, the Americans going about it in a strictly businesslike style.

Within an hour after the generals had clasped hands, the Americans were driving big trucks down the streets.

British troops gathered to watch, all agreeing that the impression made by the Americans could not have been better.

The Americans moved to prepare quarters and took no time out for fraternizing until the day's work was done.

Then the two forces met informally in camps, canteens, offices, on the streets—anywhere that chance brought an American and a Briton face to face.

Both sides were self-contained, demonstrating no emotions, but the British commented with interest on the number of Americans who wore badges for superior marksmanship.

Now British soldiers can be seen guiding Americans through the shops or teaching them the scraps of Icelandic speech they have acquired.

In some instances, military etiquette has been relaxed sufficiently that officers of the two forces, on exchanging salutes, grin broadly.

U. S. Volunteer Killed

Albuquerque, N. Mex., July 11 (AP).—Sergt. Marion Plomteaux, 24, American volunteer with the Royal Canadian Air Force, was killed in an airplane accident in England, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred V. Plomteaux, of Albuquerque, were notified today.

Gen. Marshall, Stimson Talk With Rayburn

Secretary of War Stimson and Gen. George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, conferred with Speaker Rayburn for more than an hour yesterday but Rayburn declined comment following the meeting.

The Speaker recently at a press conference opposed extension of the services of selectees beyond a year, but offered no objection to extension of National Guard service.

Both provisions have since been incorporated in a War Department bill repealing all restrictions on the size, use and tenure of service in the Army. The bill was introduced in the Senate Thursday at Marshall's request by Chairman Reynolds of the Senate Military Committee. No companion bill has been introduced in the House.

Stimson and Marshall called at Rayburn's office after testifying before an Appropriations Subcommittee for the $4,770,000,000 appropriation for the Army, requested by the President on Thursday. Naval officials wil lappear before the subcommittee next week on the $3,323,000,000 estimate asked yesterday for the Navy and Maritime Commission.

Representative Wadsworth (Republican), of New York, who cosponsored the first Selective Service Act, told reporters he would not introduce the new conscription bill "because it should be handled through the regular Military Affairs Committee channels." Chairman May of the Military Affairs Committee was out of town.

strengthening defenses at Dakar against a threat of American occupation.

Modern long-range coastal batteries have been installed, they said, and newly constructed airports ringing the town provide bases for an estimated 200 planes.

However, the observers reported the garrison of several thousand troops, most of them natives, is badly disciplined and not enthusiastic about fighting.

German experts are said to be giving technical advice on the fortification of Dakar and other bases in French Africa.

Meanwhile, Portugal is determined on her part to keep the Azores, similarly of strategic importance in the Atlantic, neutral in this war. United States occupation of Iceland has drawn attention anew to the situation of these islands.

Two developments indicate Portugal's watchfulness over her Atlantic island:

1. Another contingent of troops sailed for the Azores. It was the second to go in two days, the fourth in three months and one of the largest dispatched there so far.

2. Plans were announced for Gen. Oscar de Fragosa Carmona, President of Portugal, to leave July 20 on a one-month tour of the strategic island group.

Portugal protested to the United States after President Roosevelt, in his May 27 fireside chat, mentioned the Azores as a potential foothold for German operations.

7,209-Ton Nazi Ship Captured by British

London, July 11 (AP).—British naval forces have intercepted the 7,209-ton German ship Hermes en route from Rio de Janeiro to Hamburg, the admiralty announced today.

A communique said:

"The German ship Hermes has been intercepted. Her captain, officers and crew have been taken prisoners. The Hermes left Rio de Janeiro June 28 in an attempt to reach Hamburg."

Gen. Drum Visits 29th At A. P. Hill

By Marshall Andrews
Post Staff Writer

Bowling Green, Va., July 11.—Troops of the Twenty-ninth Division during Second Corps maneuvers October 6 to November 1, will be camped between Rockingham, N. C., and Sheraw, S. C., Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, division commander, said tody after conferring here with Lieut. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, commanding the First Army.

Gen. Drum, flying down from New York to Quantico, Va., paid the A. P. Hill Military Reservation a quick visit of inspection, his second this week. Monday he was here for a few hours to inspect the area's water supply and distribution.

Sweating soldiers, boring through the dense Caroline County woods in search of hypothetical enemies were dumfounded when the most imposing collection of rank seen in these parts since Lee and his generals were hereabouts suddenly confronted them in the thickets. With Gen. Drum were Maj. Gen. Henry C. Pratt, commanding the Second Corps; Gen. Reckord, Brig. Gen. George M. Alexander, of Lynchburg, commanding the Eighty-eighth Infantry Brigade, and Brig. Gen. William H. Sands, commanding the Fifty-fourth Field Artillery Brigade.

Talks With Troops

Going directly to the troops themselves to learn how their training is progressing, Gen. Drum went back into the wilderness where the 176th Combat Team and the 116th Combat Team today were engaged in tactical exercises, the 176th working out a problem in defense, the 116th a problem in attack.

When he found a machine-gun crew huddled over its weapon under a canopy of leaves for camouflage, Gen. Drum asked the men themselves and their noncommissioned officers what they were there to do. Why is this gun here instead of somewhere else? Where is the enemy? Where is your battalion command post? What would you do if you had to move back in a hurry? Or move ahead?

General Is Impressed

"They all knew what they were doing and why," Drum said afterward, "I was impressed by the bright young kids I saw and how fine and hard and fit everybody looked.

"They tell me many of those men come from the same country that gave Stonewall Jackson his infantry. I believe it."

Tomorrow at 4:30 p. m. the Eighty-eighth Brigade will pass in review before Gov. James C. Price of Virginia and other notables. The review will be held in a large field at the junction of United States Highway 17 and county road No. 614 near Rappahannock Academy.

Monday at 10 a. m. the 116th and 176th combat teams will be turned loose against each other in a "free" maneuver, in which each commander is left to solve his difficulties without a prearranged plan. The 116th is commanded by Col. E. W. Opie, of Staunton, and the 176th by Col. Edwin P. Conquest, of Richmond. Each Infantry regiment is supported by a battalion of the 111th Field Artillery, commanded by Col. E. Sclater Montague, of Norfolk.

Unit Reaches Ritchie

Cascade, Md., July 11 (AP).—Forty-six soldiers from Edgewood Arsenal, Md., rolled into Camp Ritchie by truck today, the first contingent to spend a week in outdoor sports at the reservation.

Another 100 are due from Fort George G. Meade, Md., tomorrow to help usher in the series of summer weekend programs. Facilities are being prepared to care for 1,000 men each week.

The 46 men from Edgewood, commanded by Lieut S. . Simmons, are from the first chemical warfare service battalion and training battalion. They were issued bedding and assigned to tents, five men to a tent.

Ritchie is being made a camp for tired soldiers. It offers swimming, boating, baseball, and other outdoor sports. The men are free to leave camp to go to nearby towns. A trop to the Gettysburg Battlefield is scheduled tomorrow.

Musicales Planned

Fort George G. Meade, Md., July 11 (AP).—The folks back home will be treated to music by the new 115th Infantry band and choir. The band and 25-voice choir, now being organized, will go on road tours to present concerts at the 18 Maryland home stations of regimental companies, Col. D. John Markey, regional commander, said today.

The visits to nearby home stations can be made after training hours, and road tours are being considered for visits to Eastern Shore and western Maryland towns.

Private Barr Cannon, a Pittsburgh (Pa.) selectee, who managed and sang in the Bucknell University men's choir, will direct the regiment choir, and Warrant Officer D. O. Fisher the band.

Masson Shifted

Frederick, Md., July 11 (AP).—Maj. Charles A. Masson, commander of the 104th Observation Squadron, has been assigned as acting divisional air officer of the Twenty-ninth Division at Fort George G. Meade, squadron headquarters said today.

Capt. Edwin Archibald, who commanded the squadron while Maj. Masson was at Fort Leavenworth, Kans., for an advanced training course, continues in command during Masson's absence, headquarters added.

Scouts Aid Defense In Prince Georges

The Prince Georges County division of the Boy Scouts will make a house-to-house canvas in Prince Georges for metals that can be used under the national defense program, it was announced yesterday.

Collections will be made during the period from July 21 to August 31. Tin, aluminum, copper, rubber tires and tubes will be collected.

The metal will be turned over to P. E. Clark, county agricultural agent, who is the Prince Georges representative of the National Defense Committee.

Any metal or other materials which cannot be used by defense industries will be sold by the Scouts and the money used to retire a debt on the Boy Scout Summer Camp at Greenbelt.

More than 1,800 men throughout Maryland are taking advanced defense training courses under the supervision of S. S. Steinberg, dean of the college of engineering at the University of Maryland. At College Park, nerve center of the program, classes are being held night and day to qualify men for jobs in the airplane industry.

A total of 20 courses are being given in the State at Baltimore Polytechnic Institute, Hagerstown High School, Fort Meade and College Park. Courses taught include aeronautical drafting, aircraft design, aircraft tool enginering and inspection, radio engineering and engineering drawing.

The more difficult courses, such as the metallurgy of iron and steel, are given in the university's aircraft testing laboratories at College Park. During the day 120 men from throughout the eastern section of the United States are being prepared for jobs as aircraft material inspectors. At night 30 men from the ordnance department of the Army in Washington and a like number from the Washington Navy Yard, are attending classes in metal work. The courses last from six to ten weeks.

According to Dean Steinberg, work in all courses is of college grade. The advanced training is independent of the network of machinists courses set up in the public schools of Maryland by the Federal Government. All the men being trained by the university will be employed as specialists.

Steinberg was recently appointed by the Government as regional adviser for engineering defense training in Maryland and the District of Columbia. In addition to the extensive training courses being offered by the University of Maryland, training centers have been created by Dean Steinberg at Johns Hopkins, George Washington, Catholic and Howard universities. Although high school graduates are accepted for all courses, college students representing 179 colleges in 40 States, the District of Columbia and 3 foreign countries have enrolled in Steinberg's district.

The dean stated yesterday the aircraft and radio industries are absorbing men as fast as the defense courses can train them. "More than 75,000 men are being trained throughout the country, and industry is calling for still more," he said.

Seletcive Service officials are granting deferments to defense students, Dean Steinberg said. The training is paid for by the Federal Government.

Mt. Rainier Congregations Plan Community Vespers

Mount Rainier Protestant congregations will sponsor a community vesper service tomorrow at 6:30 p. m. on the lawn of Mount Rainier Methodist Church. The Rev. C. Randolph Mengers, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, will be guest speaker.

The Rev. George W. BonDurant, professor of New Testament at Atlanta (Ga.) Christian College, will preach tomorrow at 10:45 a. m. at Mount Rainier Christian Church on the theme of "Justification."

The congregation of St. Luke Evangelical Lutheran Church is now meeting in the Silver Theater on the Colesville Road, Silver Spring, where the Rev. Frederick J. Eckert will preach tomorrow at 11 a. m. on "The Marks of True Discipleship."

"The Spur of Memory" has been announced as the sermon theme of the Rev. James S. Albertson tomorrow at 11 a. m. at Bethesda Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. J. Raymond Nelson, pastor of Bethesda First Baptist Church, tomorrow at 8 p. m. will open a sermon series on the general theme of "Divine Insight Into Human Needs," with his initial topic being "The Need for Sustenance."

Guest preacher tomorrow at 11 a. m. at Bethesda Methodist Church will be the Rev. Marion Michael, son of Dr. Walter M. Michael, pastor of Eldbrooke Methodist Church, Washington.

Mount View Sunday School will hold its annual picnic this afternoon in Johnsons Grove, near Purdum, Md. Music will be furnished by the Poolesville Band. Supper will be served from 4 to 8 p. m.

Mrs. M. Helen Johnson, head of the Gough Street Mission of Baltimore, with a group of her students, will be guests tomorrow at 11 a. m. at the Community Baptist Church of Glen Echo.

Virginia Services

The congregation of Cherrydale Baptist Church tomorrow at 11 a. m. will ope na children's junior church in charge of Miss Dorothy Otten, Moody Bible Institute graduate. The church will be for children up to 13 yers old. The Rev. W. H. Brown, pastor, will address the regular 11 o'clock services tomorrow on "God's reat Mercy" and also will preach at 8 p. m.

Dr. Lee A. Peeler, pastor of the Arlington Mission of the Evangelical and Reformed Church, will speak tomorrow at 11 a. m. on "Hearing With Heed." Services are being held temporarily in the Jate Waller Barrett School, 4400 North Henderson Road.

Continuing his sermon series on "Guide Posts for Today," Dr. Alton B. Altfather, pastor of Falls Church Presbyterian Church, will preach tomorrow at 11 a. m. on "A Still Small Voice—VIII."

Dr. Roy H. Price, field representative of Ferrum (Va.), Junior College, will address joint services of all churches of the Fairfax Methodist Circuit tomorrow at 8 p. m. at Annandale Methodist Church.

Other services of the Fairfax Charge will include church school, 10 a. m.; preaching 11 a. m., and youth meeting, 7:30 p. m., at Fairfax; church school, 10:30 a. m., at Burke, Va. The Burke preaching service time has been changed from 3:30 p. m. to 9:30 a. m.

Dr. J. A. Chapman, president of Ferrum Junion College, will be guest speaker tomorrow at 11 a. m. at Arlington Methodist Church.

Income Taxes to Pack More Wallop Than Many Anticipate

By the Associated Press

Treasury experts, giving a thought to the many State taxes, warned yesterday that the job of next year's income taxes is going to be heavier than many people anticipated.

For instance, assuming enactment of the new Federal income tax program along the lines planned by the House Ways and Means Committee, a married man with one child and a $10,000 taxable income will owe Uncle Sam $1,116.

A person living in the District of Columbia would have to add $82 for the District income tax and his total would be $1,198. Under the present law, a District resident, married, is exempt if earning $2,500 while an additional $400 is allowed fo ra child.

But if this man lived in New York, he would have to add on about $260 for the New York income tax, and his total for income taxes would be $1,376. In California, he'd add $92, in Missouri $165 and in North Carolina $348.

These figures are not necessarily typical, but 31 States have individual income taxes similar to the Federal levy. Besides income taxes, of course, both State and Federal Government have a multiplicity of tobacco, liquor, sales, estate and other taxes.

One reason the State income taxes will make a heavy addition to the Federal tax in many cases is that some States do not permit their citizens to make deductions for their Federal taxes, although the Federal Government gives a credit for State income taxes. Of the four States used as examples in this article, only Missouri gives a credit for Federal income tax.

The State income taxes weigh more or less heavily, depending on income brackets. Thus, the New York tax has a maximum rate of 7 per cent, while the California tax runs up to a maximum of 15 per cent.

But in California, the tax on the first $5,000 of income is only 1 per cent, while in North Carolina the rate on the first $2,000 is 3 per cent.

At present the proposed Federal income tax would be a 4 per cent "normal" tax, plus an immediate "surtax" of from 5 to 75 per cent, plus a defense tax equal to 10 per cent of the normal and surtax rates.

If the examples were tested on a married man wih one child and an income of only $2,500, his Federal tax would be $5.50, plus State taxes of $3 in Missouri and $9 in North Carolina. His personal and family exemptions would be enough to escape the New York and California taxes.

Nazis Ban Bastille Parade

Paris, German Occupied France, July 9 (via Berlin, delayed) (AP).—"Bastille Day," the celebration of the birth of the former French republic, will remain a legal holiday this July 14, but German occupation authorities have canceled plans for a French parade.

Fairfax to Open Bids on School Jobs July 22

The Fairfax County School Board will meet at the office of Superintendent W. T. Woodson at the courthouse at 10:30 a. m. July 22, to receive and open bids for construction of a six-room addition to the Mount Vernon High School, home economics cottage for Mount Vernon School, additions to Herndon High School and Fairfax High School, a new building for Lincolnia, and an addition to Gum Springs School.

Plans and specifications can be obtained either from the office of the superintendent or at the office of division of school buildings at Richmond.

and Novograd Volynski—where the German drives were declared checked.

[The Turkish radio at Ankara broadcast reports from Moscow that 8,000,000 additional Soviet troops, recently mobilized, are rapidly moving into the war fronts.]

A statement that "the Germans at certain points used poisonous substances" was made by Foreign Commissar S. A. Lozovsky. He told a press conference that Russia had "not yet replied with the same weapons."

Real Battle Just Beginning

Expressing belief that the next two or three weeks would clarify the situation, he said, "The real war is only beginning."

Germany is bringing troops from France, the Balkans and other conquered regions to muster all men available for the "final effort," Lozovsky asserted.

Lozovsky dismissed as "a myth" German claims to have taken more than 300,000 Russian prisoners in a pocket at Minsk and Bialystok and said that the Germans themselves had lost far more than a million men in the first 20 days of the war.

German radio messages intercepted here also show the Nazi advance forces are running out of gasoline, he said.

The Russian rivers appeared to be playing a major part in blocking German plans, just as the English Channel protected Britain from invasion. The Dvina in the north, the Dnepr in the center and the Dnestr in the south stood as obstacles to further German penetration.

Scrap Collecting To Free Aluminum For 2,000 Planes

The Nation-wide scrap aluminum collection campaign, to begin July 21, is expected to supply a minimum of 15,000,000 net pounds of aluminum usable in defense, freeing an amount sufficient to build more than 2,000 additional fighting planes or 500 additional four-engine bombers, the OPM estimated yesterday.

Robert E. McConnell, head of the OPM conservation unit, explained that while only part of the coffee pots and frying pans which housewives donate can be used directly in aircraft manufacture, all the rest can go into other defense needs. In the latter process, McConnell added, equivalent amounts of virgin metal will be freed for airplane purposes.

The OPM said that a fighter plane containing 7,000 pounds of aluminum could be built with the metal freed by every donation of 5,000 dishpans, or 10,000 coffee percolators, or 2,000 roasters, or 2,500 double boilers.

Nazi Ace Forced To Land in Kent

London, July 11 (AP).—Capt. Rolf Peter Pingel, one of Germany's crack fighter pilots, made a forced landing in Kent, southeast England, last evening after action with a heavy British bomber, it was learned tonight.

Capt. Pingel, who was piloting one of Germany's latest high altitude Messerschmitts, is reported to have claimed shooting down 22 British planes. His plane was practically intact.

Montgomery Aluminum Aides Listed

Alfred D. Noyes, Montgomery County chairman of the defense aluminum collection campaign, last night announced names of members of the executive committee of the county group.

Those named are: Albert A. Ady, editor of the Montgomery County Sentinel at Rockville; Fire Chief A. J. Bargagni, Bethesda; Mrs. Julian Hall, member of the county school board, of Poolesville; Mrs. Thomas Stewart, of Laytonsville; former Mayor H. T. McCuen of Glen Echo; Joseph B. Simpson, jr., of Takoma Park; Raoul Blumberg, promotion manager of The Post, Chevy Chase; Mayor William McBain, Gaithersburg; Phillip J. Austensen, president of the Allied Civic Groups of Silver Spring.

Local chairmen will be announced within the next several days for each community in the county, Noyes said.

Chairman Noyes said receiving stations were being provided throughout the country to receive all aluminum material donated by citizens willing to sacrifice for national defense. The aluminum is needed particularly in manufacture of airplanes.

A house to house canvass will be made of the tntire county and in suburban communities block chairmen will be named to visit every person on their block to sell the idea of donating aluminum pots and pans and other articles to the campaign and to arrange for collection of the articles.

No person connected with the campaign receives any compensation, Noyes stressed. The work is entirely voluntary and even materials and advertising matter used are donated.

Pet Show to Be Held Tuesday in Takoma

A pet show will be held Tuesday at 3 p. m. in the North Takoma playground, New York and Buffalo Avenues, as the first of a series of special events planned for the municipal playgrounds this summer.

Prizes will be awarded for the smallest, the largest, the most handsome and the most unusual pets, J. Crescent Bride, supervisor, announced. A similar show will be held Thursday, July 17, at the Philadelphia Avenue playground. All children residing in Takoma Park are eligible to enter the show.

Trade Board Stages Dance in Silver Spring

Approximately 200 members of the Silver Spring Board of Trade attended the group's first annual dance and floor show held last night at the Indian Spring Golf Club, Colesville Road. Lewis Hopfenmaie was chairman of arrangements.

Miss Jean McCandlish, who won the title of "Miss Silver Spring" in a popularity contest as the Board of Trade contestant recently, was the guest of honor.

Teacher Found Guilty of Perjury In N. Y. Red Quiz

New York, July 11 (AP).—An aftermath of New York City's campaign to purge its municipal college faculties of Communists resulted today in an 18-month to 2-year prison term for Morris U. Schappes, Russian-born English tutor and former Communist, convicted of perjury.

The 34-year-old teacher at the College of the City of New York was charged with testifying falsely before a legislative committee investigating subversive activities ni the city school system.

One of at least 86 faculty members of the four city colleges accused or suspected of communistic activity, he was the only one to face criminal action as the result of the committee's inquiry.

Most of the others await trial before the board of higher education's special conduct committee.

Prince Georges Suffers Lack Of Teachers

Being the little fish next to the big fish is pretty tough, Nicholas Orem, superintendent of Prince Georges County (Md.) Schools, mused yesterday. He had just received a report that several of his best elementary teachers were leaving for more pay in Washington.

"I've always heard that the big fish eats the smaller fish," Superintendent Orem sighed philosophically "but it's pretty tough being the little fish. Guess I'll have to start looking for minnows."

More than 50 vacancies have occurred in the elementary teaching staff of the county, and while a number of the places have been filled, there still remain more than a score of posts vacant.

High school teachers, however, are not as scarce as elementary school instructors. Superintendent Orem said that he believes this is true because until recently high school teachers received more pay than those in the elementary departments.

Meanwhile, the Prince Georges County superintendent is investigating a publicity release which was sent to Washington and county newspapers stating that Principal T. S. Klein of the Surrattsville High School is leaving for a new post in Frederick, Md.

Orem and Klein both were disturbed by the published report and both denied that they had ever heard of such a move until they read it in a county paper. The story is without foundation, they declared.

Postoffice inspectors are expected to take up the trail of the writer of the announcement, which was well written and mimeographed, andin one instance was signed with the name of the principal's wife, who says she did not sign it.

Group to Survey Library Facilities

Joseph Blandford, of Brandywine, has been appointed chairman of a committe of the Prince Georges County Community Council, which will make a survey of the need for better library facilities for the county, especially in rural areas.

Members of the committee are Mrs. John Burton, Forestville; Mrs. H. B. Mayhew, Hyattsville; Miss Sarah Blandford, Clinton; Dr. H. J. Patterson, College Park; Miss Ethel Regan, home demonstration agent, and P. E. Clark, county agricultural agent, both of the University of Maryland extension service.

A traveling library, known as a bookmobile, is being considered for the county. The bookmobile will be discussed at a public meeting scheduled by the committee for September 18 at the Bladensburg Fire House.

Whiteford to Lead Red Cross Drive

H. Clay Whiteford, manager of the Suburban Gas Co., Hyattsville, Md., will be Red Cross roll chairman for Prince Georges County, Md., John R. Fletcher, county chairman, announced yesterday.

Whiteford is a former president of the Prince Georges County Chamber of Commerce and has been active in civic affairs in Hyattsville and the county. Other committee members will be announced at a later date.

A first-aid class will be held Wednesday at 1:30 p. m. at the Cheverly American Legion Home. Mrs. Paul E. Nystrom will teach the class. Those interested may enroll for the class at Red Cross headquarters in the Professional Building, Hyattsville.

Donovan Made Coordinator Of U. S. Intelligence Services

Col. William J. Donovan, wartime commander of the "Fighting Sixty-ninth," received his World War II assignment yesterday—to coordinate this country's counter-espionage services.

President Roosevelt appointed the "Wild Bill" Donovan of Western Front fame to be coordinator of information. Senate confirmation is not necessary.

The President said that Donovan would collect and assemble data on "national security" from the various Government agencies, and analyze and collate this material for the use of the President and other top officials.

Making it clear that Donovan would be a liaison man, but not in actual command of intelligence work, the President said:

"Mr. Donovan's task will be to coordinate and correlate defense information, but his work is not intended to supersede or duplicate, or to involve any direction of or interference with, the activities of the General Staff, the regular intelligence services, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, or of other existing departments and agencies."

Donovan's latest preparation for this assignment was a 30,000-mile whirlwind tour of battle areas in Europe, Africa and Asia Minor, on a confidential mission for Navy Secretary Knox.

The Buffalo soldier-lawyer's new task, it is said, is likely to become of key importance in helping the White House in its publicly announced policy of "beating Hitler to the draw."

British Consul Seeks To Register Subjects

Baltimore, July 11 (AP).—Capt. John W. Taylor, British consul, announced today he was compiling a list of all British subjects in Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and North Carolina who would be prepared, if necessary, to return to England for Army service.

Taylor called upon all Britons in the four States to send him their names and addresses. The consulate is located in the Gillet Building here.

ARCADE-SUNSHINE

The Arcade-Sunshine Laundry which has served the people of this community for more than 35 years regrets the temporary interruption of their efficient service to its customers because of a strike by certain of its employes called without notice or warning during negotiations with the Union.

Every effort was made by the Company to prevent this strike. It requested the Union to have an election held by the National Labor Relations Board to determine whether or not the Union represents a majority of the employes. During the strike it has repeatedly requested that this election be held.

In the interest of the community and for the protection of the majority of our employes now working in the plant, we have limited the volume of work and we are operating as best we can in this situation. Negotiations are still being carried on and we hope in the very near future to be able to operate at full capacity and serve you again in the same manner as we have for so many years.

"THE NINETY AND NINE"
— — — ELIZABETH C. CLEPHANE — — —

There were ninety and nine that safely lay
In the shelter of the fold;
But one was out on the hills away,
Far off from the gates of gold.
Away on the mountains wild and bare,
Away from the tender Shepherd's care.

The first six lines of this great hymn were inspired by the situation of the lost sheep in the parable. And after describing the Shepherd's tireless search, the hymn reaches its climax at the great rejoicing when the lost sheep is found.

Two New Programs Arranged For Entertaining Service Men

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Church Editor

Churches' plans to provide weekend social and recreational activities for service men gained momentum this week, as several new projects were announced and others continue.

The National Catholic Community Service Club, through its director, the Rev. Thomas Dade, disclosed plans for weekly dances for uniformed men of all faiths beginning tonight at 8 at the Knights of Columbus Hall, 920 Tenth Street Northwest.

Father Dade pointed out that a number of the 500 girls who have signed up as hostesses will be called each week.

The service men will be invited to use the clubroom facilities, including the writing desks and equipment. A combination radio and recording machine also will be available. The latter is expected to be kept busy with recordings to be sent home to "dad" and "mom."

Freund's Singers and the WPA "little symphony orchestra" will present a program for service men tonight at 8 o'clock in Mount Vernon Park, Ninth Street and Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, under the sponsorship of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church.

In preparation for programs for service men, the parish hall of St. John's Episcopal Church, Lafayette Square, has just been renovated. A detailed announcement of the plans will be made during the coming week, it was said yesterday at the church office.

It was learned yesterday that several church young people's organizations are making plans for service men's entertainment. More about that later.

Cancellation Club Will Meet Tuesday

The Cancellation Club of St. Stephen's Lutheran Church will hold its monthly meeting Tuesday at 8 p. m. in the church basement, 1611 Brentwood Road Northeast.

A summer outing will be held on July 19, at the home of Mrs. Frank Wallace at Wagner Point, just beyond Shadyside, Md. Members of the church and their friends are invited.

Brotherhood to Meet

The Men's Brotherhood of Atonement Lutheran Church, North Capitol Street and Rhode Island Avenue, will meet Monday evening at 8 p. m. at the home of Prof. H. Emerson Myers. All men are invited to attend.

Classes to Picnic

The adult classes of Francis Asbury Methodist Church will have a picnic today from 4 to 9 p. m. at Grove 12 in Rock Creek Park.

Convention Attracts Many From District

More than 400 local Christian Endeavorers today and tomorrow will join with several thousand other young people in the climaxing features of the Sixtieth Anniversary Convention of the International Christian Endeavor at Atlantic City.

Blackwelder

This morning they will hear Dr. Oscar F. Blackwelder, president of the Washington Federation of Churches and pastor of Reformation Lutheran Church, bring a quiet hour message.

This afternoon they will march close to the head of the spectacular convention parade on the boardwalk—a reward for winning third place in registration quotas.

Of the Washington delegates, 253 are from the District of Columbia Christian Endeavor (white) Union and 158 from the Golden Rule (colored) Union.

James Richards, of Covenant-First Presbyterian Church, is president of the District Endeavorers, and Elphonzo W. Freeman, of the Golden Rule group.

Among a few other local personalities attending are Mrs. C. C. Dr. Auhagen Goes to Jail As Nazi Agent

Handcuffed and dejected, Dr. Frederich Ernst Auhagen, recently a successful writer and speaker, was led out of the District Court yesterday to serve 8 to 24 months in prison for circulating Nazi propaganda without registering himself as a foreign agent. He was also fined $1,000.

The tall German scholar stood tense and speechless before Federal Judge Charles G. Briggle while five women and seven men announced their verdict against him. The jurors found that Dr. Auhagen was a propaganda agent of the Reich and also of Dr. C. Kurt Johannsen, Hamburg Germany.

Defense Counsel Alfred S. Holmes, New York, moved to arrest judgment, contending that there were technical flaws in the indictment. After hearing Holmes' at length, Judge Briggle overruled this motion. Also denied was Holmes' motion for a new trial, upon the claim that the evidence was insufficient.

Reviews His Career

As he announced his "ruling, Judge Briggle adverted briefly to Auhagen's career, as it was told from the witness stand. Trained as a mining engineer in his native country, Auhagen worked his way to America in 1923 and was a laborer here before resuming university studies which earned him a doctor's degree nd a lecturer's appointment at Columbi University.

Witho the advent of the Hitler regime, Dr. Auhagen became an American apologist for the Third Reich and acquired contacts in Berlin. He presented "the German viewpoint" before the Foreign Policy Association, the Town Hall of the Air and other organizations.

Assistant Attorneys General George A. McNulty and Albert E. Arent showed that Auhagen obtained subsidies from Germany. The American Fellowship Forum which he founded was depicted as a propaganda agency which assembled a mailing list of 200,000 names and directed an appeal to German-born Americans.

Holds Trial Fair

Judge Briggle remarked that every effort had been made to assure Auhagen a fair trial in the American manner, eliminating every vestige of prejudice against him. The fact that the jurors deliberated eight hours on their verdict, Judge Briggle commented, was evidence that this effort had succeeded.

"I know of no country in the world but the United States," said Judge Briggle, where he could have had such a trial. The jurors have considered the evidence with care and I can find no reason to disturb their verdict."

At liberty on bond since he was indicated March 3 and through the eight days of his trial, Auhagen was placed in custody as soon as the verdict was announced, being handcuffed to Capt. Norman L. Botsford, veteran United States marshal. Holmes did not announce an appeal, and in private conersation after court indicated that probably none would be filed.

Fourth Case in Month

Auhagen was the fourth man jailed here in a month for propaganda. Three Russians were committed in June after being conicted of being unregistered agents of the Soiet goernment.

The jurors who conicted Auhagen included housewies, Goernment clerks, merchants, corporation officials and salesmen. Foreman was Paul H. Primm, 50-year-old insurance man, 3383 Stuyesant Place Northwest.

Beside Foreman Primm, the jurors are Mrs. Frances M. Tholl, 27, telephone company employe, 1246 Queen Street Northeast; Mrs. Frances N. Twynham, 39, housewife, 640 Gallatin Street Northwest; Arthur J. Oddone, 26, Treasury clerk, 1217 Thirtieth Street Northwest; Charles A. Lyone, 40, Agriculture Department clerk, 414 Aspen Street Northwest; Stanley J. Glaser, 35, radio company manager, 2749 Macomb Street Northwest; Mrs. Margaret S. O'Donnell, 28, apartment house manager, 236 Massachusetts Avenue Northeast; Mrs. Caroline Scott Robey, 45, housewife, 5618 North Capitol Street; Mrs. Lucille C. Hoyt, 46, housewife, Naval Hospital; Paul H. Johansen, 45, traffic manager, 5020 Lowell Street Northwest; Frances X. Nagle, 23, General Accounting Office auditor, 434 Delafield Place Northwest, and Chatham T. Nottingham, 25, District tax official, 1626 Montague Street Northwest.

1-Cent Milk Plan Works, U. S. Finds

Worthy of note is the fact that boys and girls do not have to come from public relief families in order to be elegible for penny half pints. This is in contrast to the Surplus Marketing Administration regulations governing its nickel quart program for needy Washington families, which limit participation to families on relief or whose heads are awaiting WPA jobs.

All underprivileged youngsters, whether their parents are on relief, receiving private charity, on work relief or simply on a low income commensurate with the WPA scales, are permitted to receive 1-cent milk in those cities where the program is in operation.

On this basis, it is estimated that Washington has a potential of more than 20,000 half-pints daily, taking into consideration its public, parochial, nursery and other types of schools in which undernourished children are to be found.

Save that the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producerz Association is militantly opposed to extension of relief milk in the Capital, despite the Agriculture Department's policy of instituting such programs only when and where they will benefit the dairy farmer, conditions here are highly favorable for a penny, project.

Time will soon tell whether the producers' combine shall have its way.

Arlington Clinic Open

The special clinic for crippled children sponsored by the Arlington health department will be held today from 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. at the Clarendon Health Center on North Hudson Street. Dr. Anderson A. Eagle will be in charge.

Spies Broke Squad, Probe Told

Hazen Offered Bribe To Shift Officer, He Reveals

Hartman's squad. (The reference was to Lieut. Earl P. Hartman, head of a special investigation squad, which has been accused of spying on fellow officers.)

Little continued, "The sergeant then said he was going up and see the chief. He did and told the chief he believed his wire was being tapped and if so he wanted to be relieved of duty."

Transfer Followed

Shortly after the sergeant and two other squad members were transferred from the gambling unit, the lieutenant testified.

Representative Oren S. Copeland (Republican), of Nebraska, asked if no reason was given for the shift.

"A reason was given, in a way," the veteran officer replied. "The chief called him in. Said he understood he had underworld contacts coming to his house. And I won't say the sergeant was wrong. I have underworld contacts coming to my house when I want information."

"Does that justify breaking up a squad," Copeland demanded.

"I'd rather not say," Little concluded.

Taking the stand earlier, Commissioner Hazen by way of demonstrating the fitness of Capt. Little said he wished to relate something he had never revealed before.

"A friend of mine came to me one day and said: 'There is $10,000 on deposit for you at the Lincoln National Bank if you will remove Capt. Little'." He didn't say put him out of the department, but just transfer him . . . Well, I am a poor man now."

Unable to Trace It

The District head later said that the bribe offer had been told to him by the friend as a rumor and because of its indirectness he was unable to trace it to its source.

In other testimony, Hazen said he favored abolishing the Civil Service promotion system for police and firemen "without delay."

Commissioner Young, also present at the hearing, brought out that Civil Service promotions were not required by law but merely by agreement.

"Then as long as it isn't law let's change it. Why not tell Civil Service you no longer want Civil Service except when the men first come into the department."

Backing of all three Commissioners for the abolition of the Civil Service Commission promotion method was made. However, Hazen warned that promotions directly by police heads had "one drawback—influence."

Taking the witness chair at the opening of the afternoon session, Capt. Keck admitted the Detective Bureau was only 25 per cent efficient. He said he contemplated widespread reorganization of squads, and recommended boosting of strength of both plain-clothes and uniform branches.

CAPT. IRA KECK
Intends to Change Homicide Squad Command

DETECTIVE SERGT. SHIMON
Advocates Roving Squad to "Clean Things Up"

Representative F. Edward Hebert (Democrat), of Louisiana, whose condemnation of police work in the sex murder of Jessie Elizabeth Strieff, 22-year-old War Department worker, launched the investigation, demanded bluntly "Is the detective bureau the weakest part of the department?"

The detective chief refused to answer in the affirmative, protesting:

"It's pretty tough to have to go against your own bureau."

When Hebert insisted Keck make the admission or name a weaker branch of the force, the captain hesitated, then said there probably are precincts weaker than the bureau.

Then, "You're putting me on the spot," he told his quetsioner.

Hebert then asserted: "The best you can say is that the bureau might not be the weakest link" and coupled this with the query whether squad heads were not "100 per cent misplaced."

Keck reduced this estimate to "75 per cent misplaced."

Earlier the detective chief, asked about Lieut. Darnall, who has been under fire for delay in arriving at the scene of the Strieff murder, declared:

Defneds Darnall

"Lieut. Darnall is a good officer, an old timer, but he is not the man for the job as homicide squad leader). I intend cleaning that squad out by putting other men in. I have been in the Detective Bureau for five years, but have had little to say. I told the former chief of detectives more than once that the men were no properly assigned and were no properly paired."

Herbert pressed Keck about plans to reorganize the Detective Bureau "in view of the fact it is only 25 per cent efficient."

"Can we expect a complete reorganization?" he demanded.

Brings Up 7-Hour Wait

The Representative from Louisiana, home State of Stanley Le Blanc, Miss Strieff's fiance, then declared Darnall had waited seven hours before going to scene of the slaying. Had Keck done anything about this, he asked.

The detective answered he did not "believe in changing horses in midstream."

Chairman Schulte then requestel the officer's comment on a "six-hour rule." (The public relations squad had been charged with having a policy of waiting six hours before launching an investigation.)

"I have never heard of such a rule. It's absurd," the witness asserted.

Hebert drew a smile from committee members when he asked "Isn't there a standard joke in the Detective Bureau: Step up and get your alibi in 15 minutes."

The detective head retorted he had "never heard that one. I wish you would enlighten me."

Taking over the questioning at this point, Representative Copeland stated his understanding that "pressure groups" were at work trying to influence police, courts and the Commissioners.

Declaring "this must be stopped," the Nebraskan asked, "Have these pressure groups been exerting any influence on your division?

Answers Off the Record

Asked by Copeland if orders had not been issued to handle certain elements "with kid gloves," he again answered in the affirmative. When told specifically to identify groups and individuals, Keck answered off the record.

The detective captain urged that the police force be raised to a strength of "at least 2,000."

With only 1,400 men in the department at present, it is sometimes necessary for as few as two beat officers and a scout car man to patrol an entire precinct at night.

There should be at least one officer for every two blocks downtown, and one for every ten squares in the residential districts, he stated.

Decries Merit System

Keck also recommended abolition of civil service promotion methods and urged this power be given to the Commissioners. Many young men, lawyers or recent college graduates can "put it all over the older men in examinations," but fall down on experience, he remarked.

District courts came in for a slap when Chairman Schulte declared: "It seems to me the courts are one place for us to strike. If we get efficient judges we will get more efficient police service."

Witnesses, including Keck and Shimon, had charged that I previous years judges meted out stiff sentences to troublemakers and undesirables would give the Capital a wide berth. Now the courts are more lenient, it was said.

First witness in the morning was Emmett P. Bateman, clerk in the Police Central Bureau, who recalled having received a telephone inquiry regarding Miss Strieff from her roommate, Miss Christine Tankersley, about 5 p. m. June 15.

Bateman asked, he testified, if Miss Tankersley wished to report a missing person and told her if she dd to contact the Public elRations Squad.

Hebert brought out that the clerk's testimony chopped off two hours from the statement of Private Edwin S. Grayson, of the Public Relations Squad, that the first call had been received at 7:40 p. m.

Later referring to the Strieff tragedy, Cap. Keck declared: "It is probably the most hideous crime in the history of Washington."

Four Rescued In Bay as Boat Burns, Sinks

Forced to jump from a burning boat, three men and a 14-year-old boy tossed for an hour and a half in the rough Chesapeake Bay 5 miles from shore early yesterday before they were rescued.

Their 43-foot gasoline-powered fishing vessel went up in flames and sank soon after they were rescued by Capt. Earl Samson, of Chaney's Pier, North Beach, Md., and Buddy Moore, 21, of Washington, who put out from shore after the burning boat attracted the attention of North Beach residents.

After a half-hour search near the blazing boat, they found Capt. Ellis Berridge, of Tilghmans Island, Md., skipper of the distressed vessel; George Locke, 35, manager of Uncle Billy's Sea Food House, North Beach, and two summer residents of North Beach, Warren Clock, 14, and "Whitey" White, both of Washington.

Exhausted, they were pulled into the rescue boat and taken to Uncle Billy's pier, where they were given a change of clothing and slept for several hours.

Capt. Berridge and his passengers left Uncle Billy's Pier about 1:30 a. m. to investigate a blinking searchlight about five miles out. They thought it might have been a vessel in distress.

When their boat caught fire, two other fishing boats besides that of Capt. Sampson put out to the rescue. Skippered by Capt. Charlie Townsend and Johnny Murphy, they made circles around the flaming vessel, searching for the skipper and passengers. They were nearly a mile away from the boat when Capt. Stamford found them.

Man in Sunglasses Holds Up Store

Police are searching for Washington's "sun-glasses bandit" after a Fourteenth Street shop was held up following a "hot tip" received from a woman by Police Supt. Ernest W. Brown.

Late yesterday a woman telephoned Brown that she had seen a man in sun glasses following several women in the vicinity of Sixteenth and R Streets Northwest. Brown dispatched police to the scene, but the man had gone when they arrived. The woman gave a description of him.

A few hours previous, a bandit wearing sun glasses held up a Fourteenth Street dry goods shop and escaped with about $20.

Leaf Grading Systems Called Uncorrelated

Lexington, Ky., July 11 (AP).—A Government economist testified today that he was unable to correlate grading systems of the "Big Three" tobacco companies with Government grades "or any other common denominator."

The witness was Hal R. Mobat, business analyst for the Department of Justice Antitrust Division, who took the stand in the tobacco antitrust trial to explain his study of the leaf industry which he said was to determine whether the "Big Thee" purchased the same kinds of tobacco.

Civic Group Blames Crime On Housing

Inadequate police and "crime breeding" housing conditions yesterday were blamed as major causes of crime in Washington by a delegation from the Federation of Civic Associations in a conference with the District Commissioners.

Edward F. Harris, acting federation president, laid responsibility to the Commissioners, the Budget Bureau and Congress for the lack of police protection. He also asserted that "intolerable housing conditions here were breeding crime faster than social agencies could take measures to quell it."

The delegation recommended more recreation facilities and more police boys clubs for the Negro population to help reduce them.

Dr. C. Herbert arshall, president of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People, explained the attitude of his organization which, he said, had no desire to protect a man because he is a Negro, but rather wished to join with the authorities to see that even-handed justice prevailed.

Mrs. Velma Williams, member of the Board of Education, asked the Commissioners to seek to spread among their subordinates, especially in the police force, the idea expressed in a recent report of the Criminal Justice Association, that "crime is not a matter of race, but due rather to a multiplicity of social phenomena."

Police brutality, lack of courtesy and race-baiting were complained of by Howard D. Woodson, who stated that recent appointments of trained men on the police force had tended to improve conditions, making them better than they were when, he said, appointment was controlled by patronage.

A plea for a larger percentage of appointment of colored men and women on the District pay roll was made by W. D. Nixon. To this Commissioners Hazen and Kutz suggested that a larger percentage of colored persons on the civil service rolls would tend to remedy this condition.

Germany Calls For Navy Recruits —'Big Tanks Ahead'

Berlin, July 11 (AP).—The sinking of six more ritish merchant steamers was announced today and the government called for young men to train as naval officers for "big tasks ahead."

The high command announced that submarines sank four British merchantmen totaling 27,600 tons in the North Atlantic. DNB, official news agency, said the freighters Designer, 5,945 tons, and Inverness, 4,879 tons, were sunk in a submarine attack on a British convoy off west Africa Wednesday.

German speedboats in the Baltic were credited with sinking a 3,500-ton Russian freighter laden with war materials.

John Collier Irks Navajos

Aztec, N. Mex. (AP).—The Navajo Rights Association has asked President Roosevelt to remove John Collier as Commissioner of Indians. "It is impossible for the Navajos to get along with him and his theories are Communistic," said George B. Bowra, association secretary.

33 From D. C. To Take Army Oath Today

Thirty-three Washingtonians will be inducted into the Nation's largest peacetime Army today while preparations are about complete for the second draft lottery next Thursday.

At the same time, the District Board of Appeal for Selective Service announced that of 13 registrants appealing from Class I-A, only three were given lower classifications, while one was referred to the office of the United States attorney for final action. Those retained in the original listing are Sidney Schwartz, John Albert Rader, Philip Dominic Faber, George Sylvester Foster, William Orville Newton, Alfred Leroy Stevens, Irving Martin Friedman, Northern D. Jenking and Joseph Eugene Ben. William Harold Kelin, Edward Walter Buckley and Harold Landsman were placed in Class II-A. The appeal of Lawrence Albert Kirkpatrick, a junior inspector of the Department of Labor, was referred to the United States attorney.

The District Selective Service headquarters also announced that 836 Washingtonians will be inducted into the service during the first week of next month.

Meanwhile, numbers from 1 to 750 are being assigned to registrants at all local boards throughout the Nation for the drawing of the draft lottery next Thursday. A corresponding set of numbers will be placed in pink capsules and drawn from the fish bowl. As each number is announced, it will represent approximately 1,000 individual holders of that serial number, one at each local board throughout the Nation.

Norris Shares Birthday Honors

Hugh A. Butler, also was there with felicitations.

Sixty or 70 others—Nebraskans, Daughters of Union Veterans and Washington friends—filed past the blind Union veteran to shake his hand and talk about the Civil War and Nebraska's early days.

Birthday presents included an American flag, which was proudly displayed behind the soft on which the hororee sat.

"You know," he announced several times to various visitors, "I was a color corporal at Antietam." He enlisted in a Connecticut regiment when he was 21.

Lathrop's birthday observation was:

"This country of our is going to have a new birth.'

Senator Norris was that "death would be preferable to a Hitler victory in this war. He was one of the so-called "willful' Senators who voted against United States' entry in the last war.

second Street Northwest, will serve the District Committee as an expert adviser to McCarran and as a liaison officer between the District Building and the Capitol.

He has had experience both as an employe of the District government and at the Capitol, where he is now secretary to Senator Adams (Democrat), Colorado. In addition to serving Senator Adams for more than nine years, Camalier for several years was clerk to the Irrigation and Reclamation and Public Lands and Surveys Committees of the Senate.

He served in the Water Department as inspector and chief clerk and was an assistant to the chief clerk of the Public Utilities Commission. He attended Washington public schools and National University.

Other positions held by Camalier include investigator for the Federal Trade Commission, assistant United States district attorney here and Assistant Attorney General in Colorado.

Yesterday Camalier said he hopes to see "some changes" made in the District government. With Walter Fowler, District budget officer, and other officials—"I grew up with those boys"—he hopes to be able to form a kind of "little cabinet" where District problems can be worked out in cooperation with legislative leaders. He promised "close cooperation" with Chairman O'Mahoney of the District Appropriations Subcommittee.

"I think the District Committee was very fortunate in getting this man," said McCarran. "I wanted to keep this position out of the category of a patronage job and I believe I have found a man who knows his way around the District."

In addition to Camalier, McCarran said he was seeking an $1,800-a-year clerk for the committee. He said he had in mind a resident from Nevada.

Camalier will take over his new duties August 1. A similar post existed on the District Committee when Senator Capper (Republican), of Kansas, was chairman.

Endeavorers' Parley Elects Miss Shoemaker to Office

D. C. Girl Is Active In Affairs of Local Religious Group

Miss Pauline Shoemaker, former president of the District Senior Christian Endeavor Union and member of Rhode Island Avenue Methodist Church, was elected associate president of the International Christian Endeavor Society at its sixtieth anniversary convention sessions yesterday in Atlantic City.

Dr. Daniel A. Poling, pastor of Baptist Temple in Philadelphia, and well-known here, was reelected president for the sixteenth term.

Miss Shoemaker, during her spare hours from duties as a science teacher in local schools, teaches an intermediate girls' Sunday school class at Rhode Island Avenue Methodist Church.

Born in Kansas

Kansas-born, Miss Shoemaker came here at the age of 2 with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Shoemaker, of 156 Uhland Terrace Northeast. The family has been active in the Rhode Island Avenue Church since 1916. Ralph and Helen, Pauline's brother and sister, are likewise interested in the Endeavor movement.

Not confining her youth activities to Endeavor work, she has been a prominent figure in other city-wide youth programs conducted through the Washington Federation of churches and in her own denomination.

"Stupid Racism" Assailed

Meanwhile Frederick A. Wallis of Paris, Ky., former Commissioner of Immigration at Ellis Island, told the convention that the United States would give the lie to "stupid racial theories."

Speaking before 6,000 delegates representing 2,000,000 Christian Endeavor youth in the United States and Cnada, Wallis asserted:

"That this hodgepodge of races and faiths in the United States can learn, as we are learninfi, to live together in amity and pece demostrates the fact that world peace is not an impossibel dream if men are willing to live by the principles of tolerance and goodwill.

"This is one of the things America can give the world—this final denial of stupid racial theories which would divide the world into little blood-tight compartments of inbred racial groups."

Hollywood's Just A Homey Town, Endeavorers Told

Atlantic City, N. J., July 11 (AP).—The International Christian Endeavor Society—2,000,000 Sunday school boys and girls in the United States and Canada—was informed by a New York minister tonight that Hollywood is "just a nice, hard-working little city" after all.

The Rev. Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, pastor of the Marble Collegiate Church (Dutch Reformed) on New York's Fifth Avenue, who had just returned from the scintillating capital of filmdom, told 6,000 delegates at the society's convention:

"Why, Hollywood is the hardest-working place I ever saw.

"The people there are not blase and sophisticated. They're just wholesome, friendly, home-loving folks.

"A handful of actors who have the bad reputations—the few irresponsibles—do not represent Hollywood and are frowned upon by the motion picture community."

Harvard Acquires Ritz Carlton Hotel

Newport, R. I., July 11 (AP).—Harvard University acquired title to the Ritz Carlton Hotel of New York under terms of the will of Robert Walton Goelet, filed today for probate.

Goelet, who died in May, had extensive real estate holdings in New York. His Newport home and personal effects were left to his widow. The size of the estate was not indicated.

A codicil to the will, drawn in 1939, left the hotel to the president and fellows of Harvard.

Farm Labor Short, Women Pitch In

"Farmerettes' are working alongside school boys and old men in many sections of the country to fill rural labor shortages, the Agriculture Department reported yesterday.

The supply of farm labor was said to be only 67 per cent of normal, or the smallest in 19 years that the department has made rural employment surveys. The situation was attributed to the draft and employment in defense industries.

Third Division Vows Support To President

Members of the Third Division Society, in convention here, yesterday declared themselves individually ready to help the President "in his efforts to combat any and all enemies of our country."

The veterans of the Marne and other World War fighting wondered what had happened to the division's monument in France since the German occupation. None knew.

The resolution proffering their services again to the country read:

"The members of this society are in full acord with anything the President does in support of this country's honor, integrity, full freedom and liberty and the individual members of this society are ready at any time to render anything in their power to the furtherance of the plans of the President in his efforts to combat any and all enemies of our country." The resolution was introduced by Col. George M. Duncan, of Miami, Fla., provost marshal of the division in France.

The several hundred members last night took a boat ride down the Potomac. At 1 p. m., they placed a wreath on the Unknown Soldier's Tomb. Flowers were placed on the graves of Maj. Gen. Joseph T. Dickman, the division's commander in France; Maj. Gen. U. G. McAlexander, commander, Thirty-eighth Infantry, and Col. Robert H. C. Kelton, division chief of staff. One of the Third Division medals, struck during the past year, was placed in the Arlington Amphitheater trophy room. The banquet will be held at 8 tonight at the Willard Hotel.

Cheap Milk

Adam Smith said that defense is more important than opulence, and in these stern times we are discovering that defense is more important even than the retention of the paraphernalia of reforms which the New Dealers call social gains. However, any effort to maintain social progress which does not impede the defense program is clearly to the national advantage. In this connection few things are more important than the problem of insuring adequate nutrition for the citizens of tomorrow. And more milk consumption lies at the root of adequate nutrition. There is no excuse for the present meager consumption of milk among the children of the poor—a meagerness attested not only by statistics but also by the poor health record of the city, upon which Dr. Ruhland dwelt in his recent report to the House District Appropriations Subcommittee. Accordingly the decision of the Department of Agriculture to introduce the penny milk program into Washington schools next fall is to be welcomed. In a series of articles two months ago, and later editorially, The Post pleaded for this among other innovations. So far the plan is said to be tentative, but there is no reason why it should not be put through. Milk at a cent a glass is already being supplied to school children of several cities. Here free milk is available to a limited number of children by the District School System, but the cost is more than 2 cents the half pint. In view of the Federal subsidy back of the new program, the cost to the District would be reduced to a cent, so that twice the number of children could be served. Moreover, many other children of less needy parents would doubtless avail themselves of the opportunity of buying the penny milk. If this war is teaching us anything, it is that Hitlerism marks the collapse of laissez-faire, and that out of the chaos we must all try to build a better world reared on more intelligent thinking and more service in the solution of such social problems as malnutrition.

British Exports

Representative O'Connor has done this country and Great Britain a service in charging that British exporters have been selling to Latin America strategic goods and materials such as are now being supplied to Britain under the Lend-Lease Act. For his attack brings into the open some ugly rumors that ought to be investigated. Expressing doubt that England will ever pay for any of the war materials now being received from the United States, Mr. O'Connor says that the practice of reselling such goods or any part of them is "stooping to a practice beneath the cheapest double-dealing and double-crossing that is capable of being imagined." Questioned in regard to these charges, J. M. Keynes, economic adviser to the British treasury, says that British exports to South America have fallen by half during the current year, while exports of iron and steel and their manufactures are currently one-half to two-thirds lower than in a corresponding period before the war. However, the British government, he says, has tried to maintain its textile exports by drastic home rationing.

These general statements, of course, do not provide an answer to specific complaints of American exporters. But they do refute the charge that the British are growing rich at the expense of American taxpayers. Furthermore, Mr. Keynes' assertion that exports to South America are now no more than are required to pay for essential imports calls attention to another fact that Americans are prone to forget. This is that Britain still has to pay for the goods she buys in foreign countries except for the supplies furnished to her government under the lend-lease program.

We are now preparing to ship some cotton to Britain under the Lend-Lease Act. Having done so, are we going to raise a cry of "double-crossing" if some of that cotton should be manufactured into cloth and shipped out of Britain? Are we going to assume that Britain must abandon her overseas trade in all articles whose shipment has been facilitated in any way by the aid we are currently furnishing? If we take that shortsighted attitude, we lay ourselves open, most justifiably, to the "Uncle Shylock" charge that for so many years created ill-will between the United States and Great Britain.

It may well be that the British government has committed some mistakes of judgment in letting industries export goods that should be kept within the country. That is a matter that undoubtedly concerns representatives of both countries who wish to secure maximum benefits from the aid which we are furnishing Britain for our own defense as well as Britain's. If there are any well authenticated cases of "unfair" competition of this sort that come to light, they should be publicized. But in helping Britain to help us we have not asked her to give our traders a free field in dealing with countries to the south of us. All our traders are entitled to ask is a "fair deal."

Another Setback

Another hope of liberation for the District has gone a-glimmering. In a brief executive session a subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee voted unanimously to reject the Capper-Sumners resolution to amend the Constitution and authorize Congress to grant the District national representation and complete local self-government. In the opinion of Senator McCarran the proposed amendment would give the District the status of a State, and, as a State, he concludes, the District could not look for contributions from the Federal Government. Another Senator alleged that passage of the resolution would mean setting up a new form of Government in the District. Finally it was pointed out that a constitutional amendment is not required to enable Congress to delegate some of its governing powers for the purpose of establishing home rule in the District. Yet none of these reasons for rejecting the resolution is at all convincing. Moreover, they convey an utterly wrong impression of the character and purpose of Senator Capper's proposal. One of its chief advantages is that it would not commit Congress to any definite plan for enfranchising the District or reforming the local Government. Indeed, it does not even call for an outright grant of suffrage. What it would do is to remove constitutional obstacles to national representation of the District, thereby making it possible to grant residents the right to vote in national elections. Possibly it was strategically unwise to include in a single resolution a provision for the permissive establishment of self-government with one for national representation. But Congress is not committed in either case to any definite proposal. Furthermore, the resolution provides that all legislation enacted under the proposed amendment shall be subject to amendment and repeal.

As The Post has previously stated, the resolution is especially well designed to bring the suffrage issue before the people of the District in clear-cut form. This is because it rises above all the controversies over what type of government the District should have and the extent of its representation in Congress. And, contrary to the impression conveyed by the subcommittee, passage of the resolution would not deprive Congress of the supremacy which it now exercises over the District. The resolution simply authorizes Congress to delegate "all or any" of its powers over the District, if it chooses to do so. The extent of that delegation of power would be a question for legislative decision, and delegated powers could always be recaptured. In the circumstances one is forced to conclude that the subcommittee's action presents a typical instance of Congressional obstructionism in dealings with the District. Disappointed residents will extract slight comfort from the committee's asserted willingness to see local suffrage conferred upon them eventually under some sort of District self-government plan. Such hopes of home rule have been raised too often and then dashed to arouse much enthusiasm. The chief advantage of the Capper-Sumners resolution was that its adoption would have provided a means of bestowing the national franchise upon District residents without waiting until a type of local self-government acceptable to Congress and satisfactory to the community could be devised.

Army Promotions

If Gen. Marshall has anything to say about it, Army promotions for the duration will depend on merit, not seniority. In forthcoming maneuvers initiative and ingenuity under combat conditions will be determining factors. Officers who have neither will be weeded out, while those who exhibit exceptional imagination and daring will advance in rank. Moreover, enlisted men who show marked capacity for leadership will be designated for attendance at three-month training courses with a view to being given commissions as second lieutenants. Stringent reorganization of personnel is clearly the Army's answer to claims made in Congress and in the press that many officers are too old and too slow to grasp the requirements of blitz warfare. Thus history repeats itself. In World War I similar charges were made and similar changes were initiated in answer to them. Gen. Pershing had to restaff the AEF with younger men, ignoring seniority. And under the pressure of an expanding Army men were hauled out of the ranks, given rudimentary training in tactics, and thrust into command of platoons and, shortly after, companies.

Hindsight shows, of course, that had we stuck to our World War policy of advancement by merit—which has been the basis of German army policy—we should now have a central core of officers whose advancement in the service would be due to enterprise, vision and creative efficiency. Representative Ross A. Collins has much to say on the subject in the current Reader's Digest. And, though his name is anathema to many Regular Army officers, some of his charges of military shortsightedness are well taken. It serves no useful purpose, however, to dwell on the past so long as there is assurance of immediate reform. Gen. Marshall's biennial report to the Secretary of War indicates the War Department's determination to build a capable officer corps. But is there any sound reason why the temporary policy of advancement on merit, not seniority, should not be made permanent? We cannot think of any.

Guarding The Lines

A nation, like an army, must be forever on guard lest its communications be interrupted. In time of trouble cables may be cut, radio circuits jammed, equipment damaged, power supply cut off, and there might be an overconcentration on particular methods of communication. In the original defense setup preparedness for these eventualities was intrusted to the Defense Communications Board. Little has since been heard of it, but this is because, under the energetic chairmanship of James L. Fly, it has been too busy to say much. Now we are told what the DCB has been up to. And the report on progress testifies to the industry of the DCB staff. Here are a few of the items: Cable repair ships have been surveyed and checked to make sure of their availability in time of emergency; arrangements have been made to add to their number; resources of cable, together with insulating material, have been tabulated, sources checked, and substitutes experimented with; interconnections among communications companies have been worked out, and each communications company now has appointed a liaison officer for this job; bottlenecks have been examined, and methods for dealing with them are under study. The DCB seems to be confident that none of the problems remitted to it is insoluble. For the release winds up: "our communications system can be kept operating at high efficiency through any future emergency without interruption and without necessary delay." That is very gratifying to read, and testifies that Mr. Fly's group, though silent hitherto, has been far from moribund.

Danger: Men Thinking

The Japanese government has announced that its program of "thought control," which has been in operation for some time, is about to be widely amplified and extended under the direction of Baron Hiranuma, the home minister. Just how this business of thought control works we are not sure. But evidently it has some connection with the "thought police," concerning whom newspaper correspondents and other returned travelers have brought home some vague and curious tales. A thought policeman, as we understand it, is empowered to accost you in the street, or anywhere else, and demand to know what you are thinking about. If he finds the subject or direction of your thought unsatisfactory, he may make you think it over, as the saying goes.

We are not sure whether the duties of the thought police cover merely political thinking, or whether they cover all forms of human cogitation, including mathematics and metaphysics. In either event the job must be even more difficult than it sounds. There is one very considerable school of—we were about to say "thought"—which holds that most of mankind is congenitally incapable of thinking. Of this opinion were the late Viscount Bryce, the late Sydney Smith and the late Thomas Edison. There is another school exemplified in Descartes and Pascal which seems to hold that men and women simply can't help thinking, no matter how much they may detest it. (In between, probably, there is A. N. Whitehead, who says we are all ignorant people thinking.) Either way the thought policeman's lot is scarcely a happy one. In the one case he may receive so many replies of "honest, officer, I wasn't thinking of a thing; not a thing," that presently we may hear that virtually the whole Japanese population has been locked up on charges of intellectual vagrancy. In the other case he will be subjected to such a multitude of strange theories, hypotheses and what not that presently he will be no longer certain of what he thinks himself.

Anyway, at just about the time the Japanese were making their announcement about thought control, Dr. Jesse H. Newlon, of Columbia, was telling the teachers of the Nation that their duty is to teach their students "how to think, but not what to think." We don't confess to know what the moral of this coincidence is beyond the obvious point that it still takes all kinds to make a world.

Aid For Soviet

This is surely the time for the isolationists and appeasers to stop their wishful thinking, for this latest move of Hitler's should dispel any doubts that he is seeking world domination. Should he conquor Russia, the Nazis would be a greater menace to our national security than ever. Although we despise Communism, the Russian dictatorship has never threatened our national existence. Furthermore, Russia has been a bulwark against Japan's ambitions, and that has greatly lessened Japan's danger to us. We should, therefore, give Russia immediate and full assistance under the provisions of the lend-lease law, as well as give increased aid to the British.

Constitution-Violators

For the first time in the history of our country our Constitution seems in danger. Therefore, when defense measures are considered, some sort of fortification around our Constitution may be necessary. For years businessmen have complained of New Deal persecutions. Therefore, how about organizing a committee to prosecute Constitution-violaters, especially among public employes who are paid to uphold the Constitution, but who, all too often, to perpetuate and increase their powers, violate it.

Slum Clearance

If the thinking citizens of Washington really want to protect themselves permanently against violence and crime, they must first do their part to protect others against the conditions which produce criminals.

I am referring specifically to the deplorable housing conditions which exist among Washington's underprivileged Negroes. The ancient, dilapidated, filthy dwellings which house large numbers of Washington's Negro children are not conducive to the development of healthy mental attitudes. The crowded, unhygienic conditions which prevail in these homes cannot but foster premature preoccupation with sex and with sex activities. Children reared in such surroundings are of necessity subject to malnutrition, illness and disease. The psychology of the people who are their closest and most constant associates is a defeatist psychology, productive of criminal types.

In short, wretched housing provisions and the manifold undesirable conditions to which they give rise are breeding today the diseased, mentally distorted little misfits who will be the sex criminal of tomorrow.

The Decisive Step

Attack is the order of the day. With the stirring speech of Churchill's arousing the world to a greater struggle against Hitler and his allies and with Stalin's declaration of a policy of the "scorched earth," we had every reason to expect that our President would seize this opportunity to further develop the struggle against Hitler with a new declaration of independence for the world, which a clarion call for a military alliance between Britain, Russia, China, the U. S. A. and all those nations willing to fight against Hitler.

With Hitler withdrawing most of his military might to the east, he leaves the conquered countries with sketchy armies of occupation. An expeditionary force would find welcome allies in these conquered countries to throw out their Nazi conquerors and their Quislings. The underground movements in Germany and Italy would be given fresh impetus to overthrow their Nazi masters. The pro-Fascist elements in Japan would be thrown out, for without supplies from the United States Japan's war against China would be strangled and, as the war has taken a terrific toll of the Japanese, a just peace would soon be concluded, leaving Britain and her allies free to quickly conclude the war in the west.

The Quislings in America would no longer be able to hide under their phony arguments of isolation, for Hitler once successful in Europe would not or could not forgive our aid to Britain and one can hardly imagine him leaving such a rich plum as the Americas free after plundering Europe.

Once we have taken this decisive step we will no longer be in the ignominous position or urging others to fight while we sit complacently expecting them to fight our battles. With our position clarified we can and will show both Hitler and those fighting him that the United States does not only speak of freedom but is willing to fight for it. No longer will those who are fighting for their freedom look askance at the brave words and little deeds emanating from America. Then there will be a reaffirmation of our Declaration of Independence which will smash tyranny from the face of the earth through a union of all those fighting Hitler and Hitlerism.

Pegler 'Fair Enough'?

As an American citizen whose ancestors came to New England in Colonial days, I write to protest against the attitude voiced recently by Mr. Westbrook Pegler toward newcomers to these shores. I believe that in almost every case they come to help us bring to fulfillment the American way of life. Is it just to penalize them because they did not choose great-great grandfathers who sought the same ends earlier? The new Americans whom I know personally are deeply grateful for their opportunities here, and deeply desirous of doing their part in this country economically and politically as well as culturally. They have fled from intolerable oppression abroad. If we, too, treat them with discrimination, where can be their hope? Some of us are proud to share our blessings with new friends. We want no caste system in the United States. In short, do you really think Westbrook Pegler is "fair enough?"

Of The Joint Income Tax Proposal

In view of the usually high quality of the editorials in your paper, it is disappointing indeed to observe the departure from that standard in your recent editorial headed "Penalty For Marriage," which deals with the pending perennial proposal that Congress undertake to levy an income tax on husbands, based not only on the husband's income, but on his wife's income. Of course the problem could be stated as accurately by saying that the proposal is to tax the wife upon the husband's income as well as upon her own. The language of the editorial appeals solely to prejudice against a supposititious person who has a substantial income. It evidences either complete lack of knowledge as to the problem actually involved, or a deliberate disregard thereof for the purpose of appealing to prejudice.

In language far better than I could choose, the history, the problem and the arguments pro and con are stated in the opinions of the Supreme Court in Poe vs. Seaborn, decided November 24, 1930, 282 U. S. 101, 75 Law Edition 239 and Hopkins vs. Bacon on page 126 of the same volume. One quotation (page 128) will suffice.

" . . . the interest of a wife in community property is properly characterized as a present vested interest, equal and equivalent to that of her husband and that one-half of the community income is therefore income of the wife. She and her husband are entitled to make separate returns, each of one-half of such income."

It is true that the court predicated the opinion upon the language of the statute, as it is always proper to construe a statute in a manner to sustain its constitutionality, if that be possible.

The language of the opinion and earlier judicial and legislative history leading and incident to the adoption of the Sixteenth Amendment to the Constitution warrants the conclusion that such amendment was designed to authorize the enactment of an income tax statute without complying with the apportionment requirements of Section 9 of Article I of the Constitution which forbids a direct tax without apportionment. The amendment reads:

"The Congress shall have power to lay and collect taxes on income, from whatever source derived, without appointment . . ."

It is difficult to believe that the quoted language of the amendment could properly be construed to authorize the levy of a tax on "A" because of income received by "B." The circumstance that A and B are husband and wife is of no importance whatever so far as the ownership of the property (income) is concerned.

Some appeal to sectional or local prejudice has been made incident to past efforts in the same direction. If any one really comprehends the law pertaining to husband and wife in the so-called common law States and will read the Supreme Court's opinions carefully, the basis for that appeal will largely disappear. The appeal, of course, has no merit even if it were correct in its facts. Any State is at liberty without any hindrance from the Federal Government to adopt the community property laws if its people so desire. Several million citizens think they are desirable; others probably think differently. A recent and very good discussion of the subject will be found in the court's opinion in Hammonds vs. Commissioner of Internal Revenue, 106 Federal Reporter, 2d Series, page 420.

It is believed that to attempt to tax one person upon another person's income will be held invalid. Because of the importance to the Government and the citizens of having tax problems certain instead of uncertain, it seems most unwise to enact such legislation even if it were believed that the Supreme Court would now sustain it. This is no protest about increased income taxes. Manifestly they must be increased. The increase should be a frank, honest increase of rates to the extent reasonably necessary. There should be no tampering with fundamentals or bases.

The tax should begin at whatever income cost statistics show will produce a profit to the Government above the cost of collection and the rates should be progressive but stop short of what is believed to be the figure that would discourage initiative. There may be reasonable differences of opinion as to all these figures. Congress should have available the statistics of various statisticians and thus be able to arrive at conclusions based on figures which are not prepared to support a thesis.

The Post Impressionist

Relatively Speaking

They were not strictly cousins-german. Rather, in the dictionary's turn of phrase, they were only "first cousins once removed;" and their sawney issue, I am thankful to say, could claim no more than third cousinship. Nonetheless, they were related to us, however tenuously. On such sufficient basis they visited us every third Sunday to the last month of their lives.

Cousin George had been a victim of sleeping sickness at one time—long before my participation in the family genius—and although, according to medical authority, he had subdued the disease, it was always my conviction that whatever else Cousin George might have recovered from, it wasn't sleeping sickness. True, he could propel, after an erratic fashion, his reluctant limbs, and if you aimed a verbal communication at his head and waited, at long last there came a viscid flow of words—perhaps not the response desired or expected, but still clearly an indication that something beyond mere instinct leavened the lump. Yet, somehow he lacked the vital spark.

Cousin Alta, on the other hand, was all spark. She was a weird and raucous union of the stereotype and the spectacular; a wedding of cliche and thunderclap.

"Greetings and saleratus!" she always sang out, as she crossed the threshold.

This was invariable. It was sacred formula. Well I remember that when I discovered the real meaning of "saleratus," it was with a distinct sense of loss.

"How are you, Alta, George?" father would say, as the little scene at the door continued.

"Oh, able to sit up and take nourishment." This was a chorus reply and also the most naked understatement that has ever come to my attention. But I anticipate.

There was one particularly dreaded feature of these Sunday visits that hung over my youthful and impressionable spirit like an evil cloud—the cousinly kiss. Kiss they would, and kiss me they did, with the abandon and confidence of newlyweds, until I was well on into the university age; there was no avoiding it. Cousin George's hearty smack was flavored with wet cigar. Alta's was merely wet.

When I was a very little child, of course, I had neither the strength nor the wit to oppose this family custom. But as I grew in years and cunning I devised any number of subterfuges—usually bootless—to escape the ordeal.

There was the jampot for instance. I presented myself one Sunday afternoon with innocent eyes and sticky face—and it made no difference. Both figuratively and literally speaking, they ate it up. I tried guile. I was a big lad now, I suggested. And tough. But it was just sending a boy to mill, as father would have said. Employing suasion, when what I really needed was a steamroller. Still—let's face the facts—I couldn't very well sink my sharp little teeth into the unwelcome lip; that would not only have been churlish, but a clear admission of defeat. And egotist I was, even at that tender age.

I finally worked out a routine, however, that was occasionally more or less successful. When the cousins arrived, I contrived to be in a remote part of the house. A few minutes later I would burst in on them, wave a cordial if overhasty greeting, mutter something about a great hurry, and rush noisily out the front door. Sometimes I came right back and tried to brazen it out. More often, though, I didn't come in until much later, when the smooth rhythm of life again held sway over events; when I knew Cousin George to be stationed at the radio, while his spouse sat in the kitchen skinning apples for a pie. Then, in any case, I had two chances: no matter how warmly greeted by the one, I might yet escape the other's sloshy buss. And half a loaf is better than ten, if you don't like bread.

I have suggested that the main business at hand in all Sunday visits was eating. I repeat it. Moreover, I should like to submit that these my relations attended to that business with quite unparalleled address. All of us in the family, as a matter of fact, played a good knife and fork; but on cousin-Sundays we just sat back and watched.

I think they must have had suppressed yearnings to build that were properly released only by the intoxicating presence of food. At any rate, they reared upon their forks such architectonic masterpieces as we untraveled children had never seen. First, a firm foundation of meat was affixed to the tines, followed by a swipe of mustard. As a construction engineer employs concrete strengthened with steel bands, so they made use of reinforced mashed potato. Twigs of broccoli or strips of leafy vegetable interlaced the whole and made it one. Next, gravy for glue—and flavor. More potato. More glue. Salt and pepper. An overall poultice of creamy potato, for aesthetic effect. And sometimes peas, like shy emeralds, pepping from an alabaster mountain.

There was added drama in the actual deglutition of the mass, but it was really anticlimactic; in our heart of hearts we knew they wouldn't strangle. They were much too skilled, too deft. With one sure motion the laden fork was intruded slaunchwise into the mouth—a slight bulging of the eyes, and it was all over. Time and the whole awesome process could begin anew.

So, ultimately, like all things great and small, Sunday dinner disappeared into the infinite and the cousinly visit wore to its appointed end. A few hours of postprandial sloth; small talk; big kiss, and they were gone.

Relatively speaking, of course.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

President As Maker Of High Policy

IN A MORE perfect world no great action involving war and peace would ever be taken by the President without first obtaining the explicit approval of Congress. We have never had a President, it is fair to say, who would not have preferred to obtain prior authorization from Congress rather than to act on his own responsibility and depend upon a subsequent ratification or on some kind of tacit assent.

LIPPMANN

The whole action of the Government would be immensely stronger, and therefore in the end less costly, if this procedure could be followed.

BUT AS A MATTER of historic fact none of the decisive developments of American policy has ever obtained prior authorization from Congress. The historic moves which mark the rise of the United States as a great power have all of them been decided upon by the President and initiated by Executive action. Congress did not authorize Jefferson to make the Louisiana Purchase, and Jefferson at least thought that if he went first to Congress, he would either fail to get the authorization or would lose the chance to obtain Louisiana: "A John Randolph (the Burton Wheeler of that time) would," said Jefferson, "find means to protract the proceedings on it by Congress until the ensuing spring, by which time new circumstances would change the mind of the other party."

The basic foreign policy of the United States, namely the Monroe Doctrine, was announced in a Presidential message to Congress. The doctrine was a direct challenge to the purposes of all the great powers of the continent of Europe and, if the challenge was accepted, it committed this country to war as a belligerent partner of Great Britain. There was no prior authorization by Congress nor even a subsequent ratification. Yet the Monroe Doctrine has stood for more than a century as the central purpose of American foreign policy, approved today by those who call themselves isolationists as well as by the rest of the Nation.

THE MEXICAN WAR had begun, the two big battles had been fought, before Congress acted. In the Civil War Lincoln acted ten weeks before there was a vote in Congress, and it is by no means certain that Lincoln would have obtained authority from Congress if, instead of acting to save the Union, he had invited a debate. These are the facts of experience, disconcerting as they are to our ideas of how representative government ought to work. Nor was that the end of it. The two most far-reaching developments of American foreign policy in the period between the Civil War and the First World War were the establishment of an American interest in the Far East and the construction of the Panama Canal. Neither of these momentous actions had the prior authorization of Congress.

Yet every one of these great measures which have shaped the very life of the Nation—its territorial limits and its place in this hemisphere and its position in the world—have been decided upon by the President and set in motion by his orders. The Louisiana Purchase, the Monroe Doctrine, the Mexican War, the preservation of the union, the Far Eastern policy, the Panama Canal, not to mention the expulsion of Napoleon III from Mexico and the stabilization of the Caribbean, we owe to the fact that successive Presidents have done what they deemed necessary and expedient, relying upon their Constitutional powers in the conduct of foreign relations and as commanders in chief.

IT IS AN ABUSE of language to describe this time-honored procedure as "dictatorship" or to profess to believe that measures which conform with the practice of our greatest Presidents for a century and a half are somehow a novel usurpation of power. The truth of the matter is, and all our experience proves it, that in these largest questions the President, who is elected by the whole people, more truly represents the Nation than do legislators elected by relatively small constituencies.

Jefferson had a better mandate from the people than John Randolph, a Congressman from Roanoke, Virginia. Time has proved that Jefferson was right, as it has proved that Monroe and Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt were right when, faced with momentous decisions, they took the decisions rather than risk the consequences of the obstructive delays of the filibustering minorities in Congress.

IT IS UNFORTUNATE that they had to choose between the imperative interests of the Nation and the ideals of a harmonious collaboration with Congress. But almost invariably they have had to make this hard choice, the reason being that the Senate of the United States has a set of rules and customs which prevent collaboration.

The rules of the Senate today, like the rules of the House before they were reformed, create the condition described by former Speaker Reed when he said that the "only way to do business inside the rules is to suspend the the rules . . . The object of the rules appears to be to prevent the transaction of business."

THIS LAMENTABLE state of affairs cannot be remedied merely by insisting that the President go to Congress for specific authority whenever he deems an action necessary or expedient. There have been occasions and they have been among the most critical in our history, when the duty to act transcended the duty to obtain prior authority from Congress. It is true that some Presidents have managed to keep closer to Congress than have others. It is certainly true that Mr. Roosevelt would be better off if he kept the responsible leaders of Congress more thoroughly informed.

But the fact remains that there are in every Congress men who cannot be consulted because they refuse to treat any information as confidential, and no delicate diplomatic policy, much less a military measure, can be conducted successfully in the newspaper headlines. The minority who will not act responsibly disrupt all intimacy between the branches of the Government. This fact, plus the fact that the rules of the Senate are a license to obstruction and filibustering, have made Congress virtually unable to take a deciding part in the formation of great policy. It is too bad. But there is no remedy for it unless there is a reform in the rules of the Senate or in the practices of a handful of Senators.

2,000 Latin-American Firms On U. S. Anti-Axis Blacklist

Copyright by New York Times

The existence of a "blacklist" of close to 2,000 Latin American firms and individuals with axis connections was disclosed yesterday by the Office of the Coordinator of Commercial and Cultural Relations Between the American Republics, of which Nelson A. Rockefeller is the head.

Rockefeller commended the cooperation of United States exporters who have severed business relations with 50 per cent of the listed entities, and are in the process of liquidating commercial ties with the rest.

It was estimated that axis-connected agencies on the present list have lost more than 1,000 United States accounts, but the list continues to grow. The process of breaking contractual relations, some of them of long standing, frequently involves expense, complexities, and delays, but the Rockefeller organization has given assistance not only in the breaking of these ties but in obtaining new agency representation of an approved character for the United States exporters.

In some cases a single anti-American agency in the southerly republics had lost as many as 15 United States accounts, and many others have lost five or more. Some of the listed firms had no active United States relations when blacklisted, but their listing serves as a warning not to employ them.

An interesting aspect is that the American blacklist exceeds in size the statutory British blacklist for Latin America. A case in point is that of the Buenos Aires firm of Curt Berger & Co., which, although removed some time ago from the British blacklist, is reported to have been blacklisted by the United States.

In the work of cataloguing some 5,000 firms and individuals in Latin America for preparing the blacklist, Rockefeller has had the cooperation of the Commerce and State Departments, and of 17,000 exporting companies in the United States. A close check is kept of all new or prospective representatives or accounts.

"The Government" has had excellent cooperation from the export industry as a whole, including the trade associations concerned with foreign trade problems," Rockefeller said.

Fair Enough

Letter To Wm. Green

Mr. Will Green,
President, American Federation of Labor,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Green:

You remember what you have always said about the fearless determination of the American Federation of Labor to repudiate, eliminate and punish crooks operating under the union banner, don't you?

Only a couple of weeks ago your apologist and press agent, Phil Pearl, who draws his pay from earnings of the working stiffs which are passed up to your mafia office in Washington, wrote resoundingly about that in a canned editorial for the union publications. He wrote:

"There are things the American Federation of Labor can do. And it has done them. Publicly and fearlessly it has condemned union racketeering. It has called on the law enforcement authorities to eradicate it."

Well, it so happens, Mr. Green, that at this very hour the Department of Justice is searching high and low—but mostly in low places, of course—for one of your honored colleagues in union leadership by name Nick Circella, alias Nick Dean, a stickup man, former convict, member of the Capone mob and long-time confidant and partner in crime of old "Blue Jaw" himself.

He is wanted as a material witness in the impending trial in New York of two others of your colleagues, Gangster George Browne and Willie Bioff, M. P., or Master of Prostitutes. Gangster Browne, who sits with you in the executive council of the A. F. of L. and in the face of his denunciation as a gangster, was elevated to the post of vice president, is indicted here with Bioff on a charge of shaking down the employers in the movie business for $550,000 as strike insurance.

These two fellow-toilers of yours on behalf of the underprivileged are due to go to trial in August, and Mathias F. Correa, the United States attorney in New York, needs Circella's testimony. But when the marshal's office in Chicago was instructed to pick up the stickup, your colleague Circella couldn't be found. There is a warrant out for Circella, but the word from Chicago is "no can find" and "what to do?"

This, Mr. Green, should be a great chance for your fine, law-abiding organization to strut its citizenship, because your membership reaches everywhere. Your union musicians blow sour wind out of curly brass pipes in all the jooks in that part of the country which Nick the stickup would be likely to frequent in pursuit of his criminal rackets these summer nights. And, of course, your union bartenders and ginger ale waiters are all over the place. And then there are your union hotel help and your union elevator men and so forth, to the number of thousands, not only in Chicago but all over the country, and my suggestion is that you might call on them to turn up the crook in the name of the A. F. of L. so that he can be brought here to testify about the activities of your gangster friend Browne and his verminous personal representative, Bioff, M. P.

You know, don't you, Mr. Green, that the record of your unions, and particularly of the high-salaried officials, in the matter of helping the public authorities enforce the law according to Brother Pearl's highly moral demand, has been negligible, not to say rotten? Indeed, why not say rotten?

In Akron, Ohio, when Alva Russell, the local prosecutor, was trying Harry Jones, the degenerate vice president of the Ohio State Federation of Labor and holder of three other powerful official positions, on a charge of dynamiting three buildings, in one of which explosions a man was killed, the local A. F. of L. council was on record with a demand exactly like Brother Pearl's pious little wordage. But when Russell finally went to bat against Jones, no section or member of the A. F. of L. did a thing to help him. Russell got the conviction alone, and nobody has yet explained how this man with a record of two offenses against children—one a boy of 11, the other a girl of 12—ever rose to the position of vice president of the Ohio State Federation of Labor of the A. F. of L.

And I suppose you know that Meyer L. Lewis, your own official ambassador to the A. F. of L. in California, and J. W. Buzzell, the secretary of the Los Angeles central body of A. F. of L. unions, both sent telegraphic votes of confidence to Brother Bioff, M. P., after it had been shown that he was a brothel-keeper who lived on the earnings of the women in his place of business.

How can people believe you mean it when you call on the public officials to enforce the law if your own organization itself does nothing to help and even goes out of its way to sympathize with the lowest of the low?

Suppose you induce your gifted editorialist, Brother Pearl, to dash off an answer to these facts and this question for next week's order of editorial canned goods for the chiseling little journalistic rackets which pass for the labor press?

As ever, Mr. Green,

Marshal Voroshiloff

By Mark Gayn

(Author of the recently published book, "The Fight for the Pacific")

"The Toiling Men's General"

MARSHALL "KLEM" VOROSHILOFF, chairman of the Defense Committee, was last week made a member of Stalin's five-man super-government which is to rule Russia during the emergency. The appointment did not receive the headlines it deserved. It marked Voroshiloff's return to Stalin's graces after a year of disfavor. It further demonstrated the Kremlin's realization that Russia's strongest weapon in the struggle against Hitler would be morale.

One of Voroshiloff's assignments had been to serve as a link between the Communist Party and the Red Army. After the Finnish fiasco the two were divorced. But the pressure of the German juggernaut necessitated the addition of Communist starch to the Soviet military fabric. Voroshiloff was chosen for the starcher's role.

There was a sound reason for the choice. Despite his temporary retirement from the limelight, Voroshiloff was still one of the most popular figures in the Red army. Of the post-purge crop of commanders, he came closest to mujik's idea of a good leader. He is typically Russian—carefree, open-hearted, gay, averse neither to a hard job nor a good fight.

In contrast to the ostentatiously super-human Stalin and to the stern-faced arch-disciplinarian, War Commissar Timoshenko, Voroshiloff is a figure the average Red army man can like, understand and follow.

His civil war exploits have been built by the Communist propaganda machine into a legend. He is known as a hearty eater and a, still heartier drinker—though he has never attained the heights achieved by Cavalry Commander Marshal Budenny. He likes a good joke and a good show—and is himself a first-rate showman.

BUT VOROSHILOFF'S new job will be more than to stiffen the Red army morale. His will also be the task of organizing civilian resistance—guerilla warfare—a task at which he performed miracles during the civil wars of 1918-23.

All of Stalin's generals—Timoshenko, chief of staff Zhukov, Marshal Budenny, army commander Stern—won their Red spurs in guerilla fighting. But none of them ever displayed the organizational ability, the capacity for split-second decisions, and the dash which characterized Voroshiloff's career as a partisan leader.

Whenever Voroshiloff was thrust into a strategist's shoes, he felt himself ill at ease. Even after a decade of post-revolutionary schooling, he was still no strategist, as he showed in the Finnish campaign of 1939-40. But as a guerilla fighter he had no peer. The reason for this lay in his background.

A few years ago, Stalin, in a speech, described Voroshiloff as "the toiling men's general." The soubriquet fitted Voroshiloff better than any other Red army leader, for none could match either his proletarian heritage or his Communist zeal.

Voroshiloff was born 60 years ago, in a Ural miner's family. Abject poverty was his lot from earliest childhood, and Soviet biographers record that both Klem and his sister had to start working long before school age. Both performed household jobs, ran errands for neighbors, worked in fields. Klem's education was confined to two years in grammar school.

Later, he moved on to Loogansk, Russia's Gary, where he found a job in a steel mill and joined a revolutionary group. At 22, he was already active in underground work, distributing arms, agitating and organizing.

In 1905, when war-weary Russia was convulsed by the first revolution, Voroshiloff became chairman of the Loogansk Soviet. As he was haranguing a mass meeting into storming the city jail, gendarmes raided the meeting, arrested both Voroshiloff and his listeners. Only the threat of a general strike saved him from exile to Siberia. He remained, however, a marked man.

THE REVOLUTION crushed, Voroshiloff once again plunged into underground political work. In 1906, he was a delegate to the secret revolutionary conference in Stockholm and a year later attended the historic London meeting, at which the revolutionists split into bolsheviks and mensheviks. Voroshiloff threw his lot in with the bolsheviks and Lenin.

When he returned to Loogansk, the gendarmes were waiting for him. He was given a quick trial and sent off to Siberia for three years. These were not wasted years, however, for Voroshiloff used them to catch up with his education and to forge friendships with other exiles, who, a decade later, were to rule Russia.

The outbreak of the revolution in 1917 found him working at a munitions plant in Petrograd. Voroshiloff promptly proceeded to the barracks of the Imperial Guards, led a regiment out into the streets to "fight the damned capitalists."

Elected a member of the All-Russia Soviet, he was assigned to duty with the dreaded Cheka. The task was not to Voroshiloff's liking, and he was shifted to the Petrograd Defense Committee.

With the German and Cossack armies driving deep into Soviet territory, Voroshiloff was given his first important assignment in 1918. He was rushed back to Loogansk to halt the tide. The first taste of war was bitter. His forces were defeated, and with the tattered remnants of his little army Voroshiloff had to fight his way out, 1,000 miles across hot and dusty steppes, to Tsaritsin on the Volga.

There he was given reinforcements, a political commissar named Stalin, and orders to hold Tsaritsin at all costs. Tsaritsin made Voroshiloff. His defense of the area today makes an important chapter in the history of civil war. Unfortunately, however, both Voroshiloff and Stalin were not on friendly terms with War Commissar Leon Trotsky. Both were shifted: Stalin to Moscow, Voroshiloff to the Ukraine.

THERE, in the next year, Voroshiloff, with the aid of a Cossack noncommissioned officer named Budenny, today a Red army marshal, formed a mounted army. Soon, Voroshiloff could ride, fight and drink with the best of them in Soviet Russia's most famous cavalry force. This time, Trotsky held his hands off, and Voroshiloff was allowed to conclude his task—successfully.

The Ukraine was cleared of the White armies, but a new threat was looming on the horizon. In the spring of 1920, Marshal Pilsudski's Polish troops invaded Russia's granary. Kiev, today one of Hitler's major objectives, was soon in Polish hands. On the Berezina River, where German armies have recently been meeting, the bitterest resistance, the Soviet armies made their last stand against Pilsudski. For six days the battle raged, until Voroshiloff and Budenny arrived with their mounted army after a mad dash to turn the tide. The Polish armies rolled back to Warsaw, and on their heels came the Soviet forces, with Voroshiloff at the head of one of the columns.

Marshal Weygand, then chief of staff to Gen. Foch, was rushed to Pilsudski's rescue. At the gates of Warsaw, Weygand met the Red generals in a test of wits—and won. The Soviet armies were outmaneuvered and defeated. They retired to Russia, and the famous Communist threat to Europe of 1920 was ended.

Trotsky took advantage of these reverses to exile Voroshiloff to a border garrison. There he remained until 1925, when Stalin won his tug-of-war with Trotsky. Voroshiloff was recalled to Moscow and soon appointed war commissar. He held this post for 15 years, surviving a series of purges which sent most of his friends to death.

VOROSHILOFF'S first major difference with Stalin was on the question of the Soviet-German pact, which Voroshiloff—the true Communist—vigorously opposed. The break came after the Finnish campaign, when Stalin ordered the removal of the political commissars from the Red army. For his opposition to the step, Voroshiloff was "kicked upstairs" to the chairmanship of the Defense Committee, and his post as war commissar was given to a rigid disciplinarian Timoshenko, who served under Voroshiloff in the Polish campaign.

Voroshiloff's appointment now to the five-man "inner government" signifies the return to power of political commissars. It also restores to active life a man infinitely skilled in the science of guerilla warfare. On his activity will depend Russia's success in depriving Hitler of the raw materials he seeks and of wearing down the Nazi armies by incessant, merciless pin-pricking.

The Gallup Poll

By Dr. George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Princeton, N. J., July 11.—If anything happened to Prime Minister Winston Churchill, who would succeed him?

That has been the subject of a great deal of comment and speculation both in England and in the United States. The name of Ernest Bevin, minister of labor, has been most prominently mentioned as a likely successor to Churchill, particularly in Administration circles in this country.

A survey of British public sentiment conducted by the British Institute of Public Opinion, indicates that Anthony Eden's popularity with British voters far outstrips that of Bevin as the next prime minister in case anything should happen to Churchill.

Although Bevin has been the champion of British labor, his popularity is far less than Eden's even among the working classes, the poll shows.

Lord Beaverbrook, the energetic minister of supply, polled as many votes as Bevin in the survey, and proved particularly popular among voters in the upper income levels.

The survey, which was reported in the London News Chronicle, was conducted on the following issue.

"If anything should happen to Mr. Churchill, whom do you think would be the best man to take his place as Prime Minister?"

Eden	37%
Bevin	7
Beaverbrook	7
Hore-Belisha	4
Lloyd George	3
Halifax	2
Morrison	2
Attlee	1
All others and no answer	37

In several other British Institute polls on the same general issue since the war began, Eden has consistently led in popularity, apparently because he, with Churchill, was an outspoken opponent of Hitler during and before the days of "appeasement."

Of special interest is the analysis by income groups in the current survey. Among the working classes Bevin polls no better than among the upper income levels, his vote being 7 per cent in both cases. In the upper group Eden leads, with Beaverbrook a fairly close second.

The vote for the leading choices follows:

	Income Groups
	Upper	Middle	Lower
Eden	23%	35%	37%
Bevin	7	6	7
Beaverbrook	14	9	6
Hore-Belisha	5	2	4

Bevin's greatest strength, the poll indicates, is among voters of the Opposition Party. Taking this group as a whole, the vote is Eden 31 per cent, Bevin 14 per cent, Beaverbrook 7 per cent, and Hore-Belisha 4 per cent.

Russia's Chances

By Freda Utley

(Author of "The Dream We Lost: Soviet Russia Then And Now")

Her Capacity To Resist Contrasted With China's

HOPES have been expressed that Russia, like China, cannot be subjugated; that the Soviet army will be able to survive military defeats and retreat into the vast hinterland of Russia, thence to continue fighting the Germans as China has continued to fight Japan. These hopes are based on certain fundamental misconceptions.

It is, of course, true that Russia, like China, has the advantage of vast territory. She also could, in theory, "trade space for time" as China has done. But whereas China has the advantages as well as the disadvantages of being primitive in her economy and in political and social organization, Russia has the disadvantages of being neither primitive nor modern.

In the interior provinces of China the people live on the local produce; handicraft industries of great antiquity are still in existence, agricultural production depends on man power and man-power and man-made fertilizer, each district, almost each village is selfsubsistent. And industrial backwardness has been in part compensated for by the import of arms from abroad.

Russia, on the other hand, has mechanised her agriculture, destroyed her handicraft industries, centralised administrative control, destroyed local initiative and private enterprise, and made the people as dependent on supplies from a few industrial centers as they are upon orders from Moscow. Yet Russia's transport system is bad, her organization faulty and unwieldly, she lacks trained and competent administrators and technical personnel, and most of her people are almost as poor as the Chinese and probably more ignorant. Nor has Russia attained to that high degree of national unity which should have accompanied industrialization. The Russian winter, more severe than the Chinese, has been cited as an obstacle to the Germans as it was to Napoleon; it is more likely to prove an obstacle to guerrilla warfare and even to the survival of the Soviet state in a land where the people are as desperately short of warm clothing and good food as Russia.

RUSSIAN agriculture today produces harvests little if at all larger than in Tsarist times, but today production depends upon machines and oil to run them. The horses which once provided the motive power of Russian agriculture were killed off in large numbers in the early thirties when the peasants slaughtered them en masse rather than give them up to the State for use on the collective farms.

Russia's Five Year Plans, so widely advertised in the United States by Communist fellow-travelers, while they have provided her with the industrial capacity to produce large quantities of iron and steel, have destroyed the handicraft industries which up to 1928 had supplied a very large proportion of the needs of the people for clothing, footwear and other necessities. Machine-made consumption goods have never made up for the loss—hence the sharp decline in the standard of life of the mass of the people. Stalin in the early thirties actually made it a crime for the peasants and artisans to spin and weave or make shoes by hand.

In respect even to organization, Russia is at a disadvantage as compared to China. Individual initiative and local self-government have been destroyed in Russia along with private enterprise. Everything has been centralized and made dependent upon "the will of the party" whose orders filter down from the center to the local party bosses and managers of industrial enterprises and farms. Russia's resistance is accordingly in danger of being paralyzed by enemy seizure of strategic economic and administrative points and places.

As regards transport and communications, Russia is more advanced than China, but it is worth remembering that in China the new roads in the coastal provinces were more useful to the Japanese armies than to the Chinese. Since the fall of Hankow Free China has been protected by such natural geographical barriers as the Yangtze Gorges and the mountains of Shansi. In Russia there are no parallel geographical advantages for the defenders. The Urals are hills rather than mountains, and there is a good road through the Caucasus as well as along the shore of the Black Sea.

THE FACTOR of personnel is likely to play an important part in determining the outcome of the Russo-German War, and in this respect, too, Russia is at a tremendous disadvantage against Germany, or even as compared to China. The world has heard a good deal about the great Russian purge of 1936-39. But it knows little of the even more weakening purge of the "nonparty specialists" which went on in Russia during the years of the First Five-Year Plan. These specialists were the managers, the engineers, the technicians and other qualified personnel who had received their education and training under the Tsarist regime, often in foreign schools, who had not fled Russia and had worked loyally for the Soviet regime under Lenin and Trotsky, but who had not become Communists. Their position had always been difficult, as they were never wholly trusted and were under the orders of party bosses without knowledge of the techniques or the management of industry. But before Stalin came to power their situation had been tolerable and the way they had worked was proof of the fact that such men have a professional pride in their work and will conscientiously perform their duties, even when they are socially discriminated against and and receive small material rewards. It was these men who were made responsible for the failures of the Five-Year Plan.

The later purge of the party, which began in 1936, completed the process of depriving Russia of the services of the skilled and competent managers and technicians who alone could have insured the efficient functioning of the economy. Most of them have died long since in the Arctic or Siberian concentration camps and they, like the cattle and the horses, cannot be rapidly replaced. The great advantage the German form of national socialism has over the Russian is that Hitler has not liquidated the former capitalists, executive and professional classes, but forced them to serve the Nazi state.

POLITICALLY, also, China has great advantages over Russia. Chiang Kai-shek is, one must admit, a military dictator, but he is also a national leader recognized as such by almost every Chinese, and he has won the trust and even the affection of his people during the past four years of stubborn resistance to Japan. But Stalin is the most hated man in Russia. By the peasants he is regarded as a ruthless oppressor who has taken away their land, deprived them of the produce of their labor, forced them to work on the collective farms as serfs of the state, and left them to starve in years of bad harvests. By the workers he is regarded as the man who deprived them of the fruits of the Boshevik Revolution, reduced their standard of life even lower than it was under the Tsars, and enforced the most drastic "labor discipline" existent anywhere in the world not excluding Germany. By the few survivors of the original Communist Party he is regarded as the betrayer of the Communist ideal and the greatest of counterrevolutionaries. His sole support is the bureaucracy dependent on his favors and the O. G. P. U., and they will be loyal to him only so long as he is not defeated.

It may be that the workers of Russia, in spite of all they have lost and all that they have suffered, will rally around the Red army and fight and work to save Russia, hoping to rid themselves of Stalin as well as to ward off the Nazi menace. If Trotsky were alive, his magic name and the memories it invokes of the great high days of revolutionary fervor, when the workers hoped to rule the first Socialist state on earth, might rekindle the revolutionary fires of bygone years to defeat Hitler.

What of the peasants? Churchill evidently expects them to fight in defense of their "hearths and homes." But the Russian peasants have long since lost their stake in the country. Even the Chinese peasant, heavily burdened by rent, interest and taxation, has more to defend than the Russian. Ivan may fight as bravely as a free man so long as the Red army remains in being, but he will not want to continue the war as a guerrilla. As in 1917, the peasants will try to get home to their families and the land, and they may already be hoping that they can get back the land if the Soviet government is defeated by Germany. In the Ukraine, at least, the peasants may even welcome the Germans as liberators if the end of the hated collective farm system is promised. The German army is not undisciplined like the Japanese; it does not rob and massacre and rape indiscriminately. Also, the Germans are politically far more astute than the Japanese. If they set up some cheap stores and start supplying the peasants with the cheapest and shoddiest of textiles and shoes, and with some gadgets, few of them will want to fight to turn the Germans out. The peasants know they could not be worse off than for the past ten years and may even welcome a change of masters.

THE MOST HORRIBLE thing about this latest war is, indeed, likely to be the things which the Russians will do to each other, if and when the Stalin regime is destroyed or disintegrates. The release of the stored-up hatreds and resentments of 25 years must lead to massacres, anarchy and horror upon horror. If Germany confines her conquests to South Russia and the western territories to the north, she can afford perhaps to leave the rest of Russia to starvation, anarchy and civil war. But pestilence cannot be confined outside of frontiers and might sweep over all Europe out of "Free Russia."

Lastly, in contrasting the Russian and Chinese situation, there is the fact that it will be even harder to supply Russia from outside than it has been to supply China.

Latin Diplomats to Tour U. S. Defense Projects

Forty Will Leave Tomorrow by Plane For Tennessee Valley Inspection Trip

Over 40 Good Neighbor diplomats and officials will leave Washington by plane early tomorrow morning for an extensive—or in some instances, a birds-eye-look at American defense projects and activities in the Tennessee Valley.

Several ambassadors as well as numerous air and military attaches of the Latin-American corps here are included in the group. Laurence Duggan, adviter on palitical relations for the State Department, and several high-ranking naval officers will be on hand at Bolling Field tomorrow when the group takes off in Army planes at 9:30.

The largest dam in the East, an Army camp, and bomber factories are some of the projects to be inspected by the diplomats. In their four-day tour, all to be made by air, they will get an inside look at what the United States is doing for defense.

The Cuban Ambassador, Dr. Aurelio Concheso, and his minister counselor, Dr. Jose T. Baron, are among those who have accepted the invitation extended by Sumner Welles on behalf of the board of directors of the Tennessee Valley Authority. The Ambassador of Panama, Dr. Carlos N. Brin, the Bolivian Minister, Dr. Luis Fernando Guachalla, and the Honduran envoy, Dr. Julian R. Caceres, are others who will board the planes tomorrow.

The committee in charge has also received acceptances from Col. Antonio Parodi, Military Attache of the Argentine Embassy, and, also from the Argentine staff, Lieut. Col. Alfredo Paladini, Air Attache, and Anselmo Viacava, Commercial Counselor; Capt. F. A. Zumelzu and Maj. A. von Wulfen, of the Argentine Special Military Purchase Commission, and Lieut. Comdr. Carlos O. Rivero, of the Argentine Naval Commission.

Others are Carlos Dorado Choptes, First Secretary, and Col. Oscar Moscoso, Military and Air Attache of the Bolivian Legation; Brig. Gen. Amaro Soares Bittencourt, Military Attache; Lieut. Comdr. Edmundo Amorim do Valle, Naval Attache, and Lieut. Col. Stenio Caio de Albuquerque Lima, Assistant Military Attache of the Brazilian Embassy; Capt. Carol Cortes, Naval Attache; Group Capt. Rafael Saenz, Air Attache; Mario Rodriguez, First Secretary, and Lieut. Col. Guillermo Lopez-Larrain, Military Attache of the Chilean Embassy. Rudolfo Michels, jr., son of the Chilean Ambassador, is going along.

Others are Capt. Jorge E. Bustos, Colombian Air Attache; Col. Ernesto Buenaventura, Director of Military Aviation and member of the Colombian Military Mission, and Col. Francisco Tamayo, Director General of the Navy and member of the Colombian Military Mission.

Envoy's Son Is on List

The Dominican Republic will be represented by Sebastian E. Valverde, Second Secretary; Tomas Pastoriza, son of the Minister and a student of engineering, and Dr. Rafael Battle, a student at Johns Hopkins University under a Latin-American exchange fellowship.

Col. Cristobal Guzman Cardenas, military attache of the Mexican Embassy; Justo Sierra, second secretary; Miguel Penaloza, third secretary, and Gonzalo Blanco Macias, agricultural attache, will represent Mexico. Others going are Julio E. Briceno, Panamanian counselor; Dr. Paul Pena, surgeon general and director of public health for Paraguay; Col. Hugo Mujins, Capt. Julio C. Poussin and Lieut. Col. Medardo R. Farias of the Uruguay Embassy; and, from Venezuela, Dr. Gustavo Manrique Pacanins, attorney general; Arturo Lares, charge d'affaires; Juan Lecuna, second secretary; Dr. Francisco J. Parra, consul general in New York; Dr. Gerardo Sanson, director of the administration of public works, and Dr. Roberto Diaz, engineer appointed by his government to survey highway systems in the United States.

Allan Dawson and John Dreier, of the Division of American Republics, and Lieut. Col. L. J. Compton and Lieut. Col. John Winslow of Military Intelligence will accompany the party. The group will fly directly to the Kentucky Dam project, near Paducah, where TVA is speeding to completion the largest dam in the Eastern United States. The group will inspect the $105,000,000 construction, which will provide 180,000 kilowatts of installed capacity. The construction schedule on the project was recently moved ahead by a full year and the dam will be completed at the end of 1943.

To Visit Aircraft Plant

On Monday the distinguished group will visit the Vultee aircraft plant at Nashville, Tenn. This plant, going into major production this month, will make dive-bombers for the American and British armies as well as Army training planes. Its capacity has been more than doubled in the past year.

In the afternoon the group will fly to Muscle Shoals, Ala., flying over the Monsanto and Victor electro-chemical plants in middle Tennessee. These plants produce elemental phosphorus, useful in manufacture of products for national defense from raw material supplied by the middle Tennessee phosphate rock deposits.

After stopping to see a recently constructed aluminum plant, which was put into operation in record time, the group will inspect Camp Forrest, near Manchester, Tenn. This camp is headquarters for the Thirty-third Division of the National Guard and was recently the center for Army maneuvers in which more than 70,000 soldiers participated.

Wednesday, the final day of the trip, the visitors will inspect the Norris Dam, near Knoxville. They will fly back that time have a good idea of American defense efforts—at least in the important Tennessee Valley.

Weather Conditions

U. S. Dept. of Commerce, Weather Bureau, Washington, Friday, July 11, 7:30 p. m.

Forecast for the District of Columbia—Saturday mostly cloudy and humid with local thundershowers in afternoon; showers and cooler Saturday night; Sunday mostly cloudy and cooler; gentle to moderate south or southwest winds Saturday becoming northerly by Saturday night.

For Maryland—Mostly cloudy and humid with showers and local thundershowers Saturday; showers and cooler Saturday night; Sunday mostly cloudy and cooler.

For Virginia—Considerable cloudiness and humid with local showers and thundershows in afternoon Saturday; showers and cooler Saturday night; Sunday mostly cloudy and cooler with likelihood of showers in south portion.

Conditions

Numerous showers and local thundershowers have occurred during the last 24 hours in the Eastern and Southern States and the Rocky Mountain and Plateau regions. The heaviest showers were in the deep mass of warm moist air of tropical origin that is moving northeastward in and south of a trough of low pressure that extends from Texas to northern New England. The lowest pressures in this trough are 1,005.1 millibars (2.9.68 inches), at Del Rio, Tex., and 1,008.8 millibars (29.79 inches), at Buffalo, N. Y. An extensive anticyclone accompanied by cooler and drier air of polar origin is moving southward from the Plains States, the upper Mississippi Valley and the lake region with highest pressure 1,022.4 millibars (30.19 inches), at Devils Lake. Pressure remains high off the Atlantic Coast. Low pressure prevails over most sections west of the Rocky Mountains. Blythe, Calif., 1,001.0 millibars (29.56 inches).

City Outguessed on Relief

Lansing, Mich. (U.P.).—City officials said that industrial employment had taken so many persons from the relief and WPA rolls that for the first time since the plan started, the city would be left with a stock of garden seeds intended for free distribution to needy families.

Action on Three District Bills Is Postponed

Postponement of action on three District bills—measures to modernize the small-loan law, raise the pay of police and firemen and to establish dry zones throughout the city by amendment of the ABC law—was announced Thursday night by Chairman Jennings Randolph.

All three of the bills are on the House calendar, but Randolph said they would not be called up on Monday, the next District Day. Randolph explained that delay in House consideration of the small-loan bill was requested by Representatives Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, and Sauthoff (Progressive), of Wisconsin. Both members will be out of the city Monday.

Dirksen also has sworn to fight the liquor bill to death. The measure, sponsored by Representative Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana, would set up 400-foot dry zones around every school, church, playground, public library, Navy yard, Army post, the Soldiers Home and institutions harboring the needy. Also it would ban all forms of liquor-price advertising.

Dirksen has repeatedly attacked the bill as a monopoly measure.

While Randolph made no comment on the police-pay bill, it was generally conceded that the measure would have little chance of passage while a District subcommittee is investigating the police.

The small-loan bill would make it legal for lending companies to charge 2 per cent interest per month, on loans of $500 or less. Representative Sheridan (Democrat) of Pennsylvania, has indicated he intends to offer an amendment to reduce the interest on a sliding-scale basis and to cut the loan limit to $300.

Thomas Mann Joins Congress For Democracy

New York, July 11.—Thomas Mann, the novelist, has joined the German-American Congress for Democracy, it was announced yesterday by Conrad Woelfel, national secretary of the congress, at offices of the national executive board.

"My German education and the German traditions for which I stand combines itself in the most natural and easy fashion with a most complete loyalty toward the principles upon which America is based," Mann wrote to Woelfel.

"The German-American Congress for Democracy is an emblem under which others with such conviction should rally therefore. I hope it will become a meeting place for those who feel and believe that German blood is no obstacle to love of freedom and human dignity."

Contract Is Let For Arlington Army Warehouse

The War Department Thursday awarded a $1,640,000 contract to John McShain, Inc., of Philadelphia, for construction of a quartermaster storage warehouse in Arlington.

The structure will replace the present leased warehouse at Twenty-fourth and M Streets Northwest and will be located on land now being acquired adjoining the Arlington Cantonment and the Washington Airport.

Madame Chairman

By Suzanne

For the first time, a "garden tour" of the alley window boxes sponsored by the Washington Council of Church Women is being planned this summer by Mrs. Walter Kline, supervisor of the project.

Even though these miniature gardens are measured merely in inches, the care and pride lavished on them are far out of proportion to the dimensions. Each gardener of this atomic "acreage" will display carefully tended petunias and vines and other greenery.

Of the several hunred boxes set up through the council, many are in the Southwest, so the tour will center there. It is likely that tea will be served at the end of the tour, in the garden of Miss Etta Mai Russell, executive secretary of the council, at 478 N Street Southwest.

Board members of the council, as well as other visitors, will be welcomed on the tour. Prizes will be awarded for the best window boxes.

Although this is a new feature, the window box plan has been in progress for several years. Persons in other parts of the country who have heard about it have sent seed. A woman in South Carolina last fall mailed a package of small black seed from a vine in her yard. They were given out this spring and have festooned numerous boxes in District alleys with a red-flowered vine.

U. S. W. V. AUXILIARY HEAD RETURNS—Mrs. Betty Bassett, national president of the auxiliary, United Spanish War Veterans, has returned to her headquarters here after a tour to every State in the Union. She made radio addreses in 46 States.

She visited 73 cities to hold round table conferences with auxiliary leaders and to see veterans' facilities in the vicinity.

Since her return here she is busy with plans for the convention in Omaha, August 17-21, after which she will go to her ranch in Pleasonton, Calif. She will be chairman of the 1942 Women's Patriotic Conference on National Defense.

Marriage Worse Than Draft, Says Marshall Nephew

Los Angeles, July 11 (AP).—Lockwood Marshall, nephew of Gen. George C. Marshall, Army Chief of Staff, said yesterday his bride of nine months, Charlotta Rutledge Marshall, persuaded him to marry her to evade the draft.

Scion of a wealthy St. Louis family, Marshall made the statement in a deposition filed in a divorce suit against his wife, whom he married in Las Vegas, Nev., last October 1.

"She said I ought to get out of the draft that way," Marshall's deposition stated. "I thought getting married without sufficient funds was worse than being drafted."

Marshall said he was earning $135 a month as secretary to his mother and that "I could barely afford the trip to Las Vegas."

Dance Will Honor States of the Rockies

The All-States Club of Washington will hold the second of a series of "Get Acquainted Dances" at the Washington Hotel tonight at 9:30 o'clock. This week's dance will honor the Rocky Mountain States and E. Malcolm Batcher, of the All-States Club, has invited all Congressmen from those States to attend as guests of honor.

Dehydrated Foods Keep All Essentials

By Ida Jean Kain

FOOD CONCENTRATES are assuming a major importance in the Battle of the Atlantic. With shipping space becoming steadily more constricted, it is necessary that as much food as possible be packed into the space that remains. Concentrates are the answer.

Should the need arise, it is not beyond the realms of speculation that a few huge airliners would be converted into concentrate transports and dispatched daily to England. An official of one of our large food companies has been investigating such a possibility and estimates that one plane carrying 20,000 pounds of concentrated soup could assure 500,000 people of a bowl of soup.

Before the war the British depended a great deal upon meats for their proteins and large quantities of beef were imported from the Argentine. Lack of shipping facilities coupled with the hazards of the long trip now make this impossible and we are asked to supply animal proteins in concentrated form. The Secretary of Agriculture is encouraging the farmers to step up production of a high quality protein to meet this emergency.

Milk Tops Foods

The best all-around food is milk and its products. When milk is dried, evaporated, condensed or made into cheese, it takes up much less space and is easier to ship. At the same time, the food values are largely retained. This is particularly the case with dehydrated foods. The following table gives a comparison of the food value of a pound of whole milk with the values of the concentrated forms:

	Calories	Protein Grams	Calcium Grams	Vitam A Units	B	C	G
Whole milk	300	15	.5	950	50	90	140
Dried milk	2300	115	4.0	8440	680	100	2270
Evaporated milk (unsweetened)	640	31	1.4	2000	118	...	606
Condensed milk (sweetened)	1500	36	1.3	....	110	...	....

Banana Dehyrated

Other food consentrates which will probably be included in these shipments are dried eggs, dried soy beans, peanut butter and peanut flour, vegetable oils, soups and meat concentrates. Science is rapidly adding to the list. Just recently the banana has been dehydrated—a medium size one can be reduced to a tablespoon of pulverized product.

Dress for Sunburn and a Possible Drenching When You Go on That Romantic Canoe Trip

Stepping cautiously into the canoe, the girl above wears the type of outfit ardent canoeists approve of wholeheartedly. The cotton jersey shirt offers protection from the sun. The shorts have just a slight flare to permit freedom. They are appropriate in cotton chambray, seersucker, sharkskin or gabardine.

By Jane Driscoll
The Post Fashion Editor

(This is one of a series of articles on sports fashions for Washington women.)

CANOEING, long popularized as the romantic diversion of swains and their maids, has now become one of the favorite Washington pastimes. From the blade who paddles his girl to Water Gate concerts, to young bachelorettes who make canoeing a week-end outing, all indulge.

Until recently the sport of national regattas and Olympian meets, canoeing is now becoming the sport of the individual. Local canoeing experts reveal that about two-thirds of those who are ardent enthusiasts own their own canoes and keep them at canoeing clubs or professional houses where they rent space.

Social Activities Attract

The social life connected with the clubs is an attraction. Regattas, dances, crab feasts and oyster roasts are held at Analostan Island and Roosevelt Island. Professional boating houses, too, are just as popular as the clubs, and on weekends and concert nights, canoes are really at a premium.

Regardless of how or where a girl does her canoeing, she will save herself many a drenching if she is properly dressed for the affair. Dressing for the sun is another important item, especially if the girl is the type who goes in for paddling up the Potomac River as far as Chain Bridge or down the river as far as the Washington Airport.

Miss Helen Decker, a former member of the Sycamore Island Canoe Club, prepares herself for the sun, and an occasional drenching, by a three-piece outfit which she wears when she goes on an outing. "It is really a two-piece bathing suit with long straight shorts and a bra and matching long sleeved shirt," she said. And she added that the shirt is not the tuck-in type with a tail, but ties with a ribbon draw string permitting plenty of freedom.

Shorts Cooler, Safer

In speaking of the virtues of shorts and shirts over other kinds of outfits, Miss Decker explained, "shorts are much cooler and since there is danger of the canoe's tipping over in the water, they are less hampering to the stabilizing maneuvers." She pointed out that shorts should fit snugly enough so that they stay anchored firmly!

Miss Decker also advises a girl to avoid halter neck outfits. "They are uncomfortable on the shoulders and hinder arm movement. I prefer shirts, because they fit easily and offer more protection," she said. Several different kinds of shorts and shirts, made of quick-drying seersucker or a similar fabric, were also suggested.

In praise of bathing suits for canoeing, Miss Decker thinks they are fine because one can swim right out to the canoe in them, if necessary. "They should be made in a loose fitting style that is comfortable to sit in, however," she said. She prefers the cotton dress-maker style because a wool suit becomes uncomfortable after paddling for a while.

Count Calories To Reduce

MISS BULGY hoped to reduce this summer—"living off light, cooling snacks" as she does! Instead, she's getting fatter and fatter, feeling hotter and hotter, too.

She doesn't realize how many fattening, heating calories are in her favorite chocolate malted milk (700), in peach ice cream (200 a half cup) and peanuts (300 a bag).

In reducing it isn't how much you eat, but what! You can lose 2 pounds a week on three good meals a day, if they're of low-calory foods. And of course you can have your cooling snacks, also, when you have a calory chart to show you what's what.

Iced tea with lemon and sugar has only 50 calories, two fresh peaches 67, popcorn 100 a bag. You'll really feel cool afterwards, too, because you won't be "stoking up" on fuel foods.

What sort of dinners can you have? Here's a typical tasty reducing dinner of only 381 calories: a glass of tomato juice, average slice of roast lamb, a medium-size browned potato, ½ cup of green peas, a cup of coffee jelly!

Lost 10 pounds in five short weeks! Our 40-page booklet, "Change Your Weight for Beauty's Sake," has 42 low-calory menus, calory chart and low-calory dessert recipes. Includes 3-day liquid diet to start reducing; also information on gaining for thin people.

Night Workers Can Plug Ears, Sleep in Noise

Many of Washington's newcomers—and there are thousands—find themselves in a city for the first time. Accustomed to a quiet rural existence, they are disturbed by the rumbling of buses and street cars, the honking of motor horns, the screeching of fire trucks and ambulances, unthoughtful noisy neighbors and other annoyances. Sensitive to all the clattering noises of their new surroundings, they find themselves unable to sleep.

Then there are those in many occupations who must work at night and sleep during the daytime. This is especially true of many Government workers who come to the Capital to work in defense agencies. In time, many will be able to sleep through the thousand-and-one ear-piercing sounds. But many high-strung, sensitive individuals will continue to suffer from endless sleepless nights.

For those who suffer from these many annoyances there are inexpensive gadgets for sale to shut out the sounds while you sleep—day or night. One such contrivance approved by physicians is "Flents" antinoise ear stoppies. Made of plastic balls of wax and cotton, they are easily inserted and removed. Flents conform to the shape of the ears, fitting gently and firmly. Excellent for restless sleepers, they are also good for swimmers and bathers who suffer when water enters the ears.

Man Asks Remedial Counsel for His Fiancee, Who Constantly Tells Lies About Trivial Things, Yet Is 'Fine, Faithful and Loyal as Can Be'

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My fiancee and I have been sweethearts for almost two years. We plan to be married this coming October. She is the finest and most wonderful girl in all the world, and as faithful and loyal to me as can be. But it seems she just cannot help lying to me over the most trival things. She confesses, I freely forgive, she promises never to do so again, and then does.

This has been a regular habit with her ever since I have known her. Is it an obsession? She attends Sunday School and church regularly, and in every other way is a Christian. Is her falsifying a disease? It makes me suspicious of her and that hurts both of us terribly. She thinks much of your advice to others and I am hoping you can help her. Will you please try? D. M.

DEAR D. M.: When a person lies with the idea of concealing the truth, or passing the buck, usually he is motivated by fear. He is afraid to face up to the penalties (of one kind and another) he thinks he may have to pay, if the truth comes to light. He thinks he is worming his way out of difficulties. He is a person who hasn't grown up to the level of being able and willing to accept the consequences of his actions and shortcomings. This kind of lying,—intended to "save face" or avert punishment,—is not uncommon among children. Indeed, it is almost involuntarily adopted as a self protective device by children who are "ruled with a rod of iron," and expected to be paragons in every aspect of behavior.

However, your fiancee's habitual falsifying seems to be of another sort. She isn't lying to "save face." Actually, she seems to be lying for the purpose of "getting herself in Dutch"—so that she can figure as heroine (or holder of the spotlight) in a touching little drama featuring confession, contrition, forgiveness, and grateful praise (from her confessor) for her Quixotic valor in declaring her trifling or unsuspected transgression.

People who lie for no demonstrably serviceable reason,—who "tell a lie when the truth would serve better,"—are known as "pathological liars." The existence of a mental quirk,—of a tendency toward mental unbalance,—is implied in the term. However, such Baron Munchausen story-telling is not so much the manifestation of a sick mind as it is indicative of an infantile effort to win special attention by specious means.

There is a possibility that your sweetheart, when a very small girl, told a lie about something, then repented and confessed it (in panicked fear of hell's fire), and thereby won unprecedented praise and reassurance from her elders—for being so brave as to declare her guilt. There may have been something so gratifying to her ego about the experience (assuming it happened), that she has been trying, ever since, to re-create the situation and re-live the personal emotions incorporated in that ineffable (but deeply buried) memory.

Not that she would be consciously harking back. But that, unconsciously, she might be under compulsion to try to re-capture a joyousness of spirit she knew once, and never again,—the joy of the sinner who has the conviction of being "saved;" who finds himself enfolded in the embrace of perfect, forgiving, approving love; who is buoyed up, for the nonce, in a feeling (although he might not define it so) of being in absolute accord with the Holy Ghost, or with persons who stand t him in God's stead, or whose approval seems to him even more important than the favor of God.

The fact that your fiancee is a church-going, God-fearing person, whose only character flaw is this baffling addiction to nonsensical lying, lends credence a such a theory. So, also, does her repetitious confession of petty falsehoods to you, who dearly love her and whom she dearly loves. It seems she has a neurotic appetite for being "freely forgiven" and tenderly reassured by one whose approbation means everything to her. In being "terribly hurt" by your growing suspicions of her essential trustworthiness, she is showing how neurotically dependent she is upon your willingness to forgive wholeheartedly.

While this may or may not be an approximate explanation of the source of her difficulty, at least it gives an idea of where she must look, to find the true explanation of her chronic petty falsifying. In order to overcome the habit, she must (1) realize that, unless weeded out, it may spoil her whole life, by ruining every personal relationship for her; and (2) resolve to dig deep in her past experiences, for the purpose of unearthing the roots of this false, self defeating technique of attention-getting. When she has been given to see the "first cause" 'of her mischievousness, she will then be in a secure mental position to start reeducating herself to the habit of consistent truth telling,—which brings incalculable personal poise and social benefits in its wake.

In conclusion, let me remind her that every falsehood she tells takes toll of every true word she utters. For "the truth itself is not believed, in one who often has deceived." M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

'Mature' Coiffure For Joan Leslie

Hollywood, Calif.—With her hair down her back, Joan Leslie looks only her 16 years. But it's a different story when she twists it on top of her head in a sophisticated and "experienced" pompadour.

For her "maturer moments," Perc Westmore has designed a coiffure that revives the French roll, ideal for girls with natural curls like Joan's red-gold ones. The hair is parted on the side, scooped into a neat roll, with the curly ends falling over her brow in bangs. She nestles a small bow at dead center.

Back-to-Soil Motif Manifest In New Rustic Home Furnishings

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

It's smart to be tacky! What a curious paradoxical state of affairs that reflects . . . and yet perhaps it is really democracy in action. For we've come a long way toward an ideal society when man's heart's desire is no longer the palace but the cottage . . . when he prefers a friendly comfortable simplicity to pomp and plumage.

These thoughts, translated into specific things, explain our love for colonial maple furniture, for hooked and braided rugs, for quilts and old lamps, for pressed glass and blue and white china, for pewter and checked damask. They explain why we like casual effects and pleasant country airs.

Many town folks carry their interest in rural affairs still further. They collect color prints of fine live stock to frame and hang in groups on the wall. They search for botany prints of crop plants, and they make lamp bases or lighting fixtures out of old farm tools. They save hand bills and posters of country fairs and use them for screens.

Gingham and calico are favorite country materials—with linen so scarce, they're being used more and more for informal table mats. Those who really mean what they say about their farm friends will be interested in making a set of summer table mats of green and white checked gingham with appliqued designs of farm animals. This would be gay and amusing for lunch on the porch or week-end entertaining. Another fresh looking table, set in a rural mood, had white dress linen runners appliqued with ripe red apples. These, set with clear glass plates and goblets, were delightful for a salad and fruit menu topped off with iced coffee.

Evening Wraps For Cotton Frocks

Summer evening frocks are the simplest things in the world, what with the popularity of cottons and lace. But what to wear for an evening wrap? Velvets and furs are out, of course. Some of the girls in Hollywood are having gossamer capes made of chiffon, crepe or sheers to match their frocks.

If you want something heavier, you'll like the evening coat Edward Stevenson designed for Joan Fontaine to wear in a current motion picture. It's ivory wool flannel, sheer as flannel can be, collarless, fitted at waist and hip, with flowing floor-length skirt. Stylized leaves in gold embroidery appear at one shoulder and at the waist.

'Out of the Fog' Emerges Grim Drama, at the Earle

Excellent Cast Illumines Screen Play Adapted From Irwin Shaw's 'Gentle People;' Stellar Acts Comprise the Stage Revue

IT IS A SOMBER AND SULTRY screen drama that the Warner Brothers have made out of Irwin Shaw's stage play of "The Gentle People," but a grimly interesting and splendidly acted one.

"Out of the Fog," presented yesterday at the Earle for the first time in its new form and under its new title, as everybody must know by now, is a stark story of the persecution of the kindly "little people" by the avaricious, strong and lawless. The "gentle people" are personified by the lowly pants presser and meek little chef in a cheap hash-house on the fringes of Brooklyn at Sheepshead Bay; their brutal Nemesis by a small-time racketeer who imposes his supremacy upon them by brute force and an automatic. It does not require too much imagination to interpret the play in terms of totalitarian and democratic nations, although so expressed it would not be the simple, direct and powerful drama of human revolt that it is.

Wharfrat Harold Goff begins merely by levying tribute at the rate of $5 a week for the "protection" of the pitiful little skiff in which Jonah Goodwin and Olaf Knudsen escape from their domestic problems by going fishing four nights a week. He later expands his depredations to the Goodman home and dazzles the daughter with the flash of his cheap opulence. George Watkins, her steadfast lover, can do nothing about it, so Papa Goodwin hits upon a plan. In the jungle, he argues, when a tiger plunders, ravages and kills, the oppressed adopt similar methods and kill the marauder. That is what he and Olaf will do. In the original play, that is the way it happens. In the screen version now on view, the same result is achieved one dark and foggy night out on the bay by means more in consonance with the gentle people in the Hays office. Only a little of the play's retributive effectiveness is sacrificed by this equally efficient device.

While both the motivation and the developments of the film are as murky as the fog that blankets the waterfront, there are occasional intervals in lighter mood. The most eloquently amusing occurs in the steambath scene, where the harassed Igor Propotkin expatiates at some length on the inconveniences of bankruptcy after 16 years of being an "institution" in the community. Odette Myrtil, as the romantic restaurant owner, with her cash register set for Olaf; Leo Gorcey, erstwhile "Dead End" kid, as her counterman, and Aline MacMahon, the hypochondriac Mrs. Goodman, also contrive, from time to time, to inject a note of squalid humor into the proceedings. "Out of the Fog," in the main, however, is a pretty relentless social document.

Strengthened by Sterling Cast

The five principal roles in the picture have been filled with unassailable judgment. Thomas Mitchell and John Qualen are restrained and deeply moving as the major objects of the viciousness of John Garfield's ominously glossy Goff. Ida Lupino, as the fascinated Stella Goodwin, manages to inspire a degree of sympathy totally undeserved by a young employe of the telephone company so willing to be blinded by the petty wealth of her gangster, and Eddie Albert portrays her honest but helpless lover with quiet and convincing forcefulness. Minor supporting roles are made important by George Tobias, whose bookkeeping suffered from his inability to add and subtract; Aline MacMahon, long absent from the screen but now back as Mrs. Goodwin, and Robert Homans, as the understanding cop on the beat.

Star-Studded Stage Revue

The new stage bill which Harry Anger distilled from yesterday's humidity to cheer the customers, was lustily and deservedly cheered by them. It is made up exclusively of stellar acts—including all of the Roxyettes.' The Martins, those four youthful harmonists who first came to Washington's attention in "Three After Three" and later in "Louisiana Purchase," continue to be tops in the delivery of their shrewdly arranged songs, and the Wesson Brothers, offering their fraternal frolic in impersonation, are better than ever—if possible. With one filling the eye and the other the ear, they are sure-fire. Isabel Jewell, in this week's nominal headline position, proves a gracious and lovely Hollywood importation who scores decisively in a single character skit of a heart-broken waitress. One or two more like it would be welcome. Those Roxyettes are at their best in the "Reno Widows" and "Sleigh Bells" numbers.

A comprehensive newsreel, featuring Chief Justice Stone, Mr. and Mrs. Billy Conn, our submarine fleet and numerous other timely items, and "The Wacky Worm," an utterly daffy Merrie Melodie cartoon comedy in color, round out a program that spans the poles of entertainment.

Apparently Not Out of It Yet!

JOHN GARFIELD, IDA LUPINO, EDDIE ALBERT the three principals in "Out of the Fog," the new screen attraction that opened yesterday at the Warner Brothers' Earle Theater. It is a film play based on Irwin Shaw's stage success, "The Gentle People," creditably done not so long ago by the Washington Civic Theater at Wardman Park. Important supporting roles are played by Thomas Mitchell, John Qualen, George Tobias and Aline MacMahon

Out of Friendly Jam Session Springs a Full-Blown Musical

By Alexander Kahn

Hollywood, July 11 (U.P.).—It was Saturday night at the home of a movie writer and the big house in the Hollywood hills, overlooking San Fernando Valley, was packed with people. A Hollywood jam session was in progress.

From the studio sound stages, the orchestra pits, vaudeville circuits and radio came the talent to perform for the amusement of the entertainers themselves.

Duke Ellington, Negro pianist-composer, was comparing notes with Mario Tedesco, noted in the same field, as they sat at the piano together. Jackie Cooper was beating out "hot licks" on the drums in one corner. Jerry Adler, brother of Larry Adler, of the stage, had his harmonica growling hoarse notes. And from time to time other musicians and orchestra leaders, including Wingy Mannone, Jack Teagarden and Bob Hartley "gave out" with their favorite instruments.

From a faint tinkling at the piano the sound would grow to a roaring crescendo, while around the room others without instruments tapped their feet, clapped their hands or just hummed.

Birth of a Title

"The place is certainly jumping," Kuller commented.

"And how," someone answered, "jumping for joy."

"That's a swell title for a musical show: 'Jump for Joy,' Kuller quipped.

"Well, we're just the ones to do it," the answer came back to him.

That scene took place three months ago and tomorrow evening the all-Negro musical show, "Jump for Joy," opens its engagement at the Mayan Theater here.

Duke Ellington agreed not only to contribute a half-dozen or more new numbers to the enterprise, but to appear in it himself with his orchestra.

Kuller and Hal Fimberg, both veteran comedy writers, who collaborated on the Marx Brothers picture, "The Big Store," worked on the sketches. Paul Webster, outstanding lyricist, contributed to the compositions of Ellington and Hal Borne. Nick Castle, leading studio dance director, agreed to stage the dance numbers. Rene Hubert, famous set and costume director, dressed the chorus and principals—an unusual enterprise for the man whose ability at costume designing has been used almost exclusively by Gloria Swanson to earn her the reputation as one of the best-dressed women in America.

"Sold" to Its Backers

The show was auditioned before many Hollywood people to raise the money necessary for the staging of the production, and among the film celebrities who "bought in" on the enterprise were producers Joseph Pasternak and Clark Edwards, writer William Burnett, film star Joseph Garfield and many others.

The enterprise was incorporated under the name of the American Review Theater and Walter Jurmann, Viennese composer, was elected president. The corporation's directors are Kuller, Fimberg, Webster and Henry Blankfort, who staged the hit musical show, "Meet the People."

Everyone who ever attended a "session" at Kuller's home offered to contribute something to the shows. Writers whose salaries range from hundreds to several thousand dollars weekly came to rehearsals and offered gags for the skits.

Of the musical numbers incorporated in the review several are already being hummed and recorded, including "Brown-Skinned Gal in a Calico Gown," "Chocolate Shake," "Two Left Feet," "If Life Were All Peaches and Cream" and "I Got It Bad and That Aint' Good."

LEONARD LYONS

Always a Diplomat

New York, July 11.

DEFEAT: Richard de Rochemont, of the March of Time, just returned from France, where, among others, he met Edouard Herriot, the former premier, whose government fell when he insisted upon paying France's war-debts to America . . . Herriot was the mayor of Lyon for 35 years, but was ousted from that job 24 hours after the Vichy government was established. "France is in a period of transition," said Herriot. "They're trying to fascize the country, under cover of the German occupation" . . . When De Rochemont asked Herriot about Marshal Petain, he replied by quoting Corneille's comment about Cardinal Richelieu: "He has done me too much good, that I should speak badly of him. But he has done me too much evil that I should speak well of him."

KATHARINE CORNELL

ESCAPE: This was the story behind the Berlin announcement about Gen. Gamelin's "escape": Gamelin, the deposed leader of the French army, technically was under arrest. He was permitted, however, to leave his place of confinement—and made frequent trips to Vichy, to see friends and consult with the lawyer retained to defend him at his trial . . . The Nazi learned of Gamelin's liberties, and so they announced—from Berlin—that he had escaped. The Vichy officials therefore were obliged to disprove the story—by confining Gamelin to his jail.

SPORT: Katharine Cornell and her husband, Guthrie McClintic, had as their week-end guest in Cape Cod the venerable father of Miss Cornell—Peter Cornell: On his first afternoon there, Mr. Cornell became annoyed at the flies in the living room. He searched for a fly-swatter, found one, and then prepared to liquidate the insects . . . "Don't! Please don't!" his daughter implored. "You mustn't do that. That's Guthrie's only exercise."

PRIVACY: Joy Hodges, the screen actress, is married to Gilbert Doorley, the Omaha editor. Doorley, at one time, worked for the Associated Press, as picture-editor. That's why the A. P. never will release a photograph of Miss Hodges, unless her husband first approves of the picture . . . "We don't want to do anything," her publicist was told, "to invade the privacy of Mr. and Mrs. Doorley."

MIRACLE: Morris Gest, who once peduced "The Miracle," owns a watch which had been presented to him by Nikita Bailieff during the run of "Chauve Souris." Gest hasn't worn that watch in more than ten years . . . For the past few weeks he had become disconsolate at the reports of the Nazi triumphs in Russia. "I'm going to perform a miracle," he announced, in full view of witnesses. He brought out that watch, with its Moscow Art Theater decoration, and shouted: "Bailieff, change the conditions in Russia" . . . That same night the front pages announced that the Nazi advance had been halted . . . Gest patted the watch. "Nikita, Nikita," the producer elated. "You always were good at taking direction."

CHATTER: On Saturday, Dwight Wiman's daughter, Toddie, will be married to Dawson Coleman Glover, circulation manager of Golf Magazine. When they return from their Bermuda honeymoon, the groom will start hunting for a new job—because Golf folds with the July issue . . . Cecil Beaton, now the official photographer for the R. A. F., is preparing his new book—an album of his war pictures. Beaton, who left America because of a cover he drew for a fashion magazine, still receive copies of those magazines in London. "Now," he writes, "they all read as if they come from Mars" . . . Irving Berlin will introduce his newest song on the "Millions for Defense" broadcast . . . Jock Whitney now is backing a wholesale dress-house.

NAME: Alfred Hitchcock, the British director, discussed the birthplaces of various actors he knew in Hollywood . . . In referring to a noted movie comedienne, Hitchcock said: "She's Pennsylvania Dutch" . . . "Pensylvania Dutch" repeated Mrs. Hitchcock . . . "Yes, my dear," the director assured, "and by 'Pennsylvania Dutch,' I don't mean a mobster's nickname."

TRAVEL: . . . Ralph Ingersoll was at the White House, conferring with the President about his trip to China and Russia . . . "I wish I could go with you," said the President. Ingersold told him: "Come on, I can fix it" . . . The last time the President expressed a desire to visit the war front was when Wendell Willkie visited him, before the Inaugural, and Roosevelt gave him that letter to Churchill . . . "On Inauguration Day, you'll probably be at some London pub, thinking of how you'd like to be up here taking the oath of office," the President told the defeated candidate. "And I'll be taking the oath of office, and thinking of how I'd like to be over there, standing in a London pub."

Diva, Not Diver

ILONA MASSEY golden voiced screen star, soon to be seen in "New Wine." This will be her first vehicle to reach a local screen since "Balalaika," with Nelson Eddy

HEDDA HOPPER

Vocalists Snatched From Vortex

Hollywood, Calif., July 11.—Metro's gone completely ga-ga over their test of Marta Eggerth and have signed for her exclusive services. She was awfully good in those foreign pictures, and when she was here before with husband Jan Kiepura, Metro tried to sign her, but she wouldn't stay unless they signed him, too. So far, nothing's been said about his getting a contract, but I think they'd be plenty smart giving him another chance.

ERROL FLYNN

No, his first American picture wasn't good, but in a way, he wasn't responsible for it. The person who signed his contract in Europe giving him the right to do everything as he saw fit was the guilty one. Properly controlled in the right story, Jan Kiepura again can make box-office history.

The birthday party studio gave for Louis B. Mayer was, as usual, very real and sentimental, with Louis making a speech, saying, "If you continue to love and trust me, I hope you'll keep me and overlook my frailties, as I have tried to overlook yours." The only grumble heard was when the stars talked about buying him a present. They said, "Gee whiz, how can you give a guy who's got everything, anything?" . . . William Farnum also celebrated his birthday on July 4.

It's a tough spot to be in, having to follow up all of the raves on "Sergeant York," especially when you want to out-rave them . . . But on one point at least I mean to be heard and that is these suggestions for cutting the film down to standard length . . . The story divides itself naturally into two parts and it can much better be shown with an intermission, just as G. W. T. W. was . . . If any honest reviewer can sit down and shut his eyes and pick out one sequence in that picture that he feels can be spared, I'll eat it.

If I could get Jesse Lasky, Hal Wallis, Howard Hawks, and the entire cast and crew of that picture in one bunch, I'd hang a great big floral horseshoe around their combined necks . . . 'cause they've got a winner . . . no foolin'! And Gary's portrayal of Sergeant York . . . somebody stops me, before I slop over!!!

When Errol Flynn was lunching on Billy Leeds' 384-foot yacht, the Moana, over the weekend, the Naval Patrol men came along and gave him an order to dismiss the crew of 64 members—that the Government would take over the boat. It's the second largest private yacht afloat . . . Priscilla Lane's job in "New Orleans Blues" has her running around in her stocking feet so much she's worn out 16 pairs to date. It's a wonder they don't just paint a pair on her.

Red Skelton was thinking of taking a trip back to Indiana and seeing the home folks when he got a begging letter from one of his relatives, whereupon Red commented, "Gee whiz, they got Joey out of the woods, taught him to read and write, and now my trouble's begun" . . . Mary Martin, now that she has time on her hands, is writing thank-you notes to members of the press who have been particularly kind to her—such a sweet thing to do.

Funny watching gang of tough newspaper guys teaching husky Tom Harmon, Nation's number one athlete last year, how to win a dinner from them by delicately burning holes in tissue paper stretched over a glass without letting a dime planted on top break through. When Tom evinced an unusual aptitude for the game, they said it was all on account of he had a college education, and they wouldn't play with him any more.

It's been said that the dream of every newspaper reporter is to write a book in his spare time. Now it seems Humphrey Bogart is bit with the same bug. Naturally, with Bogey's screen past, he's writing a murder mystery.

Understand they've made three endings to "Before the Fact," and RKO isn't satisfied yet. The story calls for Cary Grant, a charming no-good murderer, to kill Joan Fontaine at end of the picture. They thought it a little too brutal and to get sympathy, decided to let her live. But the story was so worked out that by letting her live, they lost the punch of the picture. I hope, for their sake and the public's (not that I'm a bloodthirsty critter) they'll go back to the original ending.

Actor-Scientist

Many Jobs

Law Includes Judges, Too!

Even Federal judges must swear that they are against overthrowing the Government by force, if they want to collect their salaries. Forms for the required oath were distributed at Judiciary Square yesterday and sent more than one learned justice to the law books. "It's there all right," said one jurist, after consulting the statute, "it means us, too."

 SATURDAY, JULY 12, 1941 11

All in a Day's Work

Newark, N. J., July 11 (AP).—Bernard J. Doyle, of Elizabeth, a linotype operator for the Newark Evening News, placed an item before him and started to set it in type today. Then tears came to his eyes. It was the death notice of Miss Mary Doyle, a sister. In the confusion relatives had failed to notify him. Doyle finished typesetting the notice.

Va. Harvest Acreage Dips 2% in Year

Increase Reported In Tobacco, Cotton While Wheat, Corn Show Decrease

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., July 11.—The Virginia Cooperative Crop Reporting Service estimated today the acreage of the principal crops for harvest in the State this year at 3,756,000, about 2 per cent less than in 1940.

The same report said that while sections of the State remained dry throughout the month of June, recent rains had broken the drought completely.

The early commercial potato crop was described as "very disappointing" as a result of the dry weather in May, and poor yields also were reported for early snap beans, cabbage and beets.

The principal changes in acreages this year, on the basis of present estimates, were increases of 25 per cent in oats, 6 per cent in cotton, 5 per cent in flue-cured tobacco and decreases of 4 per cent for corn, 3 per cent for wheat, 19 per cent for rye cut for grain, 20 per cent for cowpeas, 5 per cent for peanuts, 28 per cent for fire-cured tobacco and 12 per cent for sun cured.

Corn, 1,322,000 acres, 32,389,000 bushels; wheat, 530,000 acres, 7,155,000 bushels; tame hay, 1,093,000 acres; peaches, 1,993,000 bushels, compared with 1,392,000 last year; peanuts, 161,000 acres; cotton, 35,000 acres; barley, 86,000 acres, 1,892,000 bushels; rye, 39,000 acres, 448,000 bushels; oats, 105,000 acres, 1,942,000 bushels; potatoes, including early commercials, 77,000 acres, 4,119,000 bushels (commercial); sweet potatoes, 32,000 acres.

Pastures have improved a great deal, the crop service said, although on July 1 their condition for the State as a whole was estimated at only 96 per cent of normal.

With the Virginia Brigade at 10-Day War Maneuvers

The Virginia 88th Brigade, stationed at Fort Meade, Md., moved this week to the A. P. Hill Military Reservation for ten days of maneuvers. Approximately 8,000 men, including the two infantry regiments, the 116th and 176th, and the 111th Field Artillery, are taking part in the war games. Here are some of them as the activities started:

Col. E. Sclater Mortague, of Hampton, commander of the 111th Field Artillery

Brig. Gen. G. M. Alexander, of Lynchburg, commanding the Eighty-eighth Brigade, confers with Col. Montague, Col. Cox and Lieut. Col. Edwin L. Carter, chaplain

Lieut. Col. Edwin P. Cox, of Richmond, executive officer of the Brigade

U. S. Predicts 23% Boost In Apple Crop

By the Associated Press

An increase of 12,619,000 bushels in apple production for 1941, as compared with last year, is expected by the Agriculture Department's crop reporting board.

The total yield, on the basis of July 1 conditions, was estimated at 67,049,000 bushels, while the production last year was 54,430,000. The average production from 1930 to 1939 was 54,356,000 bushels.

The July 1 condition estimate showed an improvement of 947,000 bushels over the crop indicated last June 1.

The condition on July 1 was reported at 85 per cent of normal, compared with 62 per cent last year and an average of 58 per cent for the 1934-1939 period.

New England prospects were reported slightly below average but condition of New York apples was better than last year. Growing conditions in New Jersey were favorable in June, but the condition is irregular. Pennsylvania's crop benefitted greatly by June rains. The Virginia crop was unusually free fo disease.

The production outlook for the central States was unusually favorable in all commercial regions except the Missouri Valley area comprising northwestern Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas. There the crop is light because of November freeze damage.

In the Far West, the condition of apples is average or above in all States except Montana and Oregon. Present indications were for crops of at least moderate size in those two States, however.

Among the July 1 conditions in principal producing States, compared with the July 1, 1940, condition, were:

New York, 58 per cent of normal July 1, 1941, and 53 per cent on July 1, 1940; Maryland, 61 and 63; Virginia, 61 and 56; North Carolina, 69 and 54; Georgia, 72 and 50.

Cumberland Officials to Confer On City Workers' Strike Threat

By the Associated Press

Cumberland, Md., July 11.—A conference of city officials was called for tomorrow to avert a threatened strike of city employes Monday to enforce demands for a pay rise of 12½ cents an hour.

Street, sewer, alley, and water department workers said they would strike unless the mayor and city council gave a satisfactory answer before Monday to their request for the pay boost.

Mayor Harry Irvine said he and city councilmen would meet tomorrow to discus the proposal and strike thereat. The conference is dependent, however, upon the return of Police cCmmissioner James Orr and Finance Commissioner Thomas F. Conlon, both of whom are out of the city today.

The mayor estimated the pay boost for street department workers alone would cost $7,000, and said there was some question whether the city could legally cut into other appropriations to raise the extra funds.

A letter signed by five workers appointed as a negotiating committee told of the strike threat Monday, Mayor Irvine added.

Street department employees now are paid 50 cents an hour; truck drivers and foremen 55½ cents, and several employes, Irvine said, receive 67 cents an hour.

Aged Pensions In Va. Rise to $10 a Month

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., July 1.—Old age assistance payments in Virginia during May reached an average of $10 per case for the first time since the program was inaugurated, the department of public welfare reported today.

This represented an increase of 0.4 per cent compared with April and 2.1 per cent compared with May, 1940.

A total of 19,993 persons received old age assistance payments during the month, an increase of 16.2 per cent compared with the number during the same month last year. Four hundred and twenty-five were added to the lists in May and 1,806 applications were pending at the close of the month.

Although the 547 applications for such aid received in May represented an increase of nearly 12 per cent over April, the number was a third less than in May a year ago.

Old age assistance payments totaled $199,899 for the month, an increase of 0.6 over April, and 18.7 over May, 1940.

All assistance payments for the month, including old age, aid to dependent children and general relief, totaled $382,186.09. With the addition of $80,314.96 in administrative costs the month's total public assistance expenditures were $462,501.05.

An average of $20.14 was paid out in the 4,291 dependent children cases and $9.55 a month for each of the 7,244 general relief cases.

Upper Class Midshipmen Back After Shortened Summer Leave

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Md., July 11.—Back from a shortened summer leave which began in June, 1,200 members of the Naval Academy's senior and junior classes prepared today to resume studies leading to early graduations for both groups.

Under a new national defense speed-up schedule, which reduced the academy course from four to three years, the 571 seniors and 629 juniors start a new academic year Monday. The seniors will be graduated in December, six months ahead of time, and the juniors, next June, a full year ahead of schedule.

After reporting back here at 10 a. m., the upper classmen stored their gear and drew their textbooks. They met the new freshman class for the first time in regimental formation.

When the formation of the freshman, or plebe, class is completed, the entire regiment will number more than 3,000 men, the largest midshipman group in academy history.

The plebe class is expected to consist of 1,050 midshipmen.

Under a special arrangement, the sophomore class was divided into three groups. Each group is spending one-third of the summer on leave, one-third at the academy, and one-third on short bay cruises.

The scholastic year for the sophomores and freshmen does not start until September.

New High Set In Md. Auto Registrations

444,055 Cars Licensed in First Three Months; Gain Exceeds 40,000

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, July 11.—Issuance of motor-vehicle licenses during the first three months of the current licensing year exceeded by more than 40,000 tags the number issued in any previous quarterly period, W. Lee Elgin, motor-vehicles commissioner, said today.

Elgin said 444,055 licenses of all classes had been issued from April 1, the first day of the licensing year, through June 30.

That figure was 41,686 above the 402,369 issued during the first three months of the 1940 licensing period, and only 24,295 under the total of 468,350 1940 tags issued during the entire year, Elgin said.

Will Pass 500,000

The commissioner estimates that total registrations for the current licensing year would easily pass the 500,000 mark.

Automobile revenue for the first three quarters of the fiscal year showed an increase over previous figures of almost $1,300,000, Elgin said.

Bureau Auditor Owen R. E. McGeeney reported that revenues from all sources showed a gain of approximately 23 per cent over the first nine months of the last fiscal year. Revenues include fees for license tags, learners' and drivers' permits, fines for motor vehicle law violations and title taxes.

Revenues Up 13 Per Cent

Motor-vehicle registrations and miscellaneous fees brought in $4,725,221.74 during the first nine months of the fiscal year, an increase of about 13 per cent over the same period last year.

Operating licenses accounted for $48,278, a gain of about 21 per cent.

Fines collected through State police activity increased 86 per cent during the first three-fourths of the fiscal year, bringing in $179,172.29. Revenues from local county fines were up 17.8 per cent, and from Baltimore City fines, 39.4 per cent.

Taxes collected on vehicles registered in Maryland for the first time, called titling taxes, brought in $1,414,630.41, an increase of 59 per cent over last year.

Road Tax Revenues Gain

Richmond, Va., July 11 (AP).—First quarter collections of the Virginia road tax on motor vehicle common carriers gave indication today of an increase for the year of possibly $75,000 compared with 1940.

J. C. Masten, of the corporation commission's taxation division, reported the three months' tax amounted to $92,838.62 compared with $70,553.62 during the same period of last year, or an increase $22,285.

The tax is 2 per cent of the gross receipts of the common carriers derived from Virginia operations. The tax does not include contract carriers.

Legion Fete Makes Queen Of Miss Brown

By the Associated Press

Colonial Beach, Va., July 11.—A torchlight parade, headed by Alexandria Voiture 934, tonight preceded the crowning of Miss Genevieve Brown of Fredericksburg as queen of the sixth annual American Legion festival and regatta, by T. Emmett Warriner, State department commander, at the coronation ball.

Princesses representing ten Virginia counties participated in the ceremonies at which Miss Jean Cavanaugh, recently selected as Miss Washington, D. C., was an honor guest.

The parade was concluded with the staging of the 40 and 8 wreck. Units represented in the parade included the Clown Band of Alexandria and three drum and bugle corps.

After the registration of Legionnaires for the festial, sponsored by Westmoreland Post No. 148, and a reception, high ranking officials of the State and national organizations attended a dinner at the Lywood House in honor of the 40 and 8. Sixty members of the Leaksille drum and bugle crps, North Carolina State champions, presented a special concert for the eterans.

Highlighting Saturday's program will be regatta eents, a luncheon in honor of Go. Price and Colgate Darden, jr. Democratic gubernatorial candidate, drum and bugle corps drill competition, grand parade, children's cent and the Legion grand ball.

Leading driers of the Middle Atlantic area are expected to compete in the 18 regatta eents listed for Saturday and Sunday.

U. of Va. Professors Criticize Wheeler For Iceland Data

Charlottesville, Va., July 11 (AP).—A group of University of Virginia faculty and staff members wrote Senator Burton Wheeler that "your advance revelation of naval moves relative to Iceland, at this crisis in American history, marks you as unworthy of the respect, on the part of patriotic citizens, to which a United States Senator is ordinarily entitled."

The letter was mailed to Senator Wheeler today above the signatures of 21 members of the University faculty and staff.

Drafted by James Hart, professor of political science, the letter was signed by Profs. Robert Goch, George Starnes, Tipton Snavely, Carroll Sparrow, Charles Davenport, Raymond Uhl, Henry Cumming, Lucius Moffett, George Spicer, Archibald Hill and Atcheson Hench among others.

E. B. Ballenger's Funeral Is Held

The funeral of Ernest B. Ballenger, 69, Hyattstown, Md., farmer, who died at his home Wednesday, took place yesterday from the funeral home of William B. Hilton, Barnesville. The Rev. Ira W. Shindle, pastor of the Methodist Church at Clarksburg, Md., conducted the services and burial was in Monocacy Cemetery, Barnesville.

Mr. Ballenger was a native of Round Hill, Va., and had lived near Hyattstown about 30 years. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Lillie May Ballenger, and three daughters, Mrs. Jesse C. Rippeon, Clarksburg, Md.; Mrs. Roy Whipp, Urbana, Md., and Mrs. Roy Titus, Luckett, Va.

ICC Approves Red Cap Charge

The Interstate Commerce Commission approved yesterday the 10-cent charge which railroad stations have been levying in recent years for each piece of baggage handled by red caps.

Although the decision directly affected only the Cincinnati Union Terminal Co., the commission said that it recognized the case would serve as a precedent for red cap charges at other stations.

Ida M. Stropher, supported by the United Transport Service Employes of America (red caps), had complained that the charge was illegal—that the service should be provided as part of railroad transportation.

Library Prepares Hispanic Guide

A general guide to current Latin-American periodicals received in the Library of Congress has been prepared by the library's Hispanic Foundation and a tentative edition is being distributed to editors of the publications and to Latin-American specialists for criticism and correction.

This was announced yesterday by Librarian Archibald MacLeish, who said that although Latin-American periodicals are widely recognized as among the best sources for study of intellectual, social and economic developments in Latin America, they have been difficult to follow because of their irregularity of publication.

WPA to Expand Americanization

A vastly expanded program of Americanization instruction to facilitate naturalization of aliens was announced yesterday by WPA Commissioner Howard O. Hunter.

Americanization, he said, will become the largest single phase of the WPA adult education program, with a third to half of the program's teachers assigned to Americanization classes in practically every community in which there are sizable alien populations.

Washington Grove Election to Take Place Tonight

Washington Grove's annual town election, to be held at the assembly hall from 7 to 9 p. m. today, promises to be a perfunctory affair.

When the time for filing certificates of candidacy expired last Monday it was found that Mayor Irving L. McCathran and Town Councilmen Frances L. L. Hiller and Robert S. Billhimer were the only ones to comply with the preliminary action, consequently only their names will appear upon the official ballot. The law, however, permits "write-ins" but it is not thought sufficient number of voters will avail themselves of that privilege to make a real contest, and the reelection of Mayor McCathran for one year, and Councilmen Hiller and Billhimer for three years, seems assured.

McCathran has been mayor ever since the town was incorporated in 1937. The holdover members of the town council are Dr. John Micuda, David F. Bradley, Alfred Christie and Charles Keifer.

The election will be conducted by Mrs. Andrew Heil, Maxwell W. Winter and Burt F. Hunt.

V. B. Burroughs' Funeral Is Today In Gaithersburg

Funeral services for Upton B. Burroughs, 57, life-long resident of Montgomery County, who died at his home near Gaithersburg on Wednesday, will be held at 2 p. m. today at the funeral home of Ernest C. Gartner, Gaithersburg. The Rev. William J. Elliott, pastor of Grace Methodist Church, Gaithersburg, and the Rev. Richard N. Edwards, pastor of the Methodist Church at Hunting Hill, will officiate and burial will be in Rockville Union Cemetery.

Mr. Burroughs leaves his wife, Mrs. Mary Trunnell Burroughs; a daughter, Mrs. Frederick Eastwood, near Rockville, and six brothers, Bertram R. Burroughs, Darnestown, Md.; Jesse P. Burroughs, Kensington, Md.; J. Theodore Burroughs, Riverdale, Md., and Guy A., Norman A. and Elmer E. Burroughs, all of Washington.

He had been active for many years in the affairs of the Hunting Hill Methodist Church and was long superintendent of the Sunday school there.

North Carolina Will Give Britain Plane Ambulance

The approximately 25,000 North Carolinians in Washington will be asked to contribute towards purchase of an airplane ambulance to be presented to the British government by North Carolina, it was announced yesterday by Wesley E. McDonald, secretary of Senator Robert R. Reynolds, of North Carolina.

McDonald has been appointed by Gov. J. Melville Broughton to serve as chairman of the Washington branch of the Old North State Fund Division of the British American Ambulance Corps. The following have been named to assist him: Representative Robert L. Doughton, of North Carolina, honorary chairman; John K. Slear, treasurer; Mrs. Lucille Lennox, secretary, and Mrs. Marguerite Brookbank, publicity chairman.

At least $1,500 is the Washington goal in the drive for $75,000.

Virginia WPA Slashes Rolls, Shuts 2 Offices

Richmond, Va., July 11 (AP).—R. S. Hummel, Virginia WPA Administrator, announced today the number of WPA workers in the State had been reduced from 17,300 to 12,000 in line with a Presidential order cutting down the Nation's relief rolls from 1,400,000 to 1,000,000.

Although approximately one-third of the employes laid off were women and white collar workers, Hummel said most of the State's 1,470 WPA projects were affected.

The projects closed are not to be considered closed permanently, he said, in order to protect local sponsors, many of whom are town councils and boards of supervisors.

Hummel also announced the redistricting of the State into four instead of six districts, eliminating those with headquarters at Lynchburg and Staunton. The four remaining have headquarters at Richmond, Norfolk, Roanoke and Marion.

The reduction in employes was effected between July 1 and today.

Baltimore G. O. P. Urged to Drop Ward System

Baltimore, July 11 (AP).—Scrapping of the old ward executive system of organizing the Republican party in Baltimore City and replacing it with a more modern and flexible method was suggested today by Stanley Scherr, member of the State Athletics Commission.

Scherr, one of the few Republicans holding office under the Democratic State administration, made his suggestion in a letter to W. David Republican State central committee.

He urged Tilghman to call a special meeting of the committee to consider amending the party's constitution to allow the party's organizational machinery to be brought up to date.

The Democrats follow a different system. That party's steering organization is the Democratic city committee, made up of three members from each of the six legislative districts, without reference to wards.

Cumberland Gets NYA Area Office

Baltimore, July 11 (AP).—Establishment of an NYA area office in Cumberland to serve Allegany and Garrett Counties was announced today by Glen D. Brown, State NYA administrator.

The new office, Brown said, will be under the direction of E. Price Steiding.

Garrett and Allegany Counties were formerly administered from Hagerstown, and establishment of the new area office is designed to facilitate and speed up contact with State headquarters, the administrator added.

Steiding has for several years been assistant to Carlton C. Schuller, of Hagerstown, who will continue to direct area No. 2.

Texas Doctor Heads Altrusa International

Roanoke, Va., July 11 (AP).—Altrusa International elected Dr. Nina Fay Calhoun, Dallas, Tex., physician, to the presidency today to succeed Mrs. Dessalee Ryan Dudley, of Battle Creek, Mich.

The businesswomen's clubs chose Miss Mamie D. Larsh, Indianapolis lawyer, for first vice president, and Miss Eva Wall, treasurer of the Winston-Salem (N. C.) School Board, for second vice president. All were elected for two-year terms.

Wins Damage Suit

Leesburg, Va., July 11.—Harold D. Henken, of Upperville, was awarded $1,000 in Loudoun County Circuit Court today in a damage suit against the P. W. Plumly Lumber Co., of Winchester. Henken claimed defendant cut timber from a tract of land owned by him.

Calvert County Tobacco Outlook Much Improved

Prince Frederick, Md., July 11 (AP). Tobacco, Calvert County's big "money" crop, off to a poor start this spring, has made a remarkable recovery due to recent rains, and the outlook now is for one of the best crops in several years.

Extended dry weather in late April and May retarded the crop and farmers who had increased their tobacco acreage feared they would have little to show for their labor.

With the abundant rainfall of the past ten days, the tobacco fields now are lush and green and with the good prices prevailing, farmers are optimistic now of reaping a large cash reward.

Call an Officer! Trooper Kills Deer With Auto

Special Dispatch to The Post

Moorefield, W. Va., July 11.—Usually a State officer is called when a deer is accidentally killed by a motorist on a highway, but in this instance Trooper O. G. Welley acted in his own case.

He accidentally ran down and killed a doe near Baker, when the animal, apparently blinded by the car's headlights, jumped in front of the moving machine. The meat was turned over to the Children's Home at Burlington. Damage to the car amounted to about $20.

Boy, Bitten by Snake, Slightly Improved

Norfolk, Va., July 11 (AP).—Harold Boothe, 5-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Boothe, Elizabeth City, N. C., was slightly improved today at a local hospital to which he was rushed late Wednesday suffering from snake bite. He was bitten as he reached into a nest in the chicken house to take some eggs into the kitchen for his mother.

Antivenom was administered early Thursday morning and although considered in a serious condition he was better today.

W. A. James to Head Royal Arch Masons

Waynesboro, Va., July 11 (AP).—Virginia Royal Arch Masons closed their forty-fifth annual school of instruction at Fairfax Hall Junior College today after electing W. A. James, of Beckley, W. Va., president to fill the vacancy caused by the death of E. A. Joachim, of Charlottesville.

Other officers named include Fred J. Schmoele, Norfolk, vice president, and S. Tate Sterrett, Staunton, secretary-treasurer.

Pupils' Music Camp To Open on July 14

Massanetta Springs, Va., July 11 (AP).—The second Virginia music camp will be held here this year for high school students July 14 to 20 with Dr. Luther A. Richman, State supervisor of music.

The school this year is expected to have twice the enrollment of last year with about 200 students and choral directors already enrolled.

Va. Veterinarians Elect

Lynchburg, Va., July 11 (AP).—The Virginia State Veterinary Medical Association elected Dr. H. L. Lyon, of Hillsville, president at the closing sessions yesterday of the association's forty-eighth annual meeting. Dr. Lyon was elevated from the first vice presidency.

Dr. Ankeney, 81, Dies in Maryland; Retired Dentist

Special Dispatch to The Post

Clearspring, Md., July 11.—Dr. William Firey Ankeney, 81, who practiced dentistry in Washington until his retirement in 1934, died yesterday at the home of his sister, Mrs. Henry C. Foster, here. Dr. Ankeney was a native of Washington County.

Surviving is a son, Gilbert H. Ankeney, Washington. Burial will be at Rock Creek Cemetery, Washington.

Mrs. Ida C. Corderman

Hagerstown, Md., July 11.—Mrs. Ida C. Corderman, wife of Elmer A. Corderman, died at her home here yesterday. She was a native of Waynesboro, Pa., and was active in religious work here for many years. Burial will be here tomorrow afternoon.

Elias C. Harbaugh

Please Cash Checks, Begs Bank Receiver

Special Dispatch to The Post

Winchester, Va., July 11.—Harry K. Benham, special receiver for the Peoples Bank of Stephens City, is convinced that prosperity has arrived for most of the creditors of that institution.

Sometime ago, Benham placed certified checks aggregating $7,000 in the mail, representing the final dividends paid from assets of the bank, which was closed during the depression.

So slowly have the checks been cashed that he made a public appeal today for a number who have not done so to cash their checks before the July 20 deadline.

Cutlip Takes New Post With W. Va. Road Board

Special Dispatch to The Post

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 11.—Scott M. Cutlip, of Buckhannon, former editor of the Martinsburg News, will serve as director of public relations for the West Virginia State Road Commission, Ernest L. Bailey, commissioner, announced. In his new capacity, he will edit the S. R. C. monthly publication, West Virginia Highways.

Cutlip served as campaign manager for Bailey in his unsuccessful bid for the Democratic nomination for Governor in 1936.

Tydings to Address Md. Auto Dealers

Ocean City, Md., July 11 (AP).—Members of the Maryland Automobile Trade Association will gather here Monday for a two-day convention to be devoted largely to discussion of the dealer's position in the face of increased taxation and proposed production curtailment.

The Government's plans for taxing vehicles and cutting down production will be discussed by Senator Millard E. Tydings. Effect of the curtailment program on the dealer will be discussed by Jim Dalton, editor of Motors.

Find 6-Legged Frog

Charles Town, W. Va., July 11.—A six-legged frog, the two extras being of normal size and attached to the body where the tail ordinarily appears, was found by Donald Barron and Donald Reedy in a meadow south of here yesterday.

Church School Leaders Meet In Westminster

Westminster, Md., July 11 (AP).—Leaders of elementary departments in Methodist churches opened a week-end "elementary leaders' assembly" tonight at Western Maryland College, discussing methods of improving departmental programs.

The course is designed for leaders unable to attend the summer school of leadership training. About 7[illegible] delegates are expected.

Meanwhile, the Baltimore Conference graduate summer school of ministerial training closed tonight with an address by Dr. William K. Anderson, secretary of the commission of ministerial training Nashville, Tenn.

Ninety-five Methodist ministers attended the sessions which started Monday at the Westminster Theological Seminary.

Irate Posse Disbands; Horses Walked Away

Winchester, Va., July 11 (AP).—An old-time "hoss thief" hunt didn't even get off to a start in Frederick County because the missing animals were sighted strolling nonchalantly along the Valley Pike near Vaucluse. The posse agreed that instead of a case of horse larceny it was a case of some one leaving a gate open. Then the posse disbanded.

Ex-White House Secretary, Dying, Is Wed in Hospital

By International News Service

Asheville, N. C., July 11.—Miss Margaret A. Durand, for several years a member of the White House secretariat, and Aubrey Mills chose this as their wedding day because she may not live until tomorrow.

MRS. MILLS

Miss Durand, 37, and her sweetheart of many years were married in her room at St. Joseph's Hospital in Asheville, where she has been fighting vainly against tuberculosis for more than three years.

Her veil was an oxygen tent.

It wasn't as they had planned it when Miss Durand was secretary to the late Louis McHenry Howe and affectionately known to hundreds of friends and White House visitors as "Rabbit," when Aubrey Mills was just another young Government worker.

Miss Durand went to work for Howe in 1928, the year Mr. Roosevelt—under Howe's tuetelage—became Governor of New York.

She moved to the White House four years later and stuck close by Howe during his almost ceaseless labors in behalf of Mr. Roosevelt. Howe died in 1936. Two years later, still a member of the White House secretariat, Miss Durand fell ill with tuberculosis.

Yesterday doctors said there was no hope.

Mills, now an official of the Federal Inland Waterways Corporation, was called from his office at St. Louis, Mo.

This was their wedding night. Mills sat in a straight backed hospital chair. Between his hands he grasped the pale hand of his bride. The silence was broken only by the rhythmic throb of the oxygen pump.

Joe Extends Bat Streak To 50 Games

Browns Bow, 6-2; New York Scores 11th Consecutive Victory, Ups Lead

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, July 11.—Joe DiMaggio and the New York Yankees passed several more milestones today as the American League leaders turned back the St. Louis Browns, 6 to 2.

For DiMaggio, they were the following:

A. He singled in the first inning, to stretch his hitting streak over 50 straight games, then followed up with two more singles and a homer in four times at bat.

B. His four-bagger gave him the league lead, with 20, to Teammate Charley Keller's 19.

C. With two runs batted in (Red Rolfe was on base when he hit for the circuit), Joe took over first place in this department, with 73 to Keller's 72.

D. The four safeties ran his total to 112, seven ahead of the next man.

For the Yankees, the victory was No. 11 in a row, equaling the Cleveland Indians' record winning streak for the league this season, and, with the Indians idle today, the Yanks' lead over the second-place Tribe increased to four full games.

Five of the Yanks' six runs came on four-baggers. Tommy Henrich hit for the circuit after Rolfe had singled in the first; Joe Gordon's homer in the sixth put them in front again by 3-2, and DiMaggio's circuit blow accounted for two more.

Southpaw Marius Russo held the Browns to seven hits in chalking up his eighth victory. A single by Walt Judnich and Roy Cullenbine's home run gave the losers both their runs in the first. Bob Harris, who went eight innings before being lifted for a pinch hitter, was the loser.

Jeanne Cline Wins Western Junior Title

By the Associated Press

St. Charles, Ill., July 11.—Diminutive Jeanne Cline, of Bloomington, Ill., a veteran campaigner at the age of 17, won her first big golf championship today—the second Women's Western Junior championship.

Miss Cline, who has been playing tournament golf four years, won the title with a 6 and 4 victory over 16-year-old Dorothy Campbell, of St. Louis, Mo., at the St. Charles Country Club, taking the lead at the fourth hole and being in command at the finish at the fourteenth green.

Combining distance off the tees and accuracy with her iron game, the Bloomington star fired pars at the third, fourth, seventh and eighth holes to become four up at the turn. On this first nine, Miss Cline was out in 39, two over par, to 43 for her opponent, who had trouble with her putter.

Miss Cline, a standout pre-tourney favorite after a brilliant showing in the Illinois women's championship, won the tournament medal with an 81 last Monday.

Grove Misses 300th Victory, Sox Lose, 2-0

By the Associated Press

Detroit, July 11.—Lefty Bob Grove gave only six hits today in trying for his 300th major league triumph, the same number allowed by Buck Newsom, but the 41-year-old Boston veteran got little help at the plate and the Red Sox suffered a 2-to-0 shutout by the Detroit Tigers.

Grove held the Tigers hitless until the fourth inning and scoreless until the sixth when a single by Pinky Higgins and Bruce Campbell's double—the second of four extra-base blows off grove—produced a run.

Successive two-baggers by Higgins and Rudy York gave Detroit a second score in the eighth.

Johnny Peacock got three of the Red Sox hits, including a double which was the only extra-base hit off Newsom. It was Newsom's seventh win against 11 defeats. Grove now has a 6—3 record this season.

Nellie Sheer Bows at Net To Miss Jacobs

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, July 11.—Top-seeded Helen Hull Jacobs ran into surprise opposition today before defeating 16-year-old Nellie Sheer, Miami Beach, Fla., high school girl, 6—4, 6—0, in the quarter-final round of the Middle States Women's Tennis Tournament at the Philadelphia Cricket Club.

The Florida girl started with a rush and forced the former American and Wimbledon champion into several errors to take an early two love lead. Wit the first set deadlocked at 4—4, Miss Jacobs went to work and clicked off eight consecutive games. Miss Sheer never had a chance in the second set and deuced only two games.

The matches were held up for two hours by rain.

Defending Champion Helen Bernhard, of New York, was extended to three sets to win from Mrs. Helen Pedersen Rihbany, of Boston, 6—4, 6—7 and 6—1.

Miss Margaret Osborne, of San Francisco, scored an upset in defeating fourth-seeded Hope Knowles, of Philadelphia, 6—1 and 6—1.

Second-seeded Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Cooke, of New York, the Nation's sixth ranking player, eliminated unseeded Nancy Ritchie, of Philadelphia, 6—0 and 6—2.

In the semifinals tomorrow Miss Osborne meets Mrs. Cooke and Miss Bernhard plays Miss Jacobs.

Leavens Triumphs, Adair Beaten in Skytop Net Play

By the Associated Press

Skytop, Pa., July 11.—Top seeded William Canning, of the University of California, defeated Sam Gilpin, of Philadelphia, 6—3, 6—1, to enter the semifinals in the Skytop Invitation tennis tourney today.

In other quarter-final matches C. Robin Hippenstiel, also of California, beat Ralph G. Adair, of Washington, 6—0, 6—2; Frederic Mercur, of Bethlehem, Pa., defeated Mitchel Zazac, of Hamburg, Pa., 6—4, 9—7, and Donald Leavens, of Washington, won by default over S. Ellsworth Davenport, of Forest Hills, N. Y. Davenport defaulted after rain halted the match in the second set with scored tied at 11—11. Leavens had won the first set, 6—1.

Suffridge, Castiglia Sign With Eagles

Philadelphia, July 11 (AP).—Robert Lee Suffridge, All-American guard at Tennesee last year, has signed to play professional football with the Philadelphia Eagles, Club President Alexis Thompson announced today.

The 190-pounder, who lives at Knoxville, Tenn., will report at the Eagles' training camp at Two Rivers, Wis., August 1.

Sub Walker Cup Match Is Suggested

By the Associated Press

Spokane, Wash., July 11.—United States Golf Association officials, here for the National Public Links championships next week, today suggested a substitute Walker Cup match between Publinx and National Amateur Tournament golfers.

The Walker Cup matches, between top ranking English and American amateurs, have been called off for the last three years because of the war.

In the last match, in 1938 over the famous St. Andrews course in Scotland, Marvin (Bud) Ward, Spokane, set the amateur record for the course—a 67 equalling the competitive record set by Henry Cotton, famous British professional.

Under the plan developed today, the eight quarter-finalists of the public links tournament next week and the quarter-finalists of the National Amateur would play in September.

"The Walker Cup matches were one of the most colorful golf eemtings of the world," said Joseph (Uncle Joe) Dickson, Louisville, Ky., committeeman.

"It is a shame the was has interfered with them and I think a match between the public links and national amateu r quarter-finalists would be a worthy substituta."

Joe Dey, jr., U. S. G. A. executive secretary, of New York, and Charles D. Rainwater, U. S. G. A. public links committee chairman from Pensacola, Fla., arrived just in time to get into the end of the discussion and promised their ideas later.

Conn and Bride En Route to Coast For Movie Career

Chicago, July 11.—Accompanied by his bride, Billy Conn, who missed dethroning Champion Joe Louis by not so wide a margin, was in Chicago tonight with thoughts more on Hollywood than on the fight game.

The prospective movie idol was on his way to the film capital where he is to be the hero in "The Pittsburgh Kid," an adaptation of Octavus Roy Cohen's "Kid Tinsel."

"I'm getting $20,000 for 16 days in Hollywood," he gloated. "And every day after that gives me $1,200. That ain't hay, is it?"

He admitted his attractive young wife, with whom he eloped despite threats voiced by her dad that he would "beat hell" out of Billy, might have a part in the movie.

They were accompanied by Johnny Ray, Conn's manager, and Milton Jaffe, Pittsburgh sportsman. Ray was not so sure about another match with Louis. He said a decision would be reached after the Hollywood engagement.

"Who knows," he said, "maybe Billy will click on the screen and give up fighting altogether."

Anderson Appointed As Bluefield Coach

Bluefield, Va., July 11 (AP).—The appointment of Robert Anderson, former Roanoke College football player, as athletic coach at Bluefield (Va.) High School was announced today by Supt. A. S. Greever, of Tazewell County schools.

Anderson, a graduate of the Bluefield (Va.) High School, succeeds John Farrar, who was discharged by the board of education.

Toley Upsets Mako, 7-5, 6-0, To Gain Finals

By the Associated Press

Ocean City, N. J., July 11.—George Toley, of the University of Southern California, defeated top-seeded Gene Mako, of Los Angeles, 7—5, 6—0, in the semifinal round of the Atlantic Coast Tennis tournament today.

Toley, seeded fourth, will meet Ted Olewine, of Santa Monica, Calif., in tomorrow's final. Olewine, seeded second, eliminated Seymour Greenberg, of Chicago, seeded third, in the semifinals, 5—7, 7—5, 6—3.

Mako and Olewine reached the men's doubles final by defeating Greenberg and Ronald Edwards, of San Jose, Calif., 1—6, 6—3, 6—2. They will oppose Tolley and William Gillespie, of Atlanta, Ga., who defeated a team from the University of Utah, Frank Mehner and Clifford Berg, 6—1, 7—5.

Miss Helen Germaine, of New York, and Miss Virginia Redford, of Philadelphia, captured the women's doubles title by defeating Mrs. Millicent Hurst Lang, of New York, and Mrs. George Toley, of Los Angeles.

Byron Nelson, Toledo, Ohio, defeated Ben Hogan, Hershey, Pa., 2 up.

By the Associated Press

Denver, July 11.—Big Byron Nelson came back like a true champion today to batter par and his most formidable opponent into submission in the quarter-finals of the Professional Golfers Association Tournament that also saw prime favorite Sam Snead the victim of a thundering upset.

Nelson whipped Ben Hogan, his boyhood rival—both learned the game as Fort Worth caddies—2 up in a thrill-filled battle decided on the final green, where he dropped a 5-footer for a birdie 3. He had won the seventeenth hole to go 1 up and hit a great iron shot out of the rough on the eighteenth to within 5 feet of the pin. A safely played 4 for a half would have won the match for the square-shouldered red-head. Instead, he went for it boldly. The ball rolled true to give him the hole and the acclaim of a gallery of several thousand fans.

Snead, able to salvage only his powerful drives from an otherwise shattered game, tumbled to defeat before the sharpshooting of slim Lloyd Mangrum by the one-sided count of 6 and 4.

Sarazen Beats Shute

Mangrum, resident of Monterey Park, Calif., qualified in the Chicago district. He was the only entry in the eight-man field today who had been required to take the sectional qualifying tests. The rest were eligible for the regular qualifying here, Nelson as the defending champion and the others as either former winners of this tournament or as members of the Ryder Cup team.

Freshman of the crowd and playing in his first P.G.A. championship, Mangrum, a long shot, eliminated Mark Fry, of Oakland, Calif., in yesterday's 36-hole third round in another match over the full distance.

The Connecticut squire, who has been worrying about the hay crop on his farm all week, called on his old wizardry to give the Cherry Hill course a thumping. He won the first of his three P.G.A. titles in 1922 when some of the present contestants were hardly old enough to swing a club. His opponent, Shute, is not exactly in the sophomore class. Twice winner of this tournament, he is 36.

Match Is One-Sided

Vic Ghezzi, Deal, N. J., ace, routed Jimmy Hines, Great Neck, Long Island, 8 and 7, in the most one-sided match of the quarter-finals. Hines was 5 down at the halfway mark.

Western Maryland Net Tournament Set for Aug. 11-16

Mountain Lake Park, Md., July 11 (AP).—Ralph E. Weber, general chairman, today announced the twenty-second annual tennis tournament for the Western Maryland championships would be held August 11-16, with invitations going to 200 or more players.

Men's singles will begin August 11, and women's singles August 13. Men's and women's doubles and mixed doubles will be held throughout the week.

The Bears Are Not Unbeatable

Chicago, July 11.—Elmer Layden, who took the job as president of the National Professional Football League, is vastly unworried by the implications of that 73-0 victory of the Chicago Bears over the Redskins last fall. It's no sign, he was saying today, that the Bears will continue to dominate and make a one-sided affair of the league.

POVICH

"There are teams in this league that will probably beat the Bears this season," said Layden. "Football men can understand how a 73-0 score can happen. The last seven or eight touchdowns in a game like that can come cheap. One team is gambling on every play in an attempt to get back in the ball game, and the other team is clicking and getting all the breaks."

Layden doesn't discern any possibility that the football cry of "break up the Bears" will be heard in the same manner that "break up the Yankees" was heard when the Yanks were dominating the baseball races. "The Bears are a great football team," said Layden, "but they were licked three times last season before they rolled up that 73-0 score against the Redskins. The Cardinals beat 'em, Detroit beat 'em, and so did the Redskins, and there was nothing fluky about those victories. Those three teams were simply better than the Bears on those afternoons."

The former Notre Dame coach pretends to know what happened in that Redskins-Bears game last December, even though he was 3,000 miles away with his own Notre Dame team, which had played Southern California on the Coast the day before. "Those Bears were simply hepped up to the terrific kind of pitch that wins ball games," said Layden.

From Emotion to Practicality

"Before the game, and during that first half, the Bears were in a high emotional state. They were out to win for their personal pride in their club and they weren't giving much of a thought to the winner's end of the gate receipts. I heard later that in the dressing room, between halves, they became very practical about it all. They were no longer emotional. One of them said 'From here in, fellow, let's remember that we're playing for $30 a minute. That's the difference in the winner's and loser's end.'"

Layden doesn't think that the Bears' T-formation, highly publicized after the rout of the Redskins, is going to revolutionize football. "I'd say it will be just a fad," said Layden. "The T-formation had a great year what with the Bears and Clark Shaughnessy's Stanford club doing so well with the same system, but you won't find too many teams adopting it.

"Of course, it will come in for more attention from coaches and a good many will try to use the T-formation, but they'll soon discover that they'll have to junk it. We used to use it at Notre Dame. It's great stuff when you have the material, and it's worthless when you don't. The Bears, who have been using the "T" for years go in for the kind of players it suits.

More of the T Formation

"It's mostly a flanker play and you've got to have that fast, breakway back to start with. Anybody less than a great back can't be shaken loose on the flank play, and the quarterback can botch the whole thing if he doesn't handle the ball from center well. I didn't see any college quarterbacks last year whom I'd trust with handling that indirect pass. The Bears were lucky to come up with a fellow like Sid Luckman who could do tricks with ball from center.

"The Bears, with smart coaches and smart football players, have perfected the "T"-formation to the point where it's wonderful stuff, but it isn't wonderful except with the Bears. That man-in-motion play opens up the defense, and the Bears take advantage of it. They've been grounded in all of the strategy of the quick-thrust. It isn't a style of football that can be learned quickly and it can't be worked by anything less than a great team. There aren't enough Osmanski's, or Nolting's or Maniaci's to go around."

Layden doesn't see any reason why pro football shouldn't be in for its greatest season. "Each succeeding year, it has been winning more fans. I don't think we are going to be troubled too much by the military draft. Of the 33 players with the Bears last year, 24 were married. Football players seem to take a wife at an earlier age than baseball players. They come out of college, and usually marry their campus sweethearts as soon as they collect a couple of pro football pay checks. Barring war, pro football seems to be in no danger of a shortage of man power."

Davis and Dodgers Romp Over Reds, 12-2

Pitcher Sparks 7-Run Spree In First Inning With Homer

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, July 11.—Even Pitcher Curt Davis chipped in with a home run and a single today as the Brooklyn Dodgers, with every man hitting safely, pounded four Cincinnati pitchers for 16 assorted hits and a 12-2 triumph over the Reds.

Davis' four-bagger was the big belt in a seven-run first inning which made his pitching task a simple one. He was touched for ten hits, but kept them spaced out neatly in winning his fourth decision and the Dodgers' fifth straight.

With the second-place St. Louis Cardinals idle, Brooklyn's National League lead was increased to 3½ games.

Ten men went to bat in the Dodgers' big inning, Dixie Walker opening the proceedings with a home run over the right field screen and closing them by grounding out just after Davis had hit for the circuit with two men on base. In between came singles by Billy Herman, Dolph Camilli, Pee-wee Reese and Mickey Owen, a double by Cookie Lavagetto, and a base on balls.

Six of the first eight men to face Paul Derringer hit safely which was enough to get him out of the box. It was on the first pitch by Gene Thompson, who replaced him, that Davis hit his four-bagger.

Brooklyn Scores in Third

Brooklyn got another run off Thompson in the third; made it nine on a home run off Jim Turner, by Ducky Medwick, in the seventh, and clipped the Reds' fourth pitcher, Joe Beggs, for the last three tallies in the eighth on singles by walker and Herman and doubles by Lavagetto and Camilli.

Two errors by Herman helped the Reds to their two runs in the fourth.

Mrs. Franklin Wins Low Gross Honors With 93 Total At Kenwood Club

Mrs. Frank Mirth, a comparative newcomer to women's tournament golf circles from Indian Spring, won the annual competition for the Duffer's Trophy yesterday at Kenwood with a professional finish.

Mrs. Mirth played the last three holes like Betty Jameson at best to finish with a 96, the lowest score of her career by five strokes. On the sixteenth hole Mrs. Mirth holed a 35-foot putt, on the seventeenth she blasted from a sand trap within 3 inches of the pin and on the eighteenth she knocked home a downhill, sidehill 30-footer for a 5.

Mrs. Mirth did not know it at the time but she needed that final putt for Mrs. Lafayette Franklin, of Washington Golf and Country Club, was in with a 93—20, 73, which was only one shot higher than the winning net total of 96—24, 72, posted by Mrs. Mirth.

Mrs. Franklin Wins Low Gross

Mrs. Franklin's 93, lowest score of the day from nines of 49 and 46, including a 4 4 4 5 finish, won low gross honors by three strokes.

Second low net went to Mrs. George Buskie, of Congressional, with 50, 52—102—27—75, while third was a tie between Mrs. R. D. Young, Washington, with 96—19—77, second lowest gross score of the day, and Madeline Bast, a former champion from Manor, with 102—25—77. Mrs. Young had nines of 47 and 49 and Miss Bast 48 and 54.

Mrs. Lou Libby, a prize winner in the mixed Scotch foursome of Tuesday, posted a 101—23—78, which was good for a tie for fifth low net with Mrs. H. H. Goodman, Washington, with 114—36—78.

Mrs. G. M. Jani, of Congressional, was apparently on her way to a cup triumph as she played the first nine in 45, but she added 10 strokes coming back for a 55 and finished with 101—21—79, which completed the prize list.

Bow to Mrs. Jani's Handicap

Mrs. M. M. Wire and Mrs. W. G. Hills, of the host Kenwood club, tied with 104—25, 79, and 110—31, 79 respectively, but lost out to Mrs. Jani's lower handicap for seventh low net. Cards of the three players who tied were matched and all finished 4 down to par, thus leaving the prize to the lowest handicapped player.

Mrs. Mirth, the new holder of the Elizabeth Harris trophy, had never before cracked the 100 mark, her lowest previous score a 101 in a ladies' guest day over the Kenwood course. After a poor start yesterday she played the first nine in 49 and came back in 47. The winner's round included two other long putts in addition to the sixteenth and eighteenth holes.

Of the original 105 entries, 81 started in the tournament for the class B players, those with handicaps of 18 or over. Class B and class A players are remined that entries for the annual play for The Washington Post trophies close next Friday. The tournaments and Manor and Congressional will be played Monday, July 21.—M. W. W.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, July 11.—Old Clark Griffith has been given so much discredit for authoring the American League legislation which prohibited a pennant winner from making deals for a year after winning that pennant, that it is high time that he be partly cleared of the complete blame.

CONSIDINE

You may remember that the rule was put into effect after the New York Yankees had won four straight pennants and four straight World Series. It was ostensibly aimed at the Yanks, but Griff, who introduced it, denied this with an indignant shake of his Gable eyebrows. It was aimed, he explained, at the monopoly of wealth. He felt that a pennant winner could go on winning a pennant year in and year out because it made all the money in the league and thus had the money to buy good replacements from teams that were far down in the league and had to sell stars in order to exist. Griff has sold only one ball player in his long career—Joe Cronin.

Now the rule has been rescinded, after working spectacularly. The Yanks, powerless to help themselves last year when DiMag was on the bench for a long period and the pitching staff was going to pot, finished third in the league standings. This year the defending champion Tigers will be lucky to finish even that high. They'll come in at about fifth place because the Griffith rule, as it was called, kept them from helping themselves by purchasing some established hitting and pitching replacements when they lost Greenberg and when Newsom couldn't win.

Rule Passed by 8-to-0 Count

And, in the wake of the rule's impeachment, Griff has taken a pretty fancy beating. We usually find ourselves in there sparring with the old gentleman, but this time we're wholly on his side. We thought that the rule he fostered was high-handed and contrary to the inherent meaning of sport, to wit, that a champion must be beaten fairly and squarely and without his hands tied.

But a lot of us are forgetting that the so-called Griffith rule passed by an 8-to-0 vote when Griff laid it before the other American League owners at their meeting in December, 1939. As we understand it, even Ed Barrow, president of the Yanks, voted for it. As for the others, —Tom Yawkey, Alva Bradley, Harry Grabiner, Connie Mack and Young Spike Briggs—they put their John Hancocks to the document with a flourish. Griff didn't have a gat in their ribs.

Yet, only Griff was held responsible, probably because he had the gall to stand up for his curious beliefs in public.

Tain't fair.

Jack Doyle retired from the billiard parlor business several years ago and has nothing to do with the establishment which now bears his name. And, being out of the business, he is now able to look upon billiards objectively and discover what is wrong with the sport that was one of the most popular in the country.

"The new pace of the world just about killed billiards," the veteran odds-maker told us. "The sports-minded public today must have a sport which it can more or less master in a hurry. You can take a square-head out of the steerage, put a golf club in his hand and before the afternoon is over the lunk will be hitting an occasionally straight drive down the middle, or sinking a putt longer than Snead could sink. The same thing is true of bowling, where even a dope can come up with an occasional strike."

Toast of the Sandlots...

Another of the excellent ball players tossed on the local scene by Washington-Lee High, over in Arlington, is this swarthy pitcher who hurls for the Maccabees of the Washington-Virginia League and the Ninth Street Lunch nine of the Capital City B League.

Lanny Birch first found a measure of pitching fame with the Little Generals in 1934 and 1935, when they won the Northern Virginia title twice in a row. His best high school effort was against Eastern, when he retired the first 25 men but was robbed of a no-hitter when Al Hebrew singled safely.

"Of all the teams I've played with," Lanny says, "the finest was the Ballston A. C. of 1938. I won 24 and lost only 2 with that bunch, but it wasn't because I was good. I got the best support any sandlot pitcher could ask."

Lanny's big expedition into the minors came in 1939 when he signed with Lexington, of the North Carolina State League. Before he decided to come home he got in a 5-inning effort against the Philadelphia Phils, shutting 'em out in an exhibition.

Now, at 25, Lanny is an employe of a downtown investment brokerage and does his pitching strictly for exercise and recreation. He won his first 5 games this year for the Maccabees, however.

Several observers have called him temperamental, but the best moundsmen in history have had that failing. It suffices that his right hand speedball has a long and effective record behind it.

Turner Night Headliner Set; Dechard Signs

Following the pattern of things originally requested by Clark Griffith when the Nats' prexyfirst conceived the idea of the "Joe Turner Testimonial Night," Matchmaker Gebe Menendez announced yesterday he had signed up Jimmy DeChard, Washington's coming heavyweight, for a headline bout on the July 21 boxing show at Griffith Stadium.

It was Griffith's plan to feature as many local lads as possible, and Menendez and the baseball magnate found their way paved for a good start when Frankie Mann, DeChard's faithful manager, offered his 22-year-old heavyweight for the card honoring Turner for his "Thirty-Five Years in Sports."

Mann insisted that Menendez secure an outstanding fighter, and said that he was not interested in any "set-up" for Jimmy. Whereupon Turner's matchmaker started burning up the wires throughout the East. He is contacting managers of such heavyweights as Harry Bobo, Pittsburgh colored ace; Bill Poland, Jewish star; Joe Carilli, Hartford, Conn., New England heavyweight champion; Jay D. Turner and Babe Ritchie.

Mann told Griffith:

"This is a swell movement Mr. Graffith has started in honor of my friend, Joe Turner. I am glad Jimmy can fight on the card, for it was in Turner's Arena that Jimmy got his first start as a Golden Glover."

It is also recalled that Mann was Turner's first matchmaker when boxing was legalized in the District. Mann's board of strategy, consisting of himself, Trainer Harry Groves and Jim's dad, Leo, expressed great satisfaction in knowing that the local boy could headline the show.

DeChard, considered by fans and experts as a boy with "plenty on the glove," has won his first three pro starts. He turned pro last spring and kayoed Joe Lincey and Nick Carter. Last month at the ball park he stole the show on the Pastor-Scott card by winning easily from Italo Colonello in a six-rounder.

Estelle II Wins Opening Yacht Race

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Md., July 11.—Emory C. Rice's yacht Estelle II outmaneuvered two other large craft from Gibson Island today to win the opening race of the Annapolis Yacht Club's sixth annual three-day regatta.

The Estelle crossed the finish line of an 11-mile course from Gibson Island to Annapolis at 1:08 p. m., 9 minutes ahead of the Valiant, owned by L. P. Rock, of Baltimore. Frolic, owned by F. H. Loweree, of Baltimore, was third, 13 minutes behind the Valiant.

Patricia McNew, skipper of the Frolic, won the Comet Boat Race from Gibson Island to Annapolis. Onward, skippered by Veazey Craycroft, of Baltimore, captued the sta boat event.

Full Card Today

The regatta will be in full swing tomorro wwith smalle said boats competing in the moning and afternoon and ocean-going yachts vying for honors in three clsses around noon.

William H. Labrot's Stormy Weather is the leding contender in the Class A competition for the largest boats. Other entrants in this event are the Liberty, owned by Charles Crane, of Baltimore, and the Naval Academy's Vamarie, Highland Light and Spendrift.

The academy's three yawls—Alert, Resolute and Intrepid—are expected to compete against the Egret, owned by C. P. Shutt, and the Alsumar, owned by Dr. J. Thomas Nelson, of Baltimore, in Class B.

Seven Yachts Entered

Seven yachts are entered so far in the class C race—Wonderlust, owned by Albert S. Robinson; Wee Tu, owned by Edgar Loweree; Valiant; Frolic; Estelle II; Gibson Girl, owned by John R. Sherwood, and Linganor, owned by Pierce J. Flanagan.

Tomorrow's races will be held on five courses in the bay and in Annapolis Harbor. The sailboat races will continue through Sunday.

Trophies and other prizes will be awarded to the winners at 5 p. m. Sunday. Gov. O'Conor, Mayor Howard W. Jackson of Baltimore and several Congressmen have been invited to attend.

Sabin Downs Kramer, Enters Net Finals

By the United Press

Spring Lake, N. J., July 11.—Second-seeded Wayne R. Sabin, of Reno, Nev., entered the final round of the annual Spring Lake Invitation Tennsi Tournament today with a five-set victory over third-seeded Jack Kramer, of Los Angeles, 4—6, 6—1, 6—8, 6—1, 6—0.

In Sunday's final, Sabin will meet the winner of tomorrow's match between Frank Parker, of Spring Lake, defending champion, and youthful Ted Schroeder, of Glendale, Calif., seeded fifth.

Sabin had to turn on a great rally to eliminate the aggressive hard-hitting Kramer, who looked like the winner after winning the gruelling thrid set. However, Kramer's game faded after that, and Sabin made short work of him. The Nevadan needed little more than 30 minutes to capture the fourth nad fifth sets, winning the last 11 games in succession.

Kramer, Schroeder Advance

In the doubles, Kramer and Schroeder, defending champions, advanced to the semifinals over Henry Batjer, of Austin, Tex., and Ray Gladman, of Los Angeles, 6—1, 5—7, 6—2.

Also gaining the round of four were the second-seeded pair of Parker and Charles Mattmann, of Los Angeles, and the New York combination of Frank Shields and J. Gilbert Hall. Parker and Mattmann trounced Sewell Cutler, New Haven, Conn., and Robert Kerdasha, Woodcliff, N. J., 6—1, 6—0, while Shields and Hall outlasted Edward Alloo, Palo Alto, Calif., and Arthur Marx, Hollywood, 5—7, 6—3, 8—6.

Rain forced postponement until tomorrow morning of the quarter-finals match between the team of Sabin and Gardnar Mulloy and Francisco Segura, of Ecuador, and Richard Bender, of Princeton.

Hudson Flags Kennedy Trying to Advance on Tresh's Bunt

Nats Handed 9th Loss, Sox Score, 3 to 1

By Shirley Povich

Post Staff Writer

Chicago, July 11.—The weather cleared up nicely in Chicago this afternoon and so the Nats captured their ninth straight defeat. Again today the Nats were not shut out. The score was: Chicago, 3; Washington, 1.

Washington's punchless wanderers met up with left-handed Ed Smith and a ladies' day crowd of 9,600 in Comiskey Park and made only six hits, one of them a two-bagger in a lusty show of power.

Sid Hudson was the losing pitcher. He operated on a "Bundles for Chicago" basis. All of the White Soxs' three runs were gifts from Hudson, who was pitching well enough, but messed up a couple of fielding plays. Two of the White Sox runs were definitely unearned and the other was very much tainted.

Cecil Travis tried to win the ball game for the Nats but succeeded only in hitting safely in his twentieth consecutive game. He made two hits in his first two times at bat and his double figured in Washington's only run. Roger Cramer likewise made a pair of the Nats' six hits.

Knickerbocker Homers

Bill Knickerbocker, a .277 hitter who came to the White Sox via Cleveland, St. Louis and New York, where he was not very spectacular, knocked Hudson loose from the winning runs in the fifth inning. He slugged a home run into the left-field bleacher seats with a man on base.

Hudson, however, made that blow possible, when with one out he botched a bunted ball by Tresh. The young pitcher muffed the bunt, and a bit later with two out, Knickerbocker banged his homer which wiped out a 1-0 Washington lead.

The White Soxs' third run was another Hudson gift in the eighth. He walked Kuhel to start the in-

Mahoney and Herbert Win Net Semifinals

Pair Meets Today for 4th Time in Women's Championship Finals at Columbia Club

By Jack Munhall

There was fuss and excitement aplenty at Columbia Country Club for a while yesterday as two upsets were in the making in the semifinal round of the Women's District of Columbia tennis championships. But at the end the noise had died out, for two-seeded Margo Lee Mahony and second-seeded Willie O'Steen Herbert finally triumphed as expected.

So today at 2:30 Mrs. Mahony and Mrs. Herbert will meet for the fourth time in two years in what has been a close, well-played series.

Mrs. Herbert holds a 2-to-1 edge, having defeated Mrs. Mahony twice in 1939, while losing to her only in the finals of last year's City of Washington tournament—all of them three-set matches.

Heroine of yesterday's matches, however, was not one of the two winners, but Charlotte Decker, a hard-plugging youngster who for years has been just missing the finals of the big tournaments here. The third-seeded Miss Decker missed again yesterday, but in holding Mrs. Herbert to a victory of 2—6, 6—3, 7—5, she served warning that it may not be long before she'll be a tough one to beat.

Mrs. Mahony, though she experienced less trouble than Mrs. Herbert in disposing of fourth-seeded Sara Moore, still was on shaky legs in the first set. She wasted a 5—2 advantage and permitted Miss Moore, a former District champion, to tie the count at 5—5 before closing out on the strength of a strong net attack, 7—5.

In the second set Mrs. Mahony clicked on all cylinders to win easily, 6—1.

Late Rally

Mrs. Herbert was forced to repel a last-ditch rally before she subdued Miss Decker, who was hitting the ball with nef-found power. Going into the deciding set it appeared as though the 1939 District

Miss Evans Enters Airport Swim Meet

The 50-yard free style event in the Washington Airport swimming meet Monday evening was further enriched yesterday with the signed entry of Dorothy Evans, who holds the World's record in the 50-meter free style.

From the Penn A. C., Miss Evans also is the former national 100-yard free-style titleholder and the Middle Atlantic champion in the 50, 100, 200, 440, and 500 yard free style events.

She was somewhat sidetracked last year by a lingering case of influenza, but so far this season in the outdoor and indoor meets she has evidenced her return to the swift form with which she has captivated the swimming critics.

A student at the University of Pennsylvania, the pretty, 20-year-old Miss Evans has entered the free style and the medley Monday evening, and it is significant that she hasn't been beaten in the 50-yard free style in four years.

With Lorraine Fischer's entry likely this afternoon, Manager Hardy Pearce of the Airport Pool thus will have cornered virtually the entire elite of Eastern swimming. Miss Evans, Prince Nufer, the Globisch sisters, Judy Auritt, and the expected entry of Miss Fischer constitute any swim coach's dream team.

Somewhat disheartening was the news yesterday that Patsy Palmer, District champ, will not enter the meet due to a tooth infection which has held her training preparation to a minimum.

Bensinger Wins Over Anderson In Boys' Match

By the Associated Press

Norfolk, Va., July 11.—Running true to form, sorrel-topped Bobby Bensinger, of Washington, D. C., who won the 1939 National Indoor Boys' championship, routed Dick Anderson, of Hilton Village, Va., 6—0, 6—0, in the first round matches of the Middle Atlantic Lawn Tennis Association's Tournament for boys' and juniors.

A severe rain-storm swept the Norfolk Yacht and Country Club courts this afternoon and forced the postponement of second round and one remaining first round matches until tomorrow.

Norfolk's boys' runnerup, Jack Rixey, experienced little trouble disposing of his first round opponent, diminutive Jimmy Pyle, of Huntington, W. Va., 6—1, 6—0.

Allen Clay, Norfolk's junior tennis king, ran into all kinds of trouble when he tied up with Donald Poist, clever Baltimore, Md., net star. Clay took the first set, 7—5, but was given a whale of a Battle by the monumental city youth.

Then Poist unleashed a slashing attack to swing into an early lead, 4—1, when the rains came. They will resume their match the first think tomorrow morning.

Results of other matches:

Junior Tournament

John Hayman, Huntington, Va., Va., defeated Hucky Cole, of Norfolk, Va., 4—6, 8—6, 6—0.

Joe Gantt, Lynchburg, Va., defeated Kenneth Volk, Baltimore, Md., 6—3, 1—6, 6—2.

Bobby Hall, of Washington, D. C., defeated Bert Nachman, Hilton Village, Va., 6—0, 6—0.

Harold Burrow, Jr., Richmond, Va., defeated Gordon Wooten, Huntington, W. Va., 6—0, 6—2.

Boys' Tournament

Dick Wilson, Jr., Richmond, Va., defeated Ed Alexander, Jr., Hilton Village, Va., 6—1, 7—5.

Vaughan, All-Star Hero, Still Warms the Pirates' Bench

Rookie Anderson Plays Short; Frisch Shuns Line-up Change

Philadelphia, July 11 (AP).—You may think that Arky Vaughan's two home runs in the major league All-Star game, plus his .302 batting average, would be enough to return him to a starting berth with the Pittsburgh Pirates. But Manager Frankie Frisch doesn't figure it that way.

Vaughan sat on the bench during last night's game with the Phillies until the eighth inning when he broke into the lineup as a pinch-hitter. He poked out a single and finished up the game at shortstop in place of rookie Alf Anderson.

"I put this kid Anderson at shortstop and he's going great guns. I don't want to break up the winning combination, so Arky Vaughan is sitting 'em out these days."

Frisch, incidentally, wants to know "what do you have to do to advance in this league?"

"Here we win 10 out of 13, or something like that, and still we are in the second division," he continued. "This National League used to be different; you'd win a batch and find yourself in the race. But we have been moving at top speed lately, and it hasn't meant a thing to our position.

"Naturally Frisch doesn't want to break up a winning combination," he commented. "I'd like to play, but as long as the team wins I'm satisfied to sit on the bench."

Anderson came up to the Bucs from Atlanta of the Southern League, where he hit .351 last year. His current batting average is in the neighborhood of .226.

Remolee Wins by 3 Lengths in Hagerstown Race Feature

Bletzacker Has Leg Up On Winner

Son of Mowlee Pays $5.10 as Choice; Navigation Second, Blue Covert Third

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Hagerstown, Md., July 11.—J. E. Simmons' Remolee, a hard-running son of Mowlee and trained by C. A. Cranford, of Marlboro, Md., made amends for a nose defeat here earlier in the week by running off with the chief money in the Colonial Hotel Purse. Installed a $5.10 favorite, Remolee was confidently handled by Jockey Martin Bletzacker and bounded to the finish line three lengths ahead of Mrs. A. S. Bowman's Navigation. Two and a half lengths farther back came E. M. Lee's Blue Covert to be third. Although rain had fallen during the early races, the track remained in fast condition. Remolee was clocked in 1:22 2-5 for the six and a half furlongs.

Jockey Danny Scocca, the Washington boy, made a strong effort to win his third straight feature race but Navigation, a forward factor throughout, tried to run out at every turn and finally, after getting to the front, swung out enough to let Remolee slip through and go on to victory. Blue Covert closed gamely to take the third money from Owaller which alternated in setting and pressing the pace with Navigation.

Rides First Winner

Apprentice Jockey L. Gysin, a former exercise boy for the C. V. Whitney stable and now under contract to Eddie Parks, rode his first winner on any track in the second event. Trainer Moe Simon hoisted him into the saddle of Chainwick and the veteran mare drove to the wire three parts of a length in advance of Mrs. Claude Feltner's Wale Signal. Third money went to Chide.

Chainwick put the finishing touches on a $153.40 daily double. The combination was that of 4 and 1. Vale Dove, a 2-year-old filly owned by Eddie Johnson, son of Walter Johnson, started the double rolling by being the fourth favorite of the meeting to win. She paid $5.50 and finished three lengths in advance of Chief Teddy with Aubaley in third place.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—VALE DOVE, $5.50, $3.60, $2.40; CHIEF TEDDY, $5.40, $3.10; AUBALEY, $2.60.

VALVE DOVE raced CAROLYN T. into submission to take command and drew out, winning easily. CHIEF TEDDY, off slowly and bothered at the first turn, closed with good energy. AUBALEY saved ground and held on gamely. CAROLYN T. had keen early speed and weakened. RED DUKE ran out at the turns.

SECOND RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:00½. Off at 3:00½. Winner, Mrs. Moe Simon's gr. m. (6), by Westwick—Royal Chain. Trained by M. Simon. Alue to winner, $325; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:21⅘.

CATS CRADLE	(F.Kelly)	113	7	7	8	8	8	8	4.75

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHAINWICK, $29.30, $12.30, $7.20; WALE SIGNAL, $4.10, $3.30; CHIDE, $7.80.

CHAINWICK raced forwardly between horses early, disposed of CHIDE to get to the front and held sway thereafter. WALE SIGNAL, sluggish early, came out for racing room and closed with good energy. CHIDE had keen early speed to get to the front and weakened slightly in the final stages. GENNARO stumbled early and lacked room to improve his position most of the way.

Daily Double—VALE DOVE and CHAINWICK Paid $153.40.

THIRD RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Winner, A. Gazzale's lt. ch. f. (4), by Lucullite—Kum Kalessi. Trained by A. Gazzale. Value to winner, $325; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:21⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SCARLET FLAME, $23.60, $10.70, $5.40; WHAT OF IT, $8.40, $5.00; TAVERN, $3.30.

SCARLET FLAME gained gradually, came to the outside in the final quarter and was up in the concluding stride for a photo verdict. WHAT OF IT took the lead at once, drew out, saved ground and barely failed to last. TAVERN moved up menacingly while racing wide and faltered right at the close. BY SURPRISE closed with a bold rush.

FOURTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $600; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 3:53½. Off at 3:53⅘. Winner, J. E. Simmons' b. g. (5), by Mowlee—Rae. Trained by C. A. Cranford. Value to winner, $400; second, $115; third, $60; fourth, $25. Time, 1:22⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—REMOLEE, $5.10, $3.10, $2.70; NAVIGATION, $4.70, $3.10; BLUE COVERT, $3.20.

REMOLEE, confidently handled, saved ground, drove to the front of NAVIGATION and held on easy winner. NAVIGATION was a keen forward factor from the start, attempted to run out at the turns and tired through the stretch. BLUE COVERT closed gamely. OWALLER was a keen forward factor early and tired.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:22. Off at 4:22¼. Winner, B. F. Christmas' b. f. (3), by Sun Circle—Galatia. Trained by G. C. Everhart. Value to winner, $325; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:53⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BARDY, $9.30, $5.10, $3.40; ERIN'S GIRL, $4.40, $3.50; COUNTERPART, $3.40.

BARDY, first away, set a good pace and was placed to pressure in the closing stages. ERIN'S GIRL saved ground for the half, responded when placed to a drive and was gaining on the winner at the end. COUNTERPART was hard handled while closest to the pace and weakened. RAPID II was through early. KENNET bolted after a quarter and was taken in hand.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 4:49. Off at 4:50. Winner, Mrs. G. Armstrong's ch. m. (5), by Slave Ship—Trailing Vine. Trained by C. Beal. Value to winner, $325; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:52⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—IVY X., $12.70, $7.30, $4.40; CHIEF CHEROKEE, $5.70, $4.10; MAC'S CANTOR, $3.70.

IVY X. saved ground while racing with CHIEF CHEROKEE, disposed of the latter in the final quarter and drew out to win easily. CHIEF CHEROKEE raced wide while running with the pace, held on willingly, but was no match for the winner. MAC'S CANTOR was in a contending position throughout, but would not respond when called on in the last half. MISS TROY raced wide from the start and closed with good courage.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:19. Off at 5:19. Winner, Mrs. A. F. East's br. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PENNY ARCADE, $11.00, $5.80, $4.00; MY EXIT, $17.60, $9.30; CLYMENE, $4.00.

PENNY ARCADE took command going to the first turn, saved ground and lasted under strong handling. MY EXIT was a keen forward factor from the start, came to the inside in the final drive and was wearing down the winner. CLYMENE stumbled while racing forwardly, dropped back and closed willingly. BARGAIN BOY failed to rally.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:46. Off at 5:46. Winner, C. Gribbins' blk. g. Dear Al:

I want to make a little correction. Pandoramint did not go lame in that last race. Jockey Vesseli dismounted after the race because a stirrup broke. In fact, he gave me the broken stirrup to use as a tie rack. The jockeys are tossing the baseball around to aid them in keeping in shape. Patsy Grant is the champion pitcher and George Miller is the best catcher. The most discouraging job around the tracks is that of superintendent. He gets the racing strip in excellent shape and then the rain messes it up again. Apprentice Jockey Herman Shufelt is 18 years old and does 100 pounds. Paul Sanford leased him from Lee Cotton after the Delaware Park meeting. There's no racing here on Monday and Racing Secretary Eddie Brennan is giving the other officials, himself and the newspaper boys a break by closing the entries for Tuesday on Saturday morning. A carload of horses arrived from Wheeling. No stalls were available so they were shipped on to Timonium to await the Bel Air meeting. Jockey Tony Deliddo arrived. Tom Oliver, former Red Sox outfielder and now manager of the Wilmington ball club, was a visitor yesterday, being touted by Frank Colley, local sports editor. J. B. Belk is sending his good juvenile Sir Counsellor, to New York for the $5,000 added Eastview Stakes, July 19. J. J. Doonis, who used to have the book of Jockey Eddie Smith, was renewing old track acquantances yesterday. He is out of racing now. Both wagering and attendance are up at this meeting. Friend Mickey McGuire, ace chart man, got in from Wheeling. This track is making a brave attempt to keep the programs within the three-hour limit. It has everybody hustling to keep up with the clock. So far, the cards have gone slightly beyond the mark. However, the early get-away is popular. Some bettors have been shut out but the majority of the customers are getting educated to wagering early. See you on the rail.

BILL.

First race—MOWMET, the undefeated juvenile, appears capable of keeping his streak intact. Needs only to get off the reserve list. ROLLS ROUGH has plenty of speed and is a threat. MYRTLE M. for the minor award.

Second race—EMMA H. was fairly consistent at Charles Town and is likely to turn back these. MINTSON has a bit of class and belongs close. TROSTAR has had some rest for this and should go well.

Third race—MONKS SHADOW had fine speed at Delaware Park and seems well placed in this field. CAIDON was a winner at Charles Town and will take it all if the top one makes mistakes. LEAD PLEASE is improving.

Fourth race—BERWYN appears suited by conditions in this field. Gets a modest weight assignment and has the early speed that counts. GRAEME CRACKER won at the first asking here and is dangerous. PURPORT to take care of the others.

Fifth race—CLOCKS did everything asked at the other town and deserves the call in this field. FRANK H. is fit as hands make horses. DRESSMAKER will rate attention with a change of riders.

Sixth race—WALTER LIGHT has everything it takes to win a race of this kind. Needs only some help from the saddle. FLAG ETTA whipped a feature field at Charles Town. **

Capital Power Sales Set New Peak in June

Washington power sales in June totaled 83,717,345 kilowatt-hours, an 18 per cent increase over the same month las year, the Potomac Electric Power Co. reported yesterday. It was the first time in the history of Pepco that sales exceeded 80,000,000, k. w. h. in one month.

Reflecting increased transit traffic, sales for railway purposes alone jumped 20 per cent during the month, totaling 1,349,117 kilowatt-hours.

January	78,588,087	71,130,014
February	76,638,978	68,831,620
March	79,826,879	69,009,918
April	77,422,857	67,228,230
May	79,267,956	66,610,183
June	83,717,395	70,976,568
Total	475,459,352	413,785,533

The six-month total of 475,459,352 kilowatt-hours also was a new record.

Rising Prices Noted

The Commerce Department said yesterday, "business in the United States registered another strong advance in June, but rising prices, expanding inventories and mounting shortages of key materials emphasized the increasing strains appearing in many sectors of the country."

A department statement said, "not withstanding these growing problems, industrial production continued to move ahead and sellers continued to experience a record demand for this time of year.

"The construction industry began a summer of heightened activit. Gains of considerable magnitude were evident in the field of distribution."

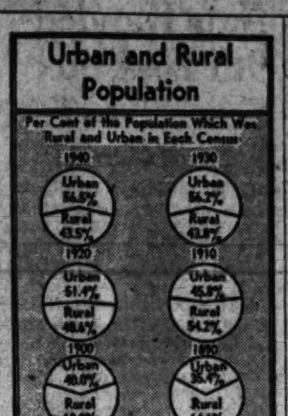
Wilkins' Dividends

Directors of John H. Wilkins Co., Washington coffee and tea firm, have declared a 4 per cent semi-annual dividend on preferred stock and a $1.50 dividend of common stock, both payable July 15.

Chemical Output Reaches New Highs

New York, July 11 (AP).—Production and consumption of chemicals continues to make new monthly records, Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering said today, despite labor and transportation problems, raw material shortages and other restrictions.

The publication's index of consumption declined to 161 for June compared with 165.33 for May, principally because of seasonal influences, namely a drop in the use of fertilizer.



Earnings Reports

Western Union Telegraph Co. reported net income of $910,181 in May, 1941, as compared with $480,223 in May, 1940. For the first months of this year net income amounted to $3,044,721 as against $935,701 in the corresponding period a year ago. Gross revenues for 1941 through may totaled $44,452,497, an increase of $4,61,333, or 11.5 per cent over 1940's first five months.

Champion Paper & Fibre Co., reporting the largest sales and tonnage in its history, announced today consolidated net income of $2,379,660 for the fiscal year ended April 27, or $3.37 per outstanding common share after all charges. Thsi compares with $1,731,938, or $2.24 per share, the previous year.

United Corporation, an investment company interested principally in public utilities, reported net income for the quarter ended June 30 amounting to $1,738,459, equivalent to 70 cents a share on the $3 preference stock which is in arrears. For the same quarter a year ago, the company reported profits of $2,588,951, equal to 5 cents a share on the common stock.

Industrial Rayon Corporation's six-months statement showed second quarter net profit of $849,703 against $683,350 the preceding quarter and $511,810 the second quarter of 1940. The figure was after provision for taxes as now in effect.

Pullman Company, sleeping car subsidiary of Pullman Incorporated, today reported a net loss of $150,889 for the month of May, compared with a net loss of $201,073 a year ago. Net revenue for the five months ending May 31 totaled $1,269,890, compared with $991,132 for the comparable 1941 period.

Buyers Rush Wholesalers For Fall Needs

By the Associated Press

New York, July 11.—Wholesale markets had their greatest influx in history this week as buyers discarded the usual "looking around" period and rushed to get orders on books, Dun & Bradstreet said today in the weekly review of business. Prices again trended higher rapidly.

Retail trade bore up well under changeable weather conditions with consumer buying broad and sharply ahead of last year, the review said.

"After several weeks of heavy pre-season buying," the agency said, "wholesale markets went officially into fall selling, a big-scale invasion of buyers gave trade shows their heaviest attendance in history. As in preceding weeks the major attention of buyers centered on obtaining timely deliveries. Orders were being placed with a minimum of preliminary note-taking and in most instances in volume sharply exceeding a year ago.

"While the majority of buying budgets were approximately in line with sales increases, on some occasions demand was said to have the earmarks of a buying panic. According to trade sources, there were instances of orders far in excess of needs where retailers felt that delivery of a portion might be thus insured. Most sellers were resorting to rationing and other checks to hold down speculative demand.

"Upward adjustments of prices were continuing on a broad front."

Retail sales were spotty in some instances due to weather conditions, the review said, but sale for the country as a whole averaged 17 to 24 per cent above a year ago. Percentage changes in the major areas were: New England, 20 to 25 per cent; East and Middle West, 23 to 29; South, 18 to 26; Southwest, 17 to 22; Northwest, 13 to 18, and Pacific Coast, 16 to 20.

New Revamping Plan For Reading Coal

Philadelphia, July 11 (AP).—A ne wplan for reorganization of the Reading Coal Company under section 77-B of the bankruptcy act was submitted today to United States District Court by three of four committees named to revamp the firms financial structure.

The plan provides a reduction of nearly $50,000,000 in the present capital.

The groups joining in today's petition t the court also askedthat a previous plan presented to the court in April, 1939, be scrapped.

Farm Implement List Shows Buoyancy; Case, Harvester, Deere Set 1941 Peaks

New York, July 11.—Specialties, led by farm implements, commanded the buying play in today's stock market while most leaders suffered from neglect.

Prices were a shade irregular at the start and definite trends were difficult to locate during the remainder of the proceeding. While plus signs were in the majority at the close, most steels, motors, coppers, rubbers and aircrafts were a trifle under water.

A handful of favorites finished with advances of 1 to more than 3 points but for the list as a whole frac variations were the rule.

There was the usual Friday trimming of commitments in preparation for the week-end—many customers take Saturday off during the summer—and part of the selling that cropped up was attributed to reports of a "mighty" Nazi offensive getting under way in Russia. Tax doubts also revived as a clouding influence when Presidential requests to Congress for additional appropriations in the past two days aggregated some $8,000,000,000. Business New was encouraging, with individual issues being propped by pleasing earnings statements. Inflation sentiment continued as an anti-liquidating argument.

The Associated Press Average of 60 stocks managed to hold a net improvement of .1 of a point at 43. Dealings slackened after midday and transferes for the full proceedings amounted to 806525 shares compared with 838,095 yesterday.

New 1941 tops were posted for J. I. Case, International Harvester, Deere, Oliver Farm, Western Union, Chicago Great Western preferred, International Paper, Savage Arms, Pepsi-Cola, Warner Bros., Pathe and United States Rubber preferred.

American Telephone regained 1⅞ of its recent slump. Up moderately were Johns-Manville, Westinghouse, American Can, Great Northern, Southern Pacific, Standard Oil (N. J.) and Woolworth.

On the offside were United States Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, General Motors, Chrysler, Anaconda, Kennecott, United States Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Douglas Aircraft, Union Carbide, Loew's, Santa Fe and Eastmean Kodak.

Belief that shortage of farm labor due to defense needs would expand demand for agricultural implements aided stocks in this group. Further indications of a tapering off of automotive production restrained the motors.

Among curb advances were Waco Aircraft, Aluminum of America, Brewster Aero, Humble Oil, Glen Alden Coal and Pheonix Securities. Volume here was around 166,000 shares versus 163,000 Thursday.

The Bond Market developed numerous firm spots today but the main run of corporates held in a narrow range with gainers of fractions having a slight edge on those holding unchanged or shading a little lower.

Volume of $8,778,900, par value, compared with $8,441,750 the day before. The Associated Press Average of 10 utilities inched into a new 1941 high at 101.7, up .2 of a point on the day. The low-yield group pushed up .2 of a point at 114.4, within striking distance of the year's top, largely as a result of higher prices for the utilities in that section.

U. S. Government drifted a shade lower on both the stock exchange and over the counter. Trading was light.

Commodities' Trend Mixed; Cotton Climbs

Unchanged to slightly higher prices prevailed at New York for Straits tin, Santos and Rio coffee, wool tops, rubber and hides. Cotton ended up 15 to 20 cents a bale.

Hogs at Chicago were down 15 to 25 cents with the top at $11.35. Cattle prices were unevenly higher and spring lambs steady to 15 cents lower.

Wheat Prices Rally

Chicago, July 11 (AP).—Increased official estimate of the 1941 domestic wheat harvest, which will be one of the largest on record if present prospects are borne out, put the wheat market under pressure today, but, after declining almost a cent, prices rallied in the final hour.

Wheat closed unchanged to ⅜ higher compared with yesterday, July $1.05¼@1.05½, September $1.06¾@$1.06⅞.

Corn finished unchanged to ⅛ lower, July 73½, September 75½; oats ⅛-¼ lower; soybeans 1-1½ higher; rye 1¼ off to 1 higher; and lard 5-15 higher.

Boneless Beef Ordered by Army

Chicago, July 11 (AP).—Awards have been let to two companies for 6,567,000 pounds of fresh frozen boneless beef for the Army, officials of the Chicago quartermaster depot announced today.

Wilson & Co. of Chicago was the low bidder for 6,000,000 pounds of the contract and the Houston Packing Co. of Houston, Tex., was low bidder on the remainder.

The meat, purchased by the New Orleans quartermaster depot, will be distributed to the many Army organizations that will be on maneuvers in that area during the summer months.

Officials said fresh boneless beef instead of the former quarters of beef were purchased because it is 30 per cent lighter in weight and when packed takes up 60 to 70 per cent less space.

Remington Rand Plans $15,000,000 Offering

New York, July 11 (AP).—The financial district heard today that in issue of about $15,000,000 Remington Rand 3¼ per cent debentures was expected to be filed with the securities and excange commission 4¼s of 1956.

N. A. M. Seeks Ways to Help 'Peace' Plants

By the Associated Press

New York, July 11.—The National Association of Manufacturers today began a study of methods of mitigating dislocations of normal peacetime industry, both during the defense effort and in the readjustment period when it is over.

Thomas B. McCabe, president of the Scott Paper Co., Chester, Pa., in announcing his acceptance of the chairmanship of the association's committee on economic policy, said:

"It is not at all improbable that hundreds or thousands of manufacturing plants will be shut down within the year unless they are able to convert their production to defense work."

The committee held its first of a series of private discussion meetings with industrialists and economists and plans, McCabe explained, "to make suggestions for meeting the problems in a manner which will best serve the interests of consumer, labor and employer."

"The committee is particularly interested," he said, "in the economic aspects of current defense production as it relates t othe postarmament situation which may exist, those vialent dislocations which are occurring today and may increase in the near future."

Vice chairmen of the committee, composed of 63 members, are Stuart W. Cramer, jr., president, Cramerton Mills, Cramerton, N. C.; Malcolm Muir, president and publisher of Newsweek magazine, and Roy E. ITomlinson, president, Natoina Biscuit Co. S. Bayard Colgate, chairman of Colgate-Palm Olive-Peet Co., heads a subcommittee on distribution of income, and John Airey, president, King-Seely Corporation, Ann Arbor, Mich., one on economic aspects of defense.

Steel Rationing Urged

New York, July 11 (AP).—Wholesale expansion of steel capacity would fail to solve the problem of complaints of shortages of steel for nonmilitary purposes, Walter S. Tower, president of the American Iron and Steel Institute, said here today.

The only effective way for dealing with such a temporary condition would be, he said, to ration temporarily or curtail the more dispensable uses.

"The machinery for such action already exists," he said. "It could be applied promptly."

Steel Output Sets New Peak

New York, July 11 (AP).—The feverish pace set by the steel industry under the spur of the defense program resulted in production of nearly 41,000,000 net tons in the first half of 1941. This amount was within 20 per cent of the total steel produced in all of 1917, the peak year of the World War.

As compiled by the American Iron and Steel Institute, output in the first six months of 1941 totaled 40,911-886 tons, 40 per cent more than the 29,405,402 tons produced in the comparable period of 1940.

In 1917, total steel production was 50,468,000 tons, in the first half of that year output amounted to 25,235,000 net tons.

New York Cotton

New York, July 11 (AP).—Developments at Washington, including reports to the trade that opposition to price control legislation was strengthening, helped cotton futures to close 3 to 8 points higher today.

Exports Thursday, 7,707 bales; season so far, 1,857,283. Port receipts, 18,290. Port stocks, 3,269,882.

Promoter's Bond Posted By Mike Uline

The privilege of promoting his own fights, without the use of a "front," was gained yesterday by Mike J. Uline, owner of the Uline Arena, when his $2,000 bond was accepted by the District Boxing Commission.

In the statement which accompanied his posting of the money, Uline named Lee J. Berrin as his general manager and matchmaker and said "We will follow a well-established business practice of giving better entertainment than our competitors."

The new promoter-owner of the million-dollar sports layout at Third and M Streets Northwest further stated "Bouts which . . . offer little more than a yawn for customers . . . will most definitely not be tolerated . . . I have never actually acted as matchmaker or promoter in the fight game, but I have followed it actively for many years."

In Perrin the arena will have, to say the least, a general manager and matchmaker with a varied background. As a student at Baltimore City College he tried his hand at boxing, but thereafter his activities were split among roller skating championships, theatrical promotions, minstrel shows and the decorating business. He has been associated with Uline Arena for a year.

Village Motors Plays Palace eNine

Arlington's chances of redeeming prestige lost when Palace A. C., of Washington, won the first half of Washington-Virginia League play will hinge on the double-header between Village Motors and Palace tomorrow. The clubs start hostilities at 1 p. m. at Ballston Stadium.

One of the busiest clubs in the section, being entered in two leagues, Palace will send Frank Deavers and "Lefty" McIntyre to the mound against Abe Silverman and "Lefty" Winder. Catchers for the respective nines will be Jimmy Schwab and Askins.

Other games on tomorrow's schedule for Washington-Virginia League clubs find Mattos A. C. moving to Winchester, Va., to face the Park Association, and the Arlington Dodgers tangling with Indianhead's forces on the Maryland diamond.

Mountain State Rejects Proposals

Logan, W. Va., July 11 (AP).—Representatives of the Class D Mountain State Baseball League today rejected a proposal to play a split season, and also rejected two proposed "all-star" games between the Mountain State and the Viginia State Leagues.

However, the clubs will go through with a scheduled game between All-Stars of the Mountain State League and the Logan Indians, who were leading the league by one-half game the half-season mark, on July 4.

The game is scheduled at Logan July 17.

Baltimore Golfer Backs Into Hole-in-One

Baltimore, July 11 (AP).—Charlie Betschler, pro at the Hillendale Country Club, vouches for this one:

Eddie Semmler swatted a tee shot on the 110-yard sevententh hole. The ball landed 6 inches past the cup, but, because of extreme backspin, hopped backward for a hole-in-one the hard way.

Cameo Blanks H. & J., 4-0, Boosts Lead

Cameo Furniture nine boosted its Post Industrial League lead to a full game yesterday when it shut out H. and J. Construction, 4-0, on the Ellipse.

Frank Deavers started the Furniture club winward when he hurled three-hit ball for the first three innings against young brother Kenny, former Eastern High star. Otie Printz took over in the fourth and handed out four hits and struck out ten the rest of the eight-inning game.

One of the two extra-base hits of the game, a double by "Booty" McQuinn, launched Cameo's winning effort in the first inning. McQuinn reached third on an infield out and scored when a passed ball was charged against Jenkins.

Post League action today calls for a meeting of O'Donnell's Grill and Reliance Insurance on the South Ellipse at 5 p. m.

Walker Applies For Army Flying

Richmond, Va., July 11 (AP).—Another Virginia football star has been lost to Uncle Sam, it became known today with announcement that Billy Walker, who withdrew from V. M. I. at the close of the last school year, had applied to the Army as a flyig cadet.

The 20-year-old guard, who prepped at Thomas Jefferson here, said he tuned in his appliction to the Army after he found he could not play professional football until the 1942 season. Billy was offered a contract with the Washington Redskins but was declared ineligible under the National Professional League Collegiate ruling that college men must have completed four years of school or their classes must be graduated before they may play.

Browns' Teams Start Third Tryout Camp

St. Louis, July 11 (AP).—The third of a series of tryout camps sponsored by teams associated with the St. Louis Browns will be held at St. Joseph, Mich., July 15 to 19.

It will be sponsored by the St. Joseph Club of the Michigan State League.

One now is in progress at Toledo, under direction of the Toledo Club of the American Association and the first, at Princeton, Ind., was sponsored by Youngstown, Ohio, of the Middle Atlantic League. Another will be at St. Joseph, Mo., beginning July 28.

ODD BODKINS — By FRED FOX and CHASE CRAIG

I OUT-SMARTED THEM. IF THEY CAN'T GET BY ME, IT DOESN'T MATTER HOW FAST THEIR CAR IS!
ONE MAN AT A TIME, PLEASE
HE'S DELIBERATELY HOLDING US BACK!
WELL, DON'T TRY TO PASS HIM! WE CAN'T TAKE CHANCES WITH THE STUFF WE'RE CARRYING!
I SUPPOSE I COULD PUSH A FEW TELEPHONE POLES DOWN AND BLOCK THE ROAD, BUT THERE'S NO NEED OF THAT!
POP WHAT ARE YOU SO NERVOUS ABOUT?
DON'T ASK ANY QUESTIONS, HONEY, JUST GO AWAY! WHEN THOSE MEN COME— JUST GO— FAR AWAY!

JOE PALOOKA — Great News — BY HAM FISHER

Listen! with Glynn

Monday is the day that WJSV's indefatigable feminine impresario, Elinor Lee, starts out on her talent quest among Washington's junior set, as a result of which you'll be hearing all sorts of children's shows over the WJSV air throughout the summer.

It's Mrs. Lee's heroic way to invite all children of the Washington vicinity who think they have entertainment talent—or whose mothers think they have talent (and what mother doesn't think little Junior or Sis has same in overwhelming quantities?)—to accompany her on a boat ride down the Potomac, aboard the Wilson Line's "Mount Vernon," have them do their stuff en route, and then, from the many scores of auditions given, to select the children who will be the stars of the WJSV "Kiddie Shows."

This will happen every Monday until Labor Day. The selectees chosen will rehearse at the WJSV studios the following Thursday and then the finished productions will be put on the air on Saturday.

At the end of the summer, the children who have appeared to best advantage in the various Saturday radio shows are to stage a grand finale in a local theater, dancing, singing, playing instruments, doing imitations and whatever else talented children do, and the whole thing will be broadcast over—you guessed it—WJSV.

Contract Bridge

Frank K. Perkins, Boston expert, made four spades with the South cards of today's hand after East took the king and ace of diamonds and let a third diamond which West ruffed with the spade four. Plan your play from this point, then check with the New England champion's solution below.

Today's Hand

North and South Vulnerable

SOUTH DEALER

♠ J 10 3 2
♡ K 8 4
◇ Q 9

♠ 4	NORTH	♠ K 9 8
♡ Q 10 9 6		♡ J
5 2	WEST EAST	◇ A K J 10
◇ 8 3		4 2
♣ 10 6 5 4	SOUTH	♣ Q J 3

♠ A Q 7 6 5
♡ A 7 2
◇ 7 6 5
♣ A K

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	3 ◇
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: 8 ◇.

The Solution

East made a clever defensive play by leading a third diamond so that his partner's trump would drive out one of dummy's honors and promote one of East's own trumps to a winner. Declarer refused to be outmaneuvered, however. He made his contract by throwing one of dummy's hearts, which he had to lose anyway, on the diamond lead, thereby protecting his spade finesse.

West returned a heart, which was won with dummy's king, and the jack, ten of trumps picked up East's king. South had the balance of the tricks and made four spades, losing two diamonds and a diamond ruff. If he had overtrumped the third diamond lead with one of dummy's honors, he'd have lost a heart trick anyway and East would have taken a spade as well, setting the game bid one trick.

$2,000,000 to Go For 'Flight Strips'

Federal funds totaling $2,000,000 in appropriations authorized in the Defense Highway Act of 1941, now before Congress, will be used for the construction of airplane "flight strips," it was announced yesterday by the National Highway Users Conference.

These flight strips will constitute auxiliary landing areas, it was said, for the use of military aircraft alongside public highways located within 5 to 50 miles of Army air bases.

With vagrant echoes of "yoo-hoo" bounding about the Halls of Congress, reverberating in the War Department and lingering in Army camps all over the country, The Post resolutely set out yesterday to find Miss Average American Girl's reaction to the shenanigans of the yoo-hooligan troops in the now famous Memphis incident.

We found this attractive sunburned girl in an unusually breezy and receptive mood. From her considered opinion of the merits of the case and her own experience we were finally able to reduce the matter to the following conclusions:

1. That when a group of boys see girls in shorts, a resounding "yoo-hoo" rises to their lips as naturally as a rooster crows at sunrise.

2. That the boys mean no harm or disrespect but are merely expressing their jubilant exuberance.

3. That the punishment inflicted by the "mean old general" was too much.

4. BUT—when there is only one or two boys calling "yoo-hoo" that's an entirely different matter and then a girl can't be too careful.

It all started last week when a group of soldiers en route to another camp passed a golf course in Memphis, on which several shorts-clad girls were cavorting. Also a general who took his golf seriously.

Lieut. Gen. Ben Lear was about to putt when he heard several amorous yodels from the passing troops. Determined to make gentlemen of the soldier boys, he ordered them to make a 15-mile disciplinary march.

Only Dissenter

Catherine Hunt, of 749 Twelfth Street Southeast, employe at the Anacostia Pool, said, "Their uniform doesn't give them a right to jeer and whistle at girls. They were not gentlemen to do so and I think they should have been punished"

'They All Do It,' said Margaret Corlay, 1809 Nichols Avenue Southeast, locker-room attendant at the Anacostia pool, "and 15 miles is too darn far to walk for a whistle"

Housewives Agree— Mrs. R. L. Frank, 1126 B Street Northeast; Mrs. R. G. Miller, 303 Maryland Avenue Northeast, and Mrs. M. F. Fleischmann, 2109 F Street Northeast, halted their bicycles in Potomac Park long enough yesterday to agree that "all soldiers yell at girls." They thought the punishment was "unreasonable"

In Harmony— Two singers, Clair Taylor, 1513 Meridian Place Northwest, and Jeanne Holmes, 3810 Beecher Street Northwest, relaxing at Haines Point, agreed emphatically, "It was a dirty trick to make those boys walk." Miss Holmes, whose brother is a sergeant in the Army, said, "You can almost always expect that from soldiers"

Six Public Pools Teaching Washington Youth to Swim

In six public pools, hundreds of Washington youngsters daily are mixing vacation fun with the serious business of learning how to take care of themselves in the water and, if the need comes, guard the lives of others.

Last summer more than 15,000 youngsters splashed up a total of 131,000 free swims. More are expected this year. The Welfare and Recreation Association provides the pools, while men and women teachers, trained by the Red Cross, are furnished by the Playground Department of the District.

The children start by learning to breathe, turning their heads side to side while standing in shallow water. Next they graduate to the prone float. They add a glide, then a kick.

When used to the feel of floating, the children are taught to use their arms, how to get into the swimming position after jumping into deep water. Before long they are not only swimming but are being introduced to the intricacies of life saving.

The pools, all open from 9 a. m. till 12 noon, 1 p. m. till 6 p. m., 7 p. m. till 9:30 p. m. during week days, are at East Potomac Park; Fourth and Van Buren Streets Northwest, Lincoln Road at Randolph Street Northeast, Anacostia Park Southeast, Twenty-fifth and N Streets Northwest and Georgia Avenue at Howard Place Northwest.

Beginners— First step in learning to swim is learning to kick. Youngsters hold to side of pool, are told to work their legs from the hips, not the knees

Floating— A child who floats easily learns to swim quickly. From Instructor Helen Mills, Betty Lou Holten, 7, of 1116 Sixth Street Southwest, learns how to stay afloat with little effort

Life-Saving— For those who know how to swim, life-saving instructions are available at the six Washington public pools. Here, Instructor Paul Weber, of East Potomac Park pool, shows Sidney Barradell, 1815 Biltmore Place Northwest, how to carry a person through the water. Wallace Duncan, of Arlington, Va., allows himself to be "rescued"
